Garner, Wheeler, Backer Of Roosevelt, To Fight For the Ohio Delegates

Candidate Favorable to Third Term To Enter Primary To Line Up Support for the President

By RICHARD L. TURNER

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—A battle for Ohio's big delegation to the Democratic National Convention between Vice President Garner, Senator Wheeler (D.-Mont) and supporters of a third term for President Roosevelt took shape today as the result of a whirlwind series of events.

At the same time Republicans in Congress hastened to support the tentative platform submitted by the Glenn Frank Committee. An effort was obviously on to back the program with a united party, despite any minor, individual disagreements with its recommendations.

Behind the Ohio developments lay a situation which found the leaders of the regular Democratic organization ardently supporting the draft-Roosevelt movement. They had chosen Senator Donahey to enter the presidential preference primary on May 14 as a "favorite son" candidate, but with the understanding that at the right time he would free the delegation to vote for Mr. Roosevelt's renomination.

Donahey Balks

But Donahey, who has opposed important New Deal measures and has, moreover, been a close friend of Vice President Garner, refused today to be put in the role of a staking horse for the third term movement.

"I appreciate the honor tendered me x x x but in good conscience I am compelled to reject same," he said, adding that "acceptance would be subterfuge."

His withdrawal opened the way for a chain of developments. In the first place, Vice President Garner had promised Donahey he would not enter Ohio if the senator was a candidate. Garner's managers were highly pleased at Donahey's decision.

Garner Likely To File

It was expected that Garner's name would be filed in the primary very soon. Apparently the only thing delaying that action was the receipt of an invitation from the Garner wing in Ohio. It has been the vice president's technique to await such a bid before entering any state.

It quickly developed, however, that the Ohio organization group, led by Charles Sawyer, national committeeman, was still determined to go through with its effort to take a pro-third term delegation to the convention. Sawyer announced in Columbus that another "favorite son" candidate would be selected shortly to carry through the original "draft Roosevelt" program. Reports were that Sawyer might assume that role himself.

Third Contender Appears

But, a third contender for the Ohio delegation appeared almost simultaneously. It developed that Senator Wheeler's friends have designs on the Ohio delegation. Now, Wheeler is publicly committed to stay out of any primary, such as those coming up in Illinois and Wisconsin, in which Mr. Roosevelt's name is presented to the voters.

The pro-third termers have entered Mr. Roosevelt's name—without his consent—in Illinois and Wisconsin. In Ohio, however, a

Illinois Ticket Strongly Fought By Large Group

Rebellion against Kelly-Nash-Horner Selections Develops

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 19 (AP)—A rebellion against the Kelly-Nash-Horner organization's "harmony" ticket gained new recruits in Democratic ranks today amid charges of "bossism" and indications of a turbulent primary election battle.

The controversy revolved about the slate of candidates approved by Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago, National Committeeman P. A. Nash and Gov. Henry Horner and endorsed by the party's state central committee.

Democratic aspirants dissatisfied with the selections rushed here to file petitions before the midnight deadline while steps to form an "anti-organization" ticket for the April 9 primary took definite shape.

Lieut. Gov. John Steele, State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, State Senator George Maypole and State Rep. Benjamin S. Adamowski, minority leader in the House, moved swiftly to enter races against entrants backed by the party chieftains.

Guardsmen Ready For Fighting at Louisiana Polls

Hundreds Mobilized for Runoff Primary for Governorship

New Orleans, Feb. 19 (AP)—Thirty-five hundred national guardsmen stood to their arms tonight amid mounting fear that bloodshed will underscore Louisiana's verdict on the Huey Long machine in tomorrow's runoff primary for the governorship.

Governor Earl J. Long mobilized the soldiers today and said they would be used against the poll watching "Jackson brigade" if that organization of World War veterans "starts trouble" — trouble he predicted would flare in New Orleans.

The brother of the slain Huey seeks the Democratic nomination—equivalent to election — against "reform" candidate Sam Houston Jones, who is striving to drive from power the last remnants of the organization unbeaten since "The Kingfish" first shaped it in 1928.

Heading the "Jackson Brigade" is fiery State Senator James A. Noe, former ally of Huey Long, arch foe of Earl. Eliminated from the gubernatorial lists in the first primary January 16, Noe joined the anti-administration coalition behind Jones, 42-year-old Lake Charles attorney and political newcomer.

"There will be squads with trucks, machine guns and gas equipment and whatever else they need to dampen Jimmy's enthusiasm," Long said in announcing the militia call.

"I just hope Jimmy Noe is in front of his Jackson brigade tomorrow.

"I've ordered out the militia to preserve peace, law and order wherever they may be needed. It's almost certain they will be called out in New Orleans.

"They don't need that Jackson brigade to intimidate and browbeat the good people of this state and I won't allow it."

Noe declared the mobilization and appointment of 1,600 armed special police for poll duty tomorrow was "to frighten voters away from the polls."

Pittsburgh Area Munitions Center, Johnson Declares

He told the Engineering Society of Western Pennsylvania this area produced eighty per cent of the nation's munitions steel during the first World War and now was supplying much fo the materials for rearmament.

"Although steel predominates, we are also getting from local sources bombs, gun tubes and armor plate for tanks," he said in an address prepared for delivery.

"In a grave emergency," he added, "the war department will depend on the Pittsburgh district for a wide variety of munitions x x x (including) plate glass, optica and testing instruments, machine tools, gas defense equipment and troop barges."

Declaring he viewed preparedness as "the most certain road toward peace," Johnson reported the nation's new defense program was well under way and the war department, with the help of labor and management, had broken "one bottle-neck after another" in munitions production.

He outlined seven specific supply needs for adequate national defense, placing first complete and modern equipment for the regular army and national guard troops whom he described as the "nation's minutemen."

Other needs, he said, include the maintenance of adequate reserve stocks; preparation of industry for wartime task; operation of modern, fully equipped government arsenals and laboratories for development, manufacture and maintenance of munitions; acquisition and storage of strategic imported raw materials; provision for helping other nations of the western hemisphere obtain munitions; and development of adequate plans for industrial mobilization in the event of war.

British Destroyer Sunk By a German Submarine

Daring Goes Down with Loss of 157 Men; only Five Saved

By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE

London, Feb. 19. (AP)—Britain today acknowledged loss by torpedo of the destroyer Daring with 157 men, but kept up a triumphal chorus praising the swashbuckling rescue of British prisoners from the German prisonship Altmark in defiance of Norwegian neutrality.

Sixth destroyer lost by Britain in the war, the Daring was the 28th of Great Britain's naval craft to go down in the intensifying warfare on the sea. Fourteen losses of the British fleet were capital ships, destroyers or submarines. Latest casualties before the Daring were two armed trawlers, Bowen and Fort Royal, sunk by an air raider Feb. 9.

9 Officers, 148 Men Drown

Nine officers, including her commander, S. A. Cooper, and 148 men went down with the 1,375-ton Daring, the admiralty disclosed, and one officer and four seamen were picked up.

A sister ship of the destroyer Duchess, lost earlier in the war, the Daring's main armament included four 4.7-inch guns, seven smaller guns and eight 21-inch torpedo tubes. She was built in 1932 at a cost of about $1,125,000 and was capable of the exceptional speed of 38.2 knots.

The admiralty did not disclose when or where the Daring was sunk.

(Germany reported the destroyer, a part of naval forces guarding a convoy, was sunk yesterday. At the same time, the German command declared, its navy sunk an undisclosed number of merchant steamers and tankers in attacks on three other convoys.)

While Britain cheered the action of her naval forces in the Altmark episode, neutrals on the fringe of the western war weighed the implications of the precedent set by the British destroyed Cossack's invasion of Norwegian waters. Great Britain termed the affair a move of urgent naval necessity.

(Norway's foreign minister, Halvdan Koht, announced at Oslo that the incident might lead to an appeal by Norway to the League of Nations or some other tribunal.)

Fear Air Battles

One neutral reaction was the fear expressed in the Belgian press that belligerent planes might seize the excuse of neutrality violations by the other side to fight battles in the air above the soil where armies clashed in 1914.

King Gustaf Says Sweden Cannot Go To Aid of Finns

Declares Direct Military Aid Would Likely Provoke War

Stockholm, Feb. 19 (AP) — King Gustaf of Sweden told his people today that much as he regretted it, the Swedish government had no alternative but to turn down Finland's request for direct military aid.

His declaration said that if Sweden gave Finland outright military assistance in her fight with Soviet Russia the country certainly would be drawn into war between the western powers, a risk which Sweden could not take.

Besides, he said, Finland can get more assistance from Sweden as a neutral than as a belligerent. The King's statement was an endorsement of the announcement by the government last Friday that it could not send the Swedish army to Finland.

"On my own initiative my cabinet met today to make this statement," the king proclaimed. "It is my wish to make clear for my Swedish people the responsible, severe position in which we now find ourselves.

New Technique of Surgery Saves Life of Associated Press Writer

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

New York, Feb. 19 — A new technique of surgery, a fishing expedition through the arteries, probably has saved the life of Smith Reavis, distinguished editor and writer of the Associated Press. He is the man who inspired the Kellogg-Briand pact outlawing war.

Reavis' life was threatened last Saturday by a blood clot, or "saddle" thrombus, which had formed in the abdomen.

The clot lay at the point where the large artery descending from the heart to supply blood to the legs forks like an inverted capital letter Y to form two branches, one down each lag. A clot here is fatal, causing gangrene, unless quickly removed.

Occasionally surgeons have saved life when clots formed in various parts of the body by going directly in from the nearest point above to open the artery and lift out the obstruction.

Use Vienna Method

But there is a new method, originated in Vienna, said to have been tried not more than two or three times in this country. It is fishing with a wire, which enters some place else in the body and probes to the clot.

No instruments for such an operation were available at the post graduate hospital here when Reavis

Norway To Take Altmark Case to Neutral Tribunal

Accuses Britain of Acting in Conflict with Own Principles

Oslo, Feb. 19 (AP)—Accusing the British government of acting in "open conflict with principles which it has itself so often proclaimed," Norway served notice tonight she might put Britain on trial by taking the Altmark case before the League of Nations "or some other tribunal."

The indication of this jittery neutral's course in the controversy arising from the rescue of 300 British prisoners from the German ship Altmark was given by Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht at a special session of the Storting (Parliament).

His reference to "some other tribunal" raised speculation in view of a suggestion in the Oslo "Shipping Times" that President Roosevelt be asked to head an investigating commission.

Claim Ship Within Rights

In a long review of the case, Koht said the Altmark was a state vessel and admitted she was armed with anti-aircraft guns but was perfectly within her rights to go through Norwegian waters.

The only illegal action of the German vessel, he said, was the use of her wireless in territorial limits and this was discontinued after Norwegian authorities told the captain of the infringement. He denied British assertions the Altmark had been searched at Bergen. The British have asserted the search was not thorough enough.

The entire Storting applauded the firm speech, in which Koht declared that "as far as possible Norway will defend her rights" but added that "Norway is a small state and cannot base her rights on power."

He declared that in any case world opinion would pass judgment on Britain's action and the fact that the Altmark was armed and had broadcast illegally did not justify the British disregard of Norway's rights as a neutral power.

Koht asserted that Lord Halifax,

One Killed, Nine Injured, When Gas Leaks into Room

Savage, Md., Feb. 19 (AP)—Leaking gas that killed one woman and left her two daughters unconscious exploded shortly after rescuers arrived today, causing injuries to seven other persons and starting a fire that destroyed the house.

Mrs. Thomas Ridgeway, 68, was asphyxiated and her two daughters, Mrs. Helen Linder, 30, and Miss Catherine Ridgeway, 26, were overcome.

Mrs. Linder told police she was awakened by the smell of gas about 1:30 a. m. and, unable to arouse her sister or mother, telephoned Dr. Frank E. Shipley. After phoning, she collapsed.

Dr. Shipley and Monroe Collison, brother-in-law of Mrs. Linder, broke into the home.

Mrs. Linder lay on the floor by the telephone and the other women were unconscious in their beds.

A call to Baltimore police brought Charles LeCallett, 25, and Arthur Sweeney, 47, members of a gas and electric company inhalator squad.

Richard Linder, husband of Mrs. Linder, and state patrolman W. M. Bowler and Mrs. May Swann, Dr. Shipley's sister, also arrived.

Dr. Shipley said the two daughters were revived but that Mrs. Ridgeway was dead. He was telephoning a Baltimore hospital to arrange removal of the women when a blast shattered the house.

"The next thing I knew, I was regaining my senses on the front lawn," said Dr. Shipley. He, Linder and Mrs. Swann were blown out of the house.

Mrs. Linder and Miss Ridgeway were taken to Baltimore for gas poisoning treatment, body injuries and shock, and LeCallett and Sweeney were treated for burns about the face and hands.

The others were treated for lacerations, bruises and shock.

A sidewall of the two and one-half story frame structure was blown out, the foundation was wrecked and the front porch fell in. Before firemen arrived the house burned.

Finnish Statement Says Positions Are Sound in Spite of Withdrawal from Mannerheim Line

Moscow, Feb. 20 (AP)—Soviet Russian military leaders reported early today their offensive on the Karelian Isthmus was "developing successfully," and reported the cleanup of several islands and coastal stations north of the Kiovisto fortified area.

Fourteen enemy planes were brought down in air combats, the regular army communique from Leningrad headquarters said.

Helsinki, Feb. 19 (AP)—Russian artillery tonight dropped shells regularly into Viipuri, now a definite part of the front as a result of Soviet penetration into the Mannerheim fortified zone, a reliable informant said.

"This does not mean the city is in danger of capture, but that it now is definitely a part of the front," the informant said.

Shortly before an official communique had told of the completed destruction of the Eighteenth Red army division northeast of Lake Ladoga by Finland's ghost-like fighters who for weeks parried and thrust until 18,000 Russians were dead or captured.

Russian Attack Repelled

The same communique which announced this major victory said Soviet attacks against the new Finnish Karelian Isthmus positions, to which the battered Mannerheim Line army had been compelled to withdraw, had been repelled.

With the Russians continuing their unrelenting attack, Finnish spokesmen said their new positions were "sound," despite the enforced withdrawal.

The Russians lost the equivalent of one battalion and six tanks in assaults on the Finn' new positions at the southwestern end of the line, the communique said.

The Russians' new positions from west of Summa toward Muollaa presumably permitted the Russians to bring their artillery closer to that Viipuri, Finland's second largest city and center of Karelian Christianity for 700 years, was subject to regular shellfire.

Viipuri Steadily Shelled

Heretofore the city has been twenty miles from the front, and only occasionally long-range artillery shells dropped into it.

(The Russian communique early today, reporting on Sunday fighting, said the Red army had advanced to within six miles of Viipuri on the Gulf of Finland, and previously reported an advance to with four miles farther east. Capture of three towns on the Gulf of Finland indicated the whole western end of the Mannerheim Line had been caved in, and the anchor fortress at Kiovisto cut off.)

With shells falling in the city, the Russians redoubled their aid attacks on the city. Soviet planes came over in waves today, and the city was bombed several times. Sometimes up to 250 planes are over the city in a single day.

The infantry division that was isolated between Uomas and Syskyjarvi, fifteen miles from the Russian frontier and ten miles north of Lake Ladoga, and then cut to

Holland Prepared To Stand Off Any Invading Armies

Defenses Strengthened and Manpower Greatly Increased

By RILEY O'SULLIVAN

Amsterdam, Feb. 19. (AP)—With the Netherlands army building its manpower and gunpower around a basic system of water defenses, Holland in six months has reached a point where the high command speaks more confidently of the army's ability to stand off any invading forces.

Progress in the intensive training of a citizen army and construction of fortifications since the war broke out in Europe has been such that the general staff conducted a group of correspondents of the Netherlands and neutral countries on a three-day tour designed to demonstrate the effectiveness of the defenses.

Another purpose apparently was to combat doubts said to be held in some quarters abroad that the country was determined and ready to use all resources to resist invasion.

The picture gained on the trip along the Ditch-German frontier defenses is one of elaborate preparations, not fully realized even by the Dutch public.

Stronger in East

Lieutenant General Baron J. J. G. Baron van Voorst commanding the field army, boldly declared that any attacks from the east were sure to bog down against the fortified water lines of central Holland —even lightning motorized assaults accompanied by heavy aerial bombardment.

Further, he expressed confidence

Denied Catholic Sacraments, Many Continue Opposition to New Priest

Cleveland, Feb. 19 (AP) — Denied Catholic sacraments and rites, exiled parishoners of Holy Redeemer church gathered in sidewalk groups today and reiterated their opposition to the appointment of the Rev. Vincent Caruso as pastor.

Archbishop Joseph Schrembs interdicted the parish, ordered the church, parochial school and rectory closed after some 1,500 persons, many of them Italian born, prevented Father Caruso's installation Sunday.

Bespectacled and mild-mannered, slender Father Caruso, 35, sought the seclusion of St. Rocco's rectory, where he served as assistant pastor.

Bears No Ill Will

"I bear no ill will against anybody as a result of this unhappy situation," said the priest, a member of Our Lady of Mercy (Mercedarian) order. "I am sorry the people should suffer. What the archbishop will say, I will do."

Mike Shep, one of six councilmen of Holy Redeemer church, said the parishioners' reaction to the episcopal edict was a determination to oppose the appointment of any member of the order as pastor.

The Mercedarians founded Holy Redeemer parish in 1924 and membership has increased from 900 to some 1,100 families. The first pastor, the Rev. Martin Compagno, died last November.

Parishioners petitioned for the appointment of the Rev. Louis Loi Zedda, Father Compagno's assistant, as pastor of the east side church.

"At least ninety per cent of the parish signed the petition," said Shep. "It also asked the appointment of a secular (non-order) priest if Father Loi Zedda were not named.

"Since yesterday's affair, the parishioners I have seen said they would not accept any member of the order."

Archbishop Schrembs said the interdictal period is indefinite.

Mortal Sin for All

"As long as the parishioners are in the rebellious mood they are now in I can do nothing for them."

Washington Officials Worried Over the "Law of Retaliation"

By ANDRUE BERDING

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—Officials here, fearful of extensive injury to neutral rights and interests, are concerned over the progressive invocation of the "law of retaliation" in the European war.

The "law of retaliation" holds that if one belligerent violates international law in order to inflict injury on his enemy, the enemy has the right to violate international law to parry or return the injury.

The United States, from Secretary of State Madison in the early 1800's to Secretary of State Hull, has fought against the "law," on the ground that it is the neutral who becomes the victim of it.

Recent months have seen the "law" raising its formidable head. The British stop all shipments, even of food, to Germany. In retaliation, the Germans strew mines in the North Sea and English Channel. In reprisals, Britain decrees an embargo on German exports.

Who suffers? Largely the neutrals, whose ships go to the bottom or more trade is shattered.

Britain takes American and other neutral ships into contraband control ports for examination. In retaliation, Germany threatens to torpedo such ships en route to such ports—whether going voluntarily or not.

Britain sends destroyers into Norwegian territorial waters to take off the prisoners aboard the prison ship Altmark. Germany threatens all manner of retaliations.

To those officials in the state department who were in the service in 1914-1917 this is all familiar. At that time, the British designated an area between Scotland and Norway as an area of war. In retaliation, Germany declared all the waters surrounding Great Britain and Ireland to be an area of war.

World War Recalled

After two years of this came of shuttlecock with reprisals, there came the one that carried the United States into the World War. The British government gave notice on January 24, 1917, that—in retaliation against Germany's unrestricted

London, Feb. 19. (AP)—Britain today acknowledged loss by torpedo of the destroyer Daring with 157 men, but kept up a triumphal chorus praising the swashbuckling rescue of British prisoners from the German prisonship Altmark in defiance of Norwegian neutrality.

Sixth destroyer lost by Britain in the war, the Daring was the 28th of Great Britain's naval craft to go down in the intensifying warfare on the sea. Fourteen losses of the British fleet were capital ships, destroyers or submarines. Latest casualties before the Daring were two armed trawlers, Bowen and Fort Royal, sunk by an air raider Feb. 9.

9 Officers, 148 Men Drown

Nine officers, including her commander, S. A. Cooper, and 148 men went down with the 1,375-ton Daring, the admiralty disclosed, and one officer and four seamen were picked up.

A sister ship of the destroyer Duchess, lost earlier in the war, the Daring's main armament included four 4.7-inch guns, seven smaller guns and eight 21-inch torpedo tubes. She was built in 1932 at a cost of about $1,125,000 and was capable of the exceptional speed of 38.2 knots.

The admiralty did not disclose when or where the Daring was sunk.

(Germany reported the destroyer, a part of naval forces guarding a convoy, was sunk yesterday. At the same time, the German command declared, its navy sunk an undisclosed number of merchant steamers and tankers in attacks on three other convoys.)

While Britain cheered the action of her naval forces in the Altmark episode, neutrals on the fringe of the western war weighed the implications of the precedent set by the British destroyed Cossack's invasion of Norwegian waters. Great Britain termed the affair a move of urgent naval necessity.

(Norway's foreign minister, Halvdan Koht, announced at Oslo that the incident might lead to an appeal by Norway to the League of Nations or some other tribunal.)

Fear Air Battles

One neutral reaction was the fear expressed in the Belgian press that belligerent planes might seize the excuse of neutrality violations by the other side to fight battles in the air above the soil where armies clashed in 1914.

King Gustaf Says Sweden Cannot Go To Aid of Finns

Declares Direct Military Aid Would Likely Provoke War

Stockholm, Feb. 19 (AP) — King Gustaf of Sweden told his people today that much as he regretted it, the Swedish government had no alternative but to turn down Finland's request for direct military aid.

His declaration said that if Sweden gave Finland outright military assistance in her fight with Soviet Russia the country certainly would be drawn into war between the western powers, a risk which Sweden could not take.

Besides, he said, Finland can get more assistance from Sweden as a neutral than as a belligerent. The King's statement was an endorsement of the announcement by the government last Friday that it could not send the Swedish army to Finland.

"On my own initiative my cabinet met today to make this statement," the king proclaimed. "It is my wish to make clear for my Swedish people the responsible, severe position in which we now find ourselves.

"With admiration I have followed the heroic fight of Finland, our brother country, against superior numbers. From the beginning, Swe-

New Technique of Surgery Saves Life of Associated Press Writer

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

New York, Feb. 19 — A new technique of surgery, a fishing expedition through the arteries, probably has saved the life of Smith Reavis, distinguished editor and writer of the Associated Press. He is the man who inspired the Kellogg-Briand pact outlawing war.

Reavis' life was threatened last Saturday by a blood clot, or "saddle" thrombus, which had formed in the abdomen.

The clot lay at the point where the large artery descending from the heart to supply blood to the legs forks like an inverted capital letter Y to form two branches, one down each leg. A clot here is fatal, causing gangrene, unless quickly removed.

Occasionally surgeons have saved life when clots formed in various parts of the body by going directly in from the nearest point above to open the artery and lift out the obstruction.

Use Vienna Method

But there is a new method, originated in Vienna, said to have been tried not more than two or three times in this country. It is fishing with a wire, which enters some place else in the body and probes to the clot.

No instruments for such an operation were available at the post graduate hospital here when Reavis

Accuses Britain of Acting in Conflict with Own Principles

Oslo, Feb. 19 (AP)—Accusing the British government of acting in "open conflict with principles which it has itself so often proclaimed," Norway served notice tonight she might put Britain on trial by taking the Altmark case before the League of Nations "or some other tribunal."

The indication of this jittery neutral's course in the controversy arising from the rescue of 300 British prisoners from the German ship Altmark was given by Foreign Minister Halvdan Koht at a special session of the Storting (Parliament).

His reference to "some other tribunal" raised speculation in view of a suggestion in the Oslo "Shipping Times" that President Roosevelt be asked to head an investigating commission.

Claim Ship Within Rights

In a long review of the case, Koht said the Altmark was a state vessel and admitted she was armed with anti-aircraft guns but was perfectly within her rights to go through Norwegian waters.

The only illegal action of the German vessel, he said, was the use of her wireless in territorial limits and this was discontinued after Norwegian authorities told the captain of the infringement. He denied British assertions the Altmark had been searched at Bergen. The British have asserted the search was not thorough enough.

The entire Storting applauded the firm speech, in which Koht declared that "as far as possible Norway will defend her rights" but added that "Norway is a small state and cannot base her rights on power."

He declared that in any case world opinion would pass judgment on Britain's action and the fact that the Altmark was armed and had broadcast illegally did not justify the British disregard of Norway's rights as a neutral power.

Koht asserted that Lord Halifax,

One Killed, Nine Injured, When Gas Leaks into Room

Savage, Md., Feb. 19 (AP)—Leaking gas that killed one woman and left her two daughters unconscious exploded shortly after rescuers arrived today, causing injuries to seven other persons and starting a fire that destroyed the house.

Mrs. Thomas Ridgeway, 68, was asphyxiated and her two daughters, Mrs. Helen Linder, 30, and Miss Catherine Ridgeway, 26, were overcome.

Mrs. Linder told police she was awakened by the smell of gas about 1:30 a. m. and, unable to arouse her sister or mother, telephoned Dr. Frank E. Shipley. After phoning, she collapsed.

Dr. Shipley and Monroe Collison, brother-in-law of Mrs. Linder, broke into the home.

Mrs. Linder lay on the floor by the telephone and the other women were unconscious in their beds.

A call to Baltimore police brought Charles LeCallett, 25, and Arthur Sweeney, 47, members of a gas and electric company inhalator squad.

Richard Linder, husband of Mrs. Linder, and state patrolman W. M. Bowler and Mrs. May Swann, Dr. Shipley's sister, also arrived.

Dr. Shipley said the two daughters were revived but that Mrs. Ridgeway was dead. He was telephoning a Baltimore hospital to arrange removal of the women when a blast shattered the house.

"The next thing I knew, I was regaining my senses on the front lawn," said Dr. Shipley. He, Linder and Mrs. Swann were blown out of the house.

Mrs. Linder and Miss Ridgeway were taken to Baltimore for gas poisoning treatment, body injuries and shock, and LeCallett and Sweeney were treated for burns about the face and hands.

The others were treated for lacerations, bruises and shock.

A sidewall of the two and one-half story frame structure was blown out, the foundation was wrecked and the front porch fell in. Before firemen arrived the house burned.

Holland Prepared To Stand Off Any Invading Armies

Defenses Strengthened and Manpower Greatly Increased

By RILEY O'SULLIVAN

Amsterdam, Feb. 19. (AP)—With the Netherlands army building its manpower and gunpower around a basic system of water defenses, Holland in six months has reached a point where the high command speaks more confidently of the army's ability to stand off any invading forces.

Progress in the intensive training of a citizen army and construction of fortifications since the war broke out in Europe has been such that the general staff conducted a group of correspondents of the Netherlands and neutral countries on a three-day tour designed to demonstrate the effectiveness of the defenses.

Another purpose apparently was to combat doubts said to be held in some quarters abroad that the country was determined and ready to use all resources to resist invasion.

The picture gained on the trip along the Ditch-German frontier defenses is one of elaborate preparations, not fully realized even by the Dutch public.

Stronger in East

Lieutenant General Baron J. J. G. Baron van Voorst commanding the field army, boldly declared that any attacks from the east were sure to bog down against the fortified water lines of central Holland —even lightning motorized assaults accompanied by heavy aerial bombardment.

Further, he expressed confidence

Finnish Statement Says Positions Are Sound in Spite of Withdrawal from Mannerheim Line

Moscow, Feb. 20 (AP)—Soviet Russian military leaders reported early today their offensive on the Karelian Isthmus was "developing successfully," and reported the cleanup of several islands and coastal stations north of the Kiovisto fortified area.

Fourteen enemy planes were brought down in air combats, the regular army communique from Leningrad headquarters said.

Helsinki, Feb. 19 (AP)—Russian artillery tonight dropped shells regularly into Viipuri, now a definite part of the front as a result of Soviet penetration into the Mannerheim fortified zone, a reliable informant said.

"This does not mean the city is in danger of capture, but that it now is definitely a part of the front," the informant said.

Shortly before an official communique had told of the completed destruction of the Eighteenth Red army division northeast of Lake Ladoga by Finland's ghost-like fighters who for weeks parried and thrust until 18,000 Russians were dead or captured.

Russian Attack Repelled

The same communique which announced this major victory said Soviet attacks against the new Finnish Karelian Isthmus positions, to which the battered Mannerheim Line army had been compelled to withdraw, had been repelled.

With the Russians continuing their unrelenting attack, Finnish spokesmen said their new positions were "sound," despite the enforced withdrawal.

The Russians lost the equivalent of one battalion and six tanks in assaults on the Finn' new positions at the southwestern end of the line, the communique said.

The Russians' new positions from west of Summa toward Muollaa presumably permitted the Russians to bring their artillery closer to that Viipuri, Finland's second largest city and center of Karelian Christianity for 700 years, was subject to regular shellfire.

Viipuri Steadily Shelled

Heretofore the city has been twenty miles from the front, and only occasionally long-range artillery shells dropped into it.

(The Russian communique early today, reporting on Sunday fighting, said the Red army had advanced to within six miles of Viipuri on the Gulf of Finland, and previously reported an advance to with four miles farther east. Capture of three towns on the Gulf of Finland indicated the whole western end of the Mannerheim Line had been caved in, and the anchor fortress at Kiovisto cut off.)

With shells falling in the city, the Russians redoubled their aid attacks on the city. Soviet planes came over in waves today, and the city was bombed several times. Sometimes up to 250 planes are over the city in a single day.

Denied Catholic Sacraments, Many Continue Opposition to New Priest

Cleveland, Feb. 19 (AP) — Denied Catholic sacraments and rites, exiled parishoners of Holy Redeemer church gathered in sidewalk groups today and reiterated their opposition to the appointment of the Rev. Vincent Caruso as pastor.

Archbishop Joseph Schrembs interdicted the parish, ordered the church, parochial school and rectory closed after some 1,500 persons, many of them Italian born, prevented Father Caruso's installation Sunday.

Bespectacled and mild-mannered, slender Father Caruso, 35, sought the seclusion of St. Rocco's rectory, where he served as assistant pastor.

Bears No Ill Will

"I bear no ill will against anybody as a result of this unhappy situation," said the priest, a member of Our Lady of Mercy (Mercedarian) order. "I am sorry the people should suffer. What the archbishop will say, I will do."

Mike Shep, one of six councilmen of Holy Redeemer church, said the parishioners' reaction to the episcopal edict was a determination to oppose the appointment of any member of the order as pastor.

The Mercedarians founded Holy Redeemer parish in 1924 and membership has increased from 900 to some 1,100 families. The first pastor, the Rev. Martin Compagno, died last November.

Parishioners petitioned for the appointment of the Rev. Louis Loi Zedda, Father Compagno's assistant, as pastor of the east side church.

"At least ninety per cent of the parish signed the petition," said Shep. "It also asked the appointment of a secular (non-order) priest if Father Loi Zedda were not named.

"Since yesterday's affair, the parishioners I have seen said they would not accept any member of the order."

Archbishop Schrembs said the interdictal period is indefinite.

Mortal Sin for All

"As long as the parishioners are in the rebellious mood they are now in I can do nothing for them."

Washington Officials Worried Over the "Law of Retaliation"

By ANDRUE BERDING

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—Officials here, fearful of extensive injury to neutral rights and interests, are concerned over the progressive invocation of the "law of retaliation" in the European war.

The "law of retaliation" holds that if one belligerent violates international law in order to inflict injury on his enemy, the enemy has the right to violate international law to parry or return the injury.

The United States, from Secretary of State Madison in the early 1800's to Secretary of State Hull, has fought against the "law," on the ground that it is the neutral who becomes the victim of it.

Recent months have seen the "law" raising its formidable head. The British stop all shipments, even of food, to Germany. In retaliation, the Germans strew mines in the North Sea and English Channel. In reprisals, Britain decrees an embargo on German exports.

Who suffers? Largely the neutrals, whose ships go to the bottom or more trade is shattered.

Britain takes American and other neutral ships into contraband control ports for examination. In retaliation, Germany threatens to torpedo such ships en route to such ports—whether going voluntarily or not.

Britain sends destroyers into Norwegian territorial waters to take off the prisoners aboard the prison ship Altmark. Germany threatens all manner of retaliations.

To those officials in the state department who were in the service in 1914-1917 this is all familiar. At that time, the British designated an area between Scotland and Norway as an area of war. In retaliation, Germany declared all the waters surrounding Great Britain and Ireland to be an area of war.

World War Recalled

After two years of this came of shuttlecock with reprisals, there came the one that carried the United States into the World War. The British government gave notice on January 24, 1917, that—in retaliation against Germany's unrestricted

Bank Bandit Gets $1,500 in Daring Baltimore Holdup

Makes Manager Hand Out $500 Three Times; Misses $10,000

Baltimore, Feb. 19 (AP)—A daring daylight robber brandishing a .22 caliber pistol took $1,500 from a teller at the Union Trust Company's Westport branch bank today, but in his haste overlooked more than $10,000 in an open vault nearby.

G. E. Mergenthaler, branch manager-at-large for the Trust Company, told police he was substituting at the Westport branch today when the bandit entered shortly before noon, walked to the cage window and said:

"I want some money."

Mergenthaler thought the man was fooling, and "began to laugh," he told officers.

"This Is No Joke"

"This is no joke. I'm not kidding," the robber replied.

"Then he poked the gun through the cage and I knew it wasn't any joke after that. I asked how much he wanted, and he relied:

"'Gimme $500.'"

The teller said he reached down into a cash drawer and handed over a package containing $500, at the same time tripping an emergency burglar alarm.

"'Gimme some more,' he yelled," waving a gun. Mergenthaler said he handed out a second $500.

"Then he said: 'You got any more in there?' and when I hesitated he waved his gun again and yelled: 'come on, come on, or I'll blow your head off' so I gave him a third pack."

The bandit then ran from the bank and disappeared.

Eludes Police Cars

Police squad cars immediately sped to various points in the area, one on a tip that a man answering the robber's description had boarded a Baltimore and Ohio freight train at the Annapolis road crossing.

Another report said he fled in a coupe, but officers traced the license number given by a bystander and exonerated the owner.

The bandit was described as about 25, 5 feet 11, weighing about 145 pounds, with dark eyes and complexion, and wearing a dark overcoat.

Tension between Nazis and Norway Much Less Severe

Latter Still Indignant, but Not as Belligerent

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Berlin, Feb. 19 (AP)—Diplomatic tension between Germany and Norway eased decidedly tonight. There was evidence that foreign office correspondent over the British attack on the Nazi ship Altmark was being dictated by kindlier hands.

Norway's indignation over the British naval invasion of her neutral waters was stressed by authorized sources in the foreign office. The strong tenor of Oslo's demand for return of the British seamen freed from the Altmark and for full compensation was said to have impressed Berlin.

Moreover, there was an appreciation of the fact that the small Norwegian warship accompanying the Altmark was no match for the Cossack, fleet 1,870-ton British destroyer that engaged in hand-to-hand combat with the Altmark Friday night in Gjossingfjord.

In her original note to Norway, demanding full reparation, Germany had reserved the right to make "further demands."

German Anger Increases

However, there was no lessening of official Nazi wrath toward Britain, whose act remained branded throughout the reich as "piracy, murder and gangsterism." If anything, the anger of Germans flamed even higher when they heard that the British assert the Altmark fired the first shot.

"A criminal British lie," was the official commend.

Apart from the stewing diplomatic developments, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering announced that scores of thousands of farm hands were being brought from German-occupied parts of Poland to work German farms.

Germany's economic dictator said that 5,000 were arriving from Warsaw each day. Before long the Krakow area, it was said, is expected to supply 120,000 Polish farmhands to help fight Germany's battle to produce more food.

Factories Confiscated

In addition, a decree was announced confiscating all factories, farms and forest lands in the former Polish territory annexed to Germany. Excepted is property owned by German nationals before Sept. 1, date of the German invasion, and property in "Governor General Poland"—the part ruled by but not annexed to the Reich.

The confiscated property, the decree said, is to be managed by the state "to guarantee national sustenance."

Some appeasement was provided Nazi feelings, ruffled by the Altmark incident, with the official announcement that a British destroyer and an undisclosed number of convoyed merchantmen and tankers had been sunk yesterday.

"The British admiralty acknowledged the torpedoing of the 1,375-ton destroyer Daring, but denied the German claim of merchant losses in four convoys.)

German officials had no patience for the British contention that more than 300 imprisoned British seamen on the Altmark required her internment.

That question was absolutely beside the point, the Nazis said Britain her established a precedent for carrying prisoners of war through neutral waters last December, they said, pointing to the passage of the German freighter Dusseldorf through the Panama Canal in the hands of a British prize crew.

Captain of Altmark Says He Told Crew Not To Resist British Party

New York, Feb. 19 (AP)—Capt. Heinrich Dau of the German prison ship Altmark said in a radio interview in Stavanger, Norway, tonight that he had ordered his crew to offer no resistance to the British boarding party which freed more than 300 British seamen held captive on the vessel.

The German skipper in an international broadcast declared "we had no guns aboard the Altmark."

The veteran captain, former master of the liner Deutschland and twice decorated by his government during the World War, was interviewed by Mary Marvin Breckinridge, CBS representative, after attending the burial of six Altmark crewmen killed in the raid.

Caught Near Coast

Captain Dau said he was bound for Germany Friday night when three British planes flew overhead. He said that when a British destroyer appeared shortly afterward and signaled for him to turn away from shore he was only three quarters of a mile from the Norwegian coast.

A party from the destroyer then boarded his ship, Captain Dau said and added:

"I had given strict orders to my crew to offer no resistance.

"None of my men fired a single shot. I was determined to respect Norwegian neutrality at all costs.'"

Asked how his men were killed, he said:

"Some were killed while standing on the deck of the Altmark, some while they tried to escape over the ice, some while swimming in the water. Some were wounded after they had reached shore."

He said all the captive seamen had been taken off British merchantmen sunk by the scuttled pocket battleship Graf Spee. The boarding party, he said, remained on the Altmark about an hour and a half.

"They took the English seamen aboard the destroyer and left hurriedly. They appeared to be in a very nervous state all the time."

Thanked

Captain Dau said he spoke no word to the English naval officers but that before leaving the Altmark some of the captives "took the time and opportunity to express thanks for the treatment they received."

"They had the same rations that my own men had, and the same medical attention. Their quarters had been fitted up as well as possible under the circumstances."

The captain hesitated when asked what Norwegian ships in the vicinity were doing while his vessel was being boarded, then replied with some bitterness:

"They did . . . nothing . . . as far as I could see."

No Spring Floods Likely in State, John Weeks Says

Weather Bureau Chief Believes Maryland Out of Danger

Baltimore, Feb 19 (AP)—Chances of immediate spring floods in Maryland because of recent heavy rains and threatened river ice jams appeared remote today to John R. Weeks, Baltimore chief of the U. S. weather bureau.

"I judge from a general survey that there is no trouble of that kind in our section," he declared, pointing out that several periods of mild weather that permitted gradual thaws "have taken care of" the possibility of ice jams in the Potomac river.

At Frederick, where nearly on inch and a half of rain fell last night and today, the Monocacy river went eighteen feet above normal. There was no immediate danger of a flood, however, and no damage was reported.

At Williamsport, after a rainfall of more than an inch in the past twenty-four hours, there was no rise in the Potomac.

"In the Susquehanna river, any ice jams that might form would be up in Pennsylvania and there are so many dams on that stream that the jams would be well broken up before they could cause trouble down here," Weeks added.

"In the Potomac there may be some ice, but I don't believe it is enough to pile up."

He said water shortages had appeared in both eastern and western sections of the state despite heavy snow and rain since Jan. 1, but that reservoirs and sources of supply were improving and the danger seemed over.

Hull Trade Pact Debated in House Along Party Lines

Praised by Democrats, Flayed by Republicans as Ruinous

By JOSEPH H. SHORT

Washington, Feb. 19. (AP)—The debate on the Hull trade treaty program began today in the House, where Democrats praised the policy as a foundation for eventual peace and Republicans charged the administration with turning over the American markets to "peons and coolies."

The charge of "log-rolling" was bounced from Democrats to Republicans and back again and long statistical tables were cited by both sides.

None of the debate attracted very many listeners. When Rep. Doughton (D-NY) began the administration argument for extending the program for three years from next June 12, 76 of the chamber's members were in their seats, and the galleries were only half-filled.

Fight Chances Slim

Attendance on the floor reached such a low ebb later on that Rep. Robertson (D-Va) asked plaintively how there could be a good fight with only thirty fighters.

A vote on the extension resolution will not be reached until Friday or Saturday when a full turnout of members is expected. Many apparently are skipping the debate becauses the matter has been pretty well talked over in committee hearings and elsewhere.

(Under the trade pact act, which expires June 12 unless extended, the state department has been negotiating agreements with other nations for the reciprocal reduction of tariffs and other trade barriers. Such agreements go into effect without Senate ratification.)

Rep. Knutson (R-Minn) raised the cry that "coolies and peons in Cuba, wearing ragged breeches and tattered straw hats," were displacing American labor upder the administration plan.

All the Democratic speakers declared the program an instrument for peace.

"If we abandon our policy of trying to break the log-jam of unreasonably restrictive international trade barriers," shouted Robertson, "what is there to prevent a return to brute force?"

"Log-rolling"—the practice of members voting for one another's pet projects—was mentioned in the debate at almost the first word.

Doughton asked that there be no return to "log-rolling, horse-trading, back-scratching" days when the Republicans were in power and tariffs were being written in Congress.

"Log-rolling!" exclaimed Knutson, when he was recognized a short while later. "In all my years I've never seen so much pressure and log-rolling as there has been on this legislation."

The Minnesotan declared "the president has 5,000 jobs he has been holding back for this fight."

FREED FROM NAZI PRISON SHIP

Norway is complaining and Germany is indignant about British capture of the German prison ship Altmark in Norwegian waters, but these British sailors who were rescued are mighty happy about it. Three of the 326 seamen freed, they are pictured as they were brought to Leith, Scotland, by the destroyer Cossack.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

Associated Press Staff Writer
By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Norway is under caustic verbal fire from both London and Berlin as a result of the Altmark case.

Just what will come of it is not yet clear, but unquestionably the possibility that Norway, Sweden and even the low country neutrals soon may be drawn into war has been greatly increased by the incident.

A complete change in the European picture — a change which would fuse the two wars there into a single struggle of all but World war proportions — may be impending. That is of far greater significance than the legalistic argument in which Britain, Germany and Norway are involved.

Even before the German prison ship Altmark poked her nose into Norway's neutral waters, there were hints that Germany was bracing herself for a possible attack on her Baltic flank in the spring. Her army chief made a highly publicized inspection of Germany's Baltic front defenses. The Berlin press was rumbling with new threats of what would happen to Sweden and Norway if they permitted Allied forces to gain a foothold on their territory to aid Finland—and threaten Germany.

There was no intimation from London or Paris of any such intention. Not even the crumbling of Finland's vital defenses of the Karelian Isthmus seemed to move either the Allies or her Scandinavian neighbors to any open act of war against Russia.

Nevertheless, the pressure upon both Scandinavian countries to meet the impending crisis by throwing in their lot with Finland under possible assurances of full military cooperation from London and Paris must be great. What French or British diplomatic agents may be doing to shape the decision of the two countries is not disclosed.

British Admit Violation

Into that turmoil was thrown the Altmark incident. The British admitted violation of Norwegian neutral rights to free the British prisoners. The fury of German press resentment indicates that Berlin views the incident as more than it appears on the surface. If, as German spokesmen profess to believe, Allied policy calls for dragging the Scandinavian neutrals into the war before spring, the appearance of the Altmark in Norway's waters furnished an unexpected means to that end.

Regardless of international law considerations, London unquestionably expects to benefit from world sympathy with British action in this case.

Berlin's indignation over British violation of Norwegian and other neutral ships sunk by German torpedoes, mines or air bombs. Many of those sinkings have been without warning. Norwegian newspapers say that about 100 Norwegian lives have been lost this far in the war at sea. All of the deaths are attributed to German action, not Allied.

That circumstances have already tended to increase the pro-Allied sentiment which has been apparent in Scandanavia from the outbreak of the war. It seems that sooner or later Norway and Sweden must face the issue of where the best interests and greatest ultimate security lie in the German-Allied struggle.

London and Paris may want to force the issue in Scandanavia right now, before any German "spring victory drive gets going. That, at least, could explain British tactics in the Altmark case which put Norwegian neutrality in very hot water.

Japanese Still Holding Nanning

Hongkong, Feb. 20 (Tuesday (AP)—Chinese reports that the Japanese were withdrawing from Nanning, important Kwangsi province city, appeared today to have been exaggerated.

Although it was estimated that 1,500 trucks carrying Japanese troops and supplies had left Nanning on a southward journey before the weekend, a sizable garrison was left behind to defend the city, reliable sources stated.

In contrast to earlier Chinese claims that fighting was in progress in the immediate outskirts of Nanning, latest reports stated that the Chinese advance guards still were ten miles north of the city.

Farm Situation Is Better, Insurance Official Asserts

"Becoming Adjusted and Stabilized" He Tells House Committee

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—An official of the Prudential Insurance Company of America—which owns $45,000,000 of American farm land—expressed the opinion to the Monopoly Committee today that the "farm situation is becoming adjusted and stabilized" in the wake of a period of extensive foreclosures.

At the same time, however, R. R. Rogers, Prudential vice-president, warned that there were many uncertainties in the farm outlook, such as drought and war, and said it was "useless to believe the government can ever let go of the farmer's hand until some sound program has been developed that will enable him to go along on his own feet."

The Prudential official and G. Rogers, farm loan manager for Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, both testified that their companies were anxious to make more farm loans and to sell land acquired in foreclosures as rapidly as possible.

The Metropolitan official said he considered it desirable to dispose of owned property for "social" reasons, although he believed operation of farms through tenants, once the properties were rehabilitated, would be more profitable to the company than mortage lending.

R. R. Rogers said that aside from social considerations he considered "farming is for farmers" and told the committee that Prudential was selling 20 per cent of the land to owner each year and hoped that "five years will see us out of the farming business."

Holland Prepared

that the enemy would be unable to negotiate the ice, which the army demonstrated can be blown up and cut in channels to trap tanks and vehicles.

Lines along the German frontier are being strengthened, and bridges are mined and heavily-guarded.

In the south, we saw how machinegun posts can be concealed in stores and houses.

The gun opening of one of the larger posts was painted to give the appearance of a curtained window with a tulip plant on the sill.

Swampy Area Mined

The swampy Peel back of the river Maas, coordinated with fortified canal systems and new anti-tank canals, has been mined and ditched, and the region where even the natives have become lost and perished in the ooze was pronounced impassable. It looked like it.

Between the great rivers there is evidence of strongly fortified defenses.

The heaviest concentration of gun positions—casements and pill boxes—appeared to be trained on the highways of access through the Grebbe valley inundation defense and the historic fortress of Holland's waterline south from the Zuider Zee.

The soldiers manning anti-tank guns and machine guns in concrete and steel posts, riflemen in trenches, artillerymen in their camouflaged emplacements and detachments handling explosives for mining highways, bridges and frozen inundation basins showed that they were adept at handling the weapons and were grim about it.

The main coastal defenses ashore and afloat are concentrated at deep water approaches to principal harbors, but there are posts up and down the whole North Sea front to open fire upon any forces attempting a landing. Owing to the treacherous sandbanks and shallow water along most of the coast, only small vessels could reach the shore.

Division Cut to Pieces

The Finnish command said the unit was chopped up "piece by piece'," and the final blow struck yesterday when a "great victory" resulted in capture of the division's last stronghold. The division had received some reinforcement after it was trapped.

Latest official figures on booty captured included 100 tanks, fifty-eight guns of various types, twelve antitank guns, seventy-five motor vehicles, twenty-three tractors, forty-four field kitchens and more than sixty machine guns.

"Our losses were very small" said a press bureau announcement concerning the battle.

A Finnish press spokesman said one divisional flag which was captured showed a hemisphere, the city of Yaroslavl, the hammer and sickle, and a bayonet penetrating a map of the Baltic countries and Sweden, and the point resting in southern Norway.

Listed among the booty captured in yesterday's battle were twenty tanks, thirty-six guns, seventeen tractors, thirty-two field kitchens, twenty-five automobiles and 200 other vehicles of various types.

The Eighteenth was the third Red army division the Finns have reported destroyed. The others—the 163rd and 44th — were said by the Finnish command to have been cut to pieces in savage fighting in middle Finland during the unsuccessful Russian campaign to cut the country in two at its narrow "waistline."

Censorship prevented a description of the new line of resistance to which the Finns have withdrawn on the Karelian Isthmus. A high informant said that the line stretched from a point somewhere west of the village of Summa toward Lake Muola, but no further definition was possible.

The battle was reported continuing there tonight.

The Russian air force continued to sweep across Finland today in widespread bombing raids, and residents of Helsinki were driven to cover for one and one-half hours by alarms.

The high command said that twenty Russian bombers had been shot down during air raids yesterday, when Soviet planes were reported over Finland in greater numbers than on any day since the beginning of the war.

Official sources said a number of civilians had been killed and wounded, but did not estimate the total casualties.

Some neutral diplomatic sources, watching this latest development in deft shifts of pressure by belligerents, expressed the fear that a double squeeze play might force small countries closer to the issue of choosing sides in the war.

The spread of the western war southeastward, northwestward, or into the low countries, is viewed by many British as well as neutral observers as the principal chance for a break in the deadlock on the western front.

"It enlarges," he continued, "that the British government is of the opinion that it can neglect ordinary international law x x x the government cannot believe that the British government x x x will acknowledge that it is in open conflict with the principles which it has itself so many times proclaimed."

Meanwhile, the Altmark remained hard aground in peaceful Gjessingfjord, tending her wounded and waiting for Norway's decision whether to intern or free her. Seven German sailors are known dead as a result of the fight with the British boarders from the destroyer Cossack.

Koht's statement that the Altmark was armed with anti-aircraft guns answered much speculation on whether the prison ship was armed. Germany had denied that she carried guns.

The foreign minister said Norway did not know there were prisoners on board the Altmark. To the British minister's protest that this should have been a reason for Norway to stop the ship, Koht said:

It was in consequence of this last order that American diplomatic relations with Germany were severed.

Secretary of State Lansing made what is still regarded as a fundamental statement of American position on the "law of retaliation" in 1915, when he wrote Germany:

"A belligerent act of retaliation is per se an act beyond the law, and the defense of the act as retaliatory is an admission that it is illegal."

Makes Manager Hand Out $500 Three Times; Misses $10,000

Baltimore, Feb. 19 (AP)—A daring daylight robber brandishing a .22 caliber pistol took $1,500 from a teller at the Union Trust Company's Westport branch bank today, but in his haste overlooked more than $10,000 in an open vault nearby.

G. E. Mergenthaler, branch manager-at-large for the Trust Company, told police he was substituting at the Westport branch today when the bandit entered shortly before noon, walked to the cage window and said:

"I want some money."

Mergenthaler thought the man was fooling, and "began to laugh," he told officers.

"This Is No Joke"

"This is no joke. I'm not kidding," the robber replied.

"Then he poked the gun through the cage and I knew it wasn't any joke after that. I asked how much he wanted, and he relied:

"'Gimme $500.'"

The teller said he reached down into a cash drawer and handed over a package containing $500, at the same time tripping an emergency burglar alarm.

"'Gimme some more,' he yelled," waving a gun. Mergenthaler said he handed out a second $500."

"Then he said: 'You got any more in there?' and when I hesitated he waved his gun again and yelled: 'come on, come on, or I'll blow your head off' so I gave him a third pack."

The bandit then ran from the bank and disappeared.

Eludes Police Cars

Police squad cars immediately sped to various points in the area, one on a tip that a man answering the robber's description had boarded a Baltimore and Ohio freight train at the Annapolis road crossing.

Another report said he fled in a coupe, but officers traced the license number given by a bystander and exonerated the owner.

The bandit was described as about 25, 5 feet 11, weighing about 145 pounds, with dark eyes and complexion, and wearing a dark overcoat.

Hull Trade Pact Debated in House Along Party Lines

Praised by Democrats, Flayed by Republicans as Ruinous

By JOSEPH H. SHORT

Washington, Feb. 19. (AP)—The debate on the Hull trade treaty program began today in the House, where Democrats praised the policy as a foundation for eventual peace and Republicans charged the administration with turning over the American markets to "peons and coolies."

The charge of "log-rolling" was bounced from Democrats to Republicans and back again and long statistical tables were cited by both sides.

None of the debate attracted very many listeners. When Rep. Doughton (D-NY) began the administration argument for extending the program for three years from next June 12, 76 of the chamber's members were in their seats, and the galleries were only half-filled.

Fight Chances Slim

Attendance on the floor reached such a low ebb later on that Rep. Robertson (D-Va) asked plaintively how there could be a good fight with only thirty fighters.

A vote on the extension resolution will not be reached until Friday or Saturday when a full turnout of members is expected. Many apparently are skipping the debate because the matter has been pretty well talked over in committee hearings and elsewhere.

(Under the trade pact act, which expires June 12 unless extended, the state department has been negotiating agreements with other nations for the reciprocal reduction of tariffs and other trade barriers. Such agreements go into effect without Senate ratification.)

Rep. Knutson (R-Minn) raised the cry that "coolies and peons in Cuba, wearing ragged breeches and tattered straw hats," were displacing American labor upder the administration plan.

All the Democratic speakers declared the program an instrument for peace.

"If we abandon our policy of trying to break the log-jam of unreasonably restrictive international trade barriers," shouted Robertson, "what is there to prevent a return to brute force?"

"Log-rolling"—the practice of members voting for one another's pet projects—was mentioned in the debate at almost the first word.

Doughton asked that there be no return to "log-rolling, horse-trading, back-scratching" days when the Republicans were in power and tariffs were being written in Congress.

"Log-rolling!" exclaimed Knutson, when he was recognized a short while later. "In all my years I've never seen so much pressure and log-rolling as there has been on this legislation."

The Minnesotan declared "the president has 5,000 jobs he has been holding back for this fight."

Farm Situation Is Better, Insurance Official Asserts

"Becoming Adjusted and Stabilized" He Tells House Committee

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—An official of the Prudential Insurance Company of America—which owns $45,000,000 of American farm land—expressed the opinion to the Monopoly Committee today that the "farm situation is becoming adjusted and stabilized" in the wake of a period of extensive foreclosures.

At the same time, however, R. G. Rogers, Prudential vice-president, warned that there were many uncertainties in the farm outlook, such as drought and war, and said it was "useless to believe the government can ever let go of the farmer's hand until some sound program has been developed that will enable him to go along on his own feet."

The Prudential official and G. Rogers, farm loan manager for Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, both testified that their companies were anxious to make more farm loans and to sell land acquired in foreclosures as rapidly as possible.

The Metropolitan official said he considered it desirable to dispose of owned property for "social" reasons, although he believed operation of farms through tenants, once the properties were rehabilitated, would be more profitable to the company than mortage lending.

R. R. Rogers said that aside from social considerations he considered "farming is for farmers" and told the committee that Prudential was selling 20 per cent of the land to owner each year and hoped that "five years will see us out of the farming business."

Tension between Nazis and Norway Much Less Severe

Latter Still Indignant, but Not as Belligerent

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Berlin, Feb. 19 (AP)—Diplomatic tension between Germany and Norway eased decidedly tonight. There was evidence that foreign office correspondent over the British attack on the Nazi ship Altmark was being dictated by kindlier hands.

Norway's indignation over the British naval invasion of her neutral waters was stressed by authorized sources in the foreign office. The strong tenor of Oslo's demand for return of the British seamen freed from the Altmark and for full compensation was said to have impressed Berlin.

Moreover, there was an appreciation of the fact that the small Norwegian warship accompanying the Altmark was no match for the Cossack, fleet 1,870-ton British destroyer that engaged in hand-to-hand combat with the Altmark Friday night in Gjossingfjord.

In her original note to Norway, demanding full reparation, Germany had reserved the right to make "further demands."

German Anger Increases

However, there was no lessening of official Nazi wrath toward Britain, whose act remained branded throughout the reich as "piracy, murder and gangsterism." If anything, the anger of Germans flamed even higher when they heard that the British assert the Altmark fired the first shot.

"A criminal British lie," was the official commend.

Apart from the stewing diplomatic developments, Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering announced that scores of thousands of farm hands were being brought from German-occupied parts of Poland to work German farms.

Germany's economic dictator said that 5,000 were arriving from Warsaw each day. Before long the Krakow area, it was said, is expected to supply 120,000 Polish farmhands to help fight Germany's battle to produce more food.

Factories Confiscated

In addition, a decree was announced confiscating all factories, farms and forest lands in the former Polish territory annexed to Germany. Excepted is property owned by German nationals before Sept. 1, date of the German invasion, and property in "Governor General Poland"—the part ruled by but not annexed to the Reich.

The confiscated property, the decree said, is to be managed by the state "to guarantee national sustenance."

Some appeasement was provided Nazi feelings, ruffled by the Altmark incident, with the official announcement that a British destroyer and an undisclosed number of convoyed merchantmen and tankers had been sunk yesterday.

"The British admiralty acknowledged the torpedoing of the 1,375-ton destroyer Daring, but denied the German claim of merchant losses in four convoys.)

German officials had no patience for the British contention that more than 300 imprisoned British seamen on the Altmark required her internment.

That question was absolutely beside the point, the Nazis said Britain her established a precedent for carrying prisoners of war through neutral waters last December, they said, pointing to the passage of the German freighter Dusseldorf through the Panama Canal in the hands of a British prize crew.

Captain of Altmark Says He Told Crew Not To Resist British Party

New York, Feb. 19 (AP)—Capt. Heinrich Dau of the German prison ship Altmark said in a radio interview in Stavanger, Norway, tonight that he had ordered his crew to offer no resistance to the British boarding party which freed more than 300 British seamen held captive on the vessel.

The German skipper in an international broadcast declared "we had no guns aboard the Altmark."

The veteran captain, former master of the liner Deutschland and twice decorated by his government during the World War, was interviewed by Mary Marvin Breckinridge, CBS representative, after attending the burial of six Altmark crewmen killed in the raid.

Caught Near Coast

Captain Dau said he was bound for Germany Friday night when three British planes flew overhead. He said that when a British destroyer appeared shortly afterward and signaled for him to turn away from shore he was only three quarters of a mile from the Norwegian coast.

A party from the destroyer then boarded his ship, Captain Dau said and added:

"I had given strict orders to my crew to offer no resistance.

"None of my men fired a single shot. I was determined to respect Norwegian neutrality at all costs.'"

Asked how his men were killed, he said:

"Some were killed while standing on the deck of the Altmark, some while they tried to escape over the ice, some while swimming in the water. Some were wounded after they had reached shore."

He said all the captive seamen had been taken off British merchantmen sunk by the scuttled pocket battleship Graf Spee. The boarding party, he said, remained on the Altmark about an hour and a half.

"They took the English seamen aboard the destroyer and left hurriedly. They appeared to be in a very nervous state all the time."

Thanked

Captain Dau said he spoke no word to the English naval officers but that before leaving the Altmark some of the captives "took the time and opportunity to express thanks for the treatment they received."

"They had the same rations that my own men had, and the same medical attention. Their quarters had been fitted up as well as possible under the circumstances."

The captain hesitated when asked what Norwegian ships in the vicinity were doing while his vessel was being boarded, then replied with some bitterness:

"They did . . . nothing . . . as far as I could see."

Weather Bureau Chief Believes Maryland Out of Danger

Baltimore, Feb 19 (AP)—Chances of immediate spring floods in Maryland because of recent heavy rains and threatened river ice jams appeared remote today to John R. Weeks, Baltimore chief of the U. S. weather bureau.

"I judge from a general survey that there is no trouble of that kind in our section," he declared, pointing out that several periods of mild weather that permitted gradual thaws "have taken care of" the possibility of ice jams in the Potomac river.

At Frederick, where nearly on inch and a half of rain fell last night and today, the Monocacy river went eighteen feet above normal. There was no immediate danger of a flood, however, and no damage was reported.

At Williamsport, after a rainfall of more than an inch in the past twenty-four hours, there was no rise in the Potomac.

"In the Susquehanna river, any ice jams that might form would be up in Pennsylvania and there are so many dams on that stream that the jams would be well broken up before they could cause trouble down here," Weeks added.

"In the Potomac there may be some ice, but I don't believe it is enough to pile up."

He said water shortages had appeared in both eastern and western sections of the state despite heavy snow and rain since Jan. 1, but that reservoirs and sources of supply were improving and the danger seemed over.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

Associated Press Staff Writer
By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Norway is under caustic verbal fire from both London and Berlin as a result of the Altmark case.

Just what will come of it is not yet clear, but unquestionably the possibility that Norway, Sweden and even the low country neutrals soon may be drawn into war has been greatly increased by the incident.

A complete change in the European picture — a change which would fuse the two wars there into a single struggle of all but World war proportions — may be impending. That is of far greater significance than the legalistic argument in which Britain, Germany and Norway are involved.

Even before the German prison ship Altmark poked her nose into Norway's neutral waters, there were hints that Germany was bracing herself for a possible attack on her Baltic flank in the spring. Her army chief made a highly publicized inspection of Germany's Baltic front defenses. The Berlin press was rumbling with new threats of what would happen to Sweden and Norway if they permitted Allied forces to gain a foothold on their territory to aid Finland—and threaten Germany.

There was no intimation from London or Paris of any such intention. Not even the crumbling of Finland's vital defenses of the Karelian Isthmus seemed to move either the Allies or her Scandinavian neighbors to any open act of war against Russia.

Nevertheless, the pressure upon both Scandinavian countries to meet the impending crisis by throwing in their lot with Finland under possible assurances of full military cooperation from London and Paris must be great. What French or British diplomatic agents may be doing to shape the decision of the two countries is not disclosed.

British Admit Violation

Into that turmoil was thrown the Altmark incident. The British admitted violation of Norwegian neutral rights to free the British prisoners. The fury of German press resentment indicates that Berlin views the incident as more than it appears on the surface. If, as German spokesmen profess to believe, Allied policy calls for dragging the Scandinavian neutrals into the war before spring, the appearance of the Altmark in Norway's waters furnished an unexpected means to that end.

Regardless of international law considerations, London unquestionably expects to benefit from world sympathy with British action in this case.

Berlin's indignation over British violation of Norwegian and other neutral ships sunk by German torpedoes, mines or air bombs. Many of those sinkings have been without warning. Norwegian newspapers say that about 100 Norwegian lives have been lost this far in the war at sea. All of the deaths are attributed to German action, not Allied.

That circumstances have already tended to increase the pro-Allied sentiment which has been apparent in Scandanavia from the outbreak of the war. It seems that sooner or later Norway and Sweden must face the issue of where the best interests and greatest ultimate security lie in the German-Allied struggle.

London and Paris may want to force the issue in Scandanavia right now, before any German "spring victory drive gets going. That, at least, could explain British tactics in the Altmark case which put Norwegion neutrality in very hot water.

Japanese Still Holding Nanning

Hongkong, Feb. 20 (Tuesday (AP)—Chinese reports that the Japanese were withdrawing from Nanning, important Kwangsi province city, appeared today to have been exaggerated.

Although it was estimated that 1,500 trucks carrying Japanese troops and supplies had left Nanning on a southward journey before the weekend, a sizable garrison was left behind to defend the city, reliable sources stated.

In contrast to earlier Chinese claims that fighting was in progress in the immediate outskirts of Nanning, latest reports stated that the Chinese advance guards still were ten miles north of the city.

that the enemy would be unable to negotiate the ice, which the army demonstrated can be blown up and cut in channels to trap tanks and vehicles.

Lines along the German frontier are being strengthened, and bridges are mined and heavily-guarded.

In the south, we saw how machinegun posts can be concealed in stores and houses.

The gun opening of one of the larger posts was painted to give the appearance of a curtained window with a tulip plant on the sill.

Swampy Area Mined

The swampy Peel back of the river Maas, coordinated with the fortified canal systems and new anti-tank canals, has been mined and ditched, and the region where even the natives have become lost and perished in the ooze was pronounced impassable. It looked like it.

Between the great rivers there is evidence of strongly fortified defenses.

The heaviest concentration of gun positions—casements and pill boxes—appeared to be trained on the highways of access through the Grebbe valley inundation defense and the historic fortress of Holland's waterline south from the Zuider Zee.

The soldiers manning anti-tank guns and machine guns in concrete and steel posts, riflemen in trenches, artillerymen in their camouflaged emplacements and detachments handling explosives for mining highways, bridges and frozen inundation basins showed that they were adept at handling the weapons and were grim about it.

The main coastal defenses ashore and afloat are concentrated on deep water approaches to principal harbors, but there are posts up and down the whole North Sea front to open fire upon any forces attempting a landing. Owing to the treacherous sandbanks and shallow water along most of the coast, only small vessels could reach the shore.

"From the first moment, however, I told Finland that they should not rely on Swedish help in the form of military intervention. With sorrow in my heart and upon major consideration I came to the comprehension that we in the present position must keep to this standpoint.

"I am absolutely sure that if Sweden now intervened in Finland we would run the risk of being involved in war not only with Russia but also in the war between the great powers and I cannot take the responsibility."

mine and submarine warfare—an area in the North Sea adjacent to Germany, Denmark and the Netherlands would be "rendered dangerous to all shipping" by operations against the enemy.

Germany then announced that she would "meet the illegal measures of her enemies by forcibly preventing after February 1, 1917, in a zone around Great Britain, France, Italy and in the eastern Mediterranean all navigation, that of neutrals included, from and to England and from and to France, etc. All ships met within that zone will be sunk."

It was in consequence of this last order that American diplomatic relations with Germany were severed.

Secretary of State Lansing made what is still regarded as a fundamental statement of American position on the "law of retaliation" in 1915, when he wrote Germany:

"A belligerent act of retaliation is per se an act beyond the law, and the defense of the act as retaliatory is an admission that it is illegal."

Keeping Ideals "In the Gang" Is Discussed

Youth with Good Habits Should Endeavor To Keep Them

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D

The sheltered boy or girl, young man or woman, on being thrown among groups of other youths with very different habits and ideals, may be very unhappy and have serious problems of adjustment. Such is pretty sure to happen to this student in high school and college.

Suppose, for instance, he is exposed to a group in which violently profane and obscene language is the rule, in which nearly all the ideals he has cherished are ridiculed and shattered in the free-for-all discussions. Suppose he never smoked or drank but finds everybody else of the group does one or both.

One way out for him is to be a "jolly good fellow," and be like all the rest, even attempting to outdo them in the ways he always has considered wrong. Even then he may have serious inner conflicts and have to turn his back on those who always had meant most to him. The chances are that he won't find much happiness in this direction.

But will it be possible for him to keep his old habits and ideals, and still be accepted by the group, even liked by them? It is quite possible, indeed, as some outstanding young men and women are demonstrating every day.

Not "Divinely Elected"

In order to succeed he will have to discipline himself so as not to think of himself as "divinely elected" to reform other people. He will have to learn to mind his own business. Accordingly, when he is ridiculed, he will not count himself a martyr.

The reason so many of these sheltered youth, with fine ideals and habits, have such a hard time of it is because they can't keep from taking a holier-than-thou attitude toward others whose ideals and habits are different from theirs. Even if the young idealist says nothing to condemn the rest, he can't keep from the condemnation of silent eloquence. He will speak loudly by the way he breathes and looks. If, therefore, he condemns the gang, they interpret him as setting himself up as superior to them. Do you and I like anyone else who suggests to us we are inferior to him?

First Is Resolve

Let any youth with ideals and habits higher than those of most of the persons with whom he must mingle, build first in himself the resolve that he will stick to these ideals and habits because he considers them of great value to him. But let him assume the attitude, "This is what I believe in; this is the way I want to do. All I ask is that others will allow me to maintain my private ideals and habits, that they let me be my individual self. I will try to treat them so. I will do to them as I would have them do to me."

Any youth who disciplines himself to abide strictly by this principle will soon discover that others with whom he mingles, those having ideals and habits different from his, will not make it hard for him. Rather, they will tend to honor and respect him for his individuality. Then, if he proves himself gracious and likable in other ways, some may come to admire him so that they will, on their own accord, choose to emulate him.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Would you advise a sharp voice and piercing look to deter the young child from specific wrong acts?

A. No; the hand is more effective. Better keep the voice and looks free from such associations so they might convey affection and companionship.

Sees Britain Fighting Reds with Germany

Washington, Feb. 19. (AP)—A prediction that Great Britain might find herself allied with Germany in a common war against Russia before peace comes again to Europe was made here by Maj. Gen. J. F. C. Fuller, a British military analyst.

In an article written for Army Ordnance, publication of the Army Ordnance Association, General Fuller expressed the view that Stalin's most profitable course was to "aim at a Franco-British defeat and risk a German victory and, further, whilst the clinch in the west continues, to advance into Iraq, Iran, and Afghanistan and establish himself so firmly in those countries that should Germany win the war, he can at once move into India and prevent the Japanese from occupying that country."

It is therefore possible, he said, "before this war enters its final lap, that India and not the western front will become the decisive area of British action." If this is the case, he added, "since it is more important for Great Britain to preserve what she has than to create what her rulers apparently are set upon, namely, a nonautarchic world, she will be compelled to come to terms with Germany."

Find Bodies of Two Farmers in Snow

Lubbock, Tex., Feb. 19 (AP)—Searchers here found the bodies of two farmers who perished in the blinding blizzard which swept across north Texas last Friday.

Bill Walker, 37, and L. J. Martin, 22, died in a snow drift a half mile from the safety of a ranch house south of here.

They had been sought since they left their stalled automobile.

Meanwhile an army of workers toiled in day and night shifts to clear highways. All snwobound travelers were believed safe but scores of automobiles remained marooned.

A bright sun melted the snow rapidly in exposed places.

Death's Pattern in Traffic

II. Carelessness between Intersections

AP Feature Service

Ghicago, Feb. 19—Approximately 4,250 persons were killed in head-on, between-intersection automobile accidents in 1938—one-fifth of all the rural deaths; one-twentieth of the city deaths.

This type of accident, obviously, can occur only if one or both vehicles is, at least partially, on the wrong side of the road, says W. G. Johnson, chief statistician of the National Safety Council.

SECOND IN SERIES

Studying the reasons why drivers get "on the wrong side," Johnson found that:

1. Thirty per cent of the accidents were on curves.

2. Thirty per cent were on grades.

3. 7 percent were caused by attempting to improperly pass another car.

"Apparently a large number of drivers ought to be licensed to drive on straight level stretches only, judging from these statistics," says Johnson.

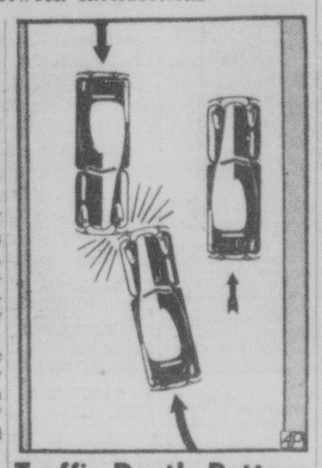
THE PATTERN that death follows when it strikes between intersections is this:

A driver pulls out of his lane of traffic, either to improperly pass another car, or for another reason, on a grade or a curve.

A car comes unexpectedly from the opposite direction. They meet head-on.

TO AVOID THIS PATTERN: Don't pass on grades or curves, but stay in your own lane of traffic. Don't follow too closely behind another car. Even if you are not attempting to pass on a grade or a curve keep a close watch on the fellow coming from the opposite direction, to be warned if he tries that traffic maneuver and thus endangers your safety.

Tomorrow: Death's pattern when cars leave road.



Traffic Death Pattern

Two vehicles between intersections meet head-on when driver pulls out of traffic lane.

FALSE TEETH
That Loosen
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

Sees Britain Fighting Reds with Germany

Washington, Feb. 19. (AP)—A prediction that Great Britain might find herself allied with Germany in a common war against Russia before peace comes again to Europe was made here by Maj. Gen. J. F. C. Fuller, a British military analyst.

In an article written for Army Ordnance, publication of the Army Ordnance Association, General Fuller expressed the view that Stalin's most profitable course was to "aim at a Franco-British defeat and risk a German victory and, further, whilst the clinch in the west continues, to advance into Iraq, Iran, and Afghanistan and establish himself so firmly in those countries that should Germany win the war, he can at once move into India and prevent the Japanese from occupying that country."

It is therefore possible, he said, "before this war enters its final lap, that India and not the western front will become the decisive area of British action." If this is the case, he added, "since it is more important for Great Britain to preserve what she has than to create what her rulers apparently are set upon, namely, a nonautarchic world, she will be compelled to come to terms with Germany."

Find Bodies of Two Farmers in Snow

Lubbock, Tex., Feb. 19 (AP)—Searchers here found the bodies of two farmers who perished in the blinding blizzard which swept across north Texas last Friday.

Bill Walker, 37, and L. J. Martin, 22, died in a snow drift a half mile from the safety of a ranch house south of here.

They had been sought since they left their stalled automobile.

Meanwhile an army of workers toiled in day and night shifts to clear highways. All snwobound travelers were believed safe but scores of automobiles remained marooned.

A bright sun melted the snow rapidly in exposed places.

Death's Pattern in Traffic

II. Carelessness between Intersections

AP Feature Service

Chicago, Feb. 19—Approximately 4,250 persons were killed in head-on, between-intersection automobile accidents in 1938—one-fifth of all the rural deaths; one-twentieth of the city deaths.

This type of accident, obviously, can occur only if one or both vehicles is, at least partially, on the wrong side of the road, says W. G. Johnson, chief statistician of the National Safety Council.

Studying the reasons why drivers get "on the wrong side," Johnson found that:

1. Thirty per cent of the accidents were on curves.
2. Thirty per cent were on grades.
3. 7 percent were caused by attempting to improperly pass another car.

"Apparently a large number of drivers ought to be licensed to drive on straight level stretches only, judging from these statistics," says Johnson.

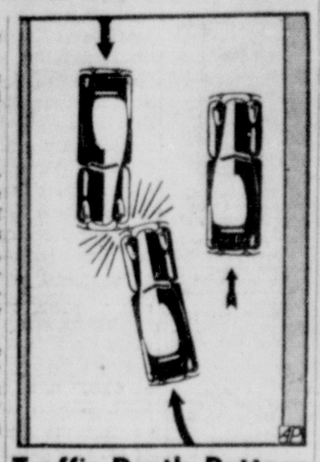
THE PATTERN that death follows when it strikes between intersections is this:

A driver pulls out of his lane of traffic, either to improperly pass another car, or for another reason, on a grade or a curve.

A car comes unexpectedly from the opposite direction. They meet head-on.

TO AVOID THIS PATTERN: Don't pass on grades or curves, but stay in your own lane of traffic. Don't follow too closely behind another car. Even if you are not attempting to pass on a grade or a curve keep a close watch on the fellow coming from the opposite direction, to be warned if he tries that traffic maneuver and thus endangers your safety.

Tomorrow: Death's pattern when cars leave road.



Traffic Death Pattern

Two vehicles between intersections meet head-on when driver pulls out of traffic lane.

FALSE TEETH
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

An Advanced Step

STUDY of a program of national policy to get country out of the mess it is in, has not been completed with the report submitted to the Republican National Committee by Dr. Glen Frank's program committee, although tremendous assistance has been given it by the labors of the group. The report provides food for still further study, and it is good, solid food at that, which will be duly digested to the end that the party at its national convention in June will be better enabled to round out a strong platform that will appeal to a perplexed and distressed people.

The report represents exhaustive research by many brilliant minds into authoritative facts, thus giving the advantage of a thorough-going, dependable analysis not possible in the haste to which the platform is usually subjected in the hurly-burly of a national convention of many delegates. Herein the Republican party has taken an advanced step, which should prove exceedingly helpful in the formulation of national policy.

As the report states, New Deal experimentation has been a miserable failure, despite the good intentions with which it was originally backed. The thing to do is to correct the mistakes and halt the failure that has been sending the national economy downward before it is too late. The report sifts the causes, examines the authoritative facts and points to the obvious remedies. A substantial reduction in the alarming increase in governmental expenses along with the determination to keep out of war, which this nation simply cannot afford, are the top suggestions, and these are patent to all who are aware of the troubles with which we have been afflicted.

The various topics call for further discussion, and this will naturally be prompted by the report as the campaign rolls onward. By the time the national convention is held, the facts will have been so well examined and the needful steps so well grounded that a platform in keeping with conditions and needs can be expected in consequence.

Third Term Voting Assured

NATIONAL POLITICS will present a strange anomaly in April. Certainly in Wisconsin on April 2, probably in Illinois on April 9, President Roosevelt will actually be running for a third presidential nomination although keeping his sphinxlike silence as to his true intention.

The president has permitted this situation to develop. His course is not forthright and, on that account, seriously open to attack.

The highly dramatic and important voting is scheduled in the Illinois and Wisconsin presidential preference primaries. Vice President Garner will be the president's opponent before those who vote as Democrats, in both cases.

It is fair and square for the president to invite voters' support of him, in a case wherein he may use their action in behalf of some other man for whom they would not vote? The vice president is displaying political courage of a high order, by boldly facing tests that may eliminate him.

The Wisconsin Garner-Roosevelt vote is certain to occur. There remains some doubt in Illinois, because a signed certificate of candidacy has not been filed for the president. That requirement of Illinois law has been complied with by Garner. The president may yet withdraw his name or it may be stricken from the ballot by court order.

Finland's Verdun

NONE was so optimistic as to believe that Finland—fighting against odds of fifty to one—could vanquish the invading Russians unless it received prompt and formidable aid, or unless Russia cracked up from within. The aid has not come, and Stalin appears to be as firmly entrenched as ever in the Kremlin.

The Karelian Isthmus has now become Finland's Verdun, and the prospect for Finland and Scandinavia is dark indeed.

Washington dispatches tend to confirm the ominous news from Helsinki. According to information received in diplomatic circles, "a huge new Soviet army composed of trained troops is being transported northward from three Russian areas toward the Finnish frontier, apparently in preparation for the biggest Russian drive of the war." Washington also hears that Britain and France are preparing three divisions, one Polish, one French and one Canadian, for possible transport to the Finnish front.

This report is denied in British and French diplomatic quarters—where it is obliged to be denied, of course, because neither Britain nor France is technically at war with Russia. It is impossible to say whether London and Paris believe that the psychological moment has arrived for openly recognizing Russia as Germany's ally and acting accordingly. But there are unmistakable signs—particularly in the Near East—that the western democracies realize that Stalin and Hitler are their twin foes.

Will definite "merging" of the two wars come before Russia's hordes overrun Finland? And if it does come, where will Great Britain and France find the reserves to offset the vastly greater man-power of the Nazi-Communist coalition? These are questions which must cause grave anxiety in London and Paris, as well as in Helsinki. But, as the Finns stand at their Verdun, men and women in Europe's three embattled democracies well may remember the earlier and original Verdun. There free men, fighting for their homes, said: "They shall not pass"—and the hordes of invaders did not pass.

Dispatches describe the Finnish army as "fighting with its back to the wall." This brings back another World war memory. In the great German spring drive of 1918, Ludendorff's troops seemed only a few days' fighting away from the Channel ports and complete victory over the Allies. Then the cool, grim Scotsman, Haig, gave his "backs to the wall" order, directing all forces under his command to stand and die, if need be, in the positions which they then held. The order ended with this matter-of-fact masterpiece: "There will be no further retirement."

There was no further retirement. The Germans didn't get an inch nearer to the Channel ports—although British casualties ran as high as 40,000 a day in that tenacious, triumphant back-to-the-wall stand.

But the Finns cannot lose men at the rate of 40,000 a day, or at anything approaching that figure. Reinforced man-power is what the warriors of the North need and need desperately. Will they get it in time?

Broadway Fades

BROADWAY, according to recent advices from New York, is not what it used to be. That one-time center of New York night life, the American symbol of metropolitan gayety and lavishness, has been watching its prestige dwindle in recent years until at last the glamor of the Great White Way is only a parody of its former greatness.

The fine hotels and theaters for which Broadway once was noted are disappearing. They have been crowded out largely by the cheapest type of night club and other enterprises usually associated with traveling tent shows. In short, Broadway seems to have become a scarcely glorified Bowery and looks it, with results exceedingly damaging to the street's pocketbook as well as its pride.

What happened is obvious. Broadway reached the pinnacle of its prestige with the introduction of electricity that helped to make it the brightest street in the world, and so Broadway has proceeded on the principle that lights and yet more lights are the secret of success.

But while this was going on, property owners and persons interested in other streets were organizing to promote the orderly development of their thoroughfares. Broadway made no effective effort to control ugliness. Instead, it encouraged all that was blatant and offensive to the eye in the form of street signs and building fronts. The result is that in comparison to Fifth Avenue in New York and Michigan Boulevard in Chicago, Broadway is now insignificant.

Probably every city in the country has something to learn from this demonstration of how orderly and intelligent street development pays for itself many times over.

Bitter Medicine

"WE have learned the lesson that when opportunities for profit diminish, opportunities for jobs likewise disappear."

So declares the American Federation of Labor's executive council.

It is not that the statement is true that brings it so much to the fore, but the fact that the Federation is impressing it upon those bright-eyed New Dealers who have been preaching other theories.

"We urge," the council further said, "that all government actions that tend unnecessarily to discourage business expansion cease and that a positive effort be made to encourage greater industrial activity."

The general discouragement of business by the New Deal is seen in another part of the same report.

"At this time," it states, "there are not enough jobs in private industry to go around. This is largely due, in our opinion, to the fact that lack of confidence has stunted business growth and expansion."

All of which must be very bitter medicine to those enthusiastic left-wingers who have been following their crack-pot theories in government service for the past six years and more.

Alexander Woollcott is reported to have organized a society the members of which are pledged to shoot—and shoot to kill—all persons who misuse the word "flair." It will be a flop. There are not that many pistols.

What's worrying the Balkans, it appears, is that both the Allies and Germany seem desirous of pouring Rumanian oil on Europe's troubled waters.

Speaking Right Out

By MARSHALL MASLIN

You can't always say what you think. You can think what you want and theoretically you can SAY what you think, but in practice the wise man guards his tongue.

Marshall Maslin

You don't walk up to a strange woman on the street and say, "Pardon me, Miss, but your slip is showing." . . . A woman might say that and be thanked for it. But not a man. . . . And even if you had any ideas on the subject, you wouldn't turn to a woman alongside of you in a street car and inform her that she should never wear that shade of green and that a woman with a big nose like hers shouldn't wear a hat that makes it so prominent. . . . You wouldn't say that to a man, either. He might say what he thought of your or poke YOUR nose.

Some doctors have a bad time. Wherever they go they size up people, analyze them and mentally make diagnoses. But they can't say anything—except to some close friend or to a patient—because it would sound too much like "drumming up trade."

So you can't make critical remarks, but you can even make friendly ones, either.

Unless you're a nice old lady—and nice old ladies enjoy privileges that nobody else does—you can't compliment that pretty stranger on her lovely eyes. She knows she has fine eyes, she knows you know it, and that's enough. . . . You can compliment some man on the fine fit of the suit he is wearing and ask him where he got it—and just possibly what it cost. You can tell him you envy him his hearty and infectious laugh. But you cannot tell him it's a pity he has no sense of humor.

There are a lot of things you can't do in this world and saying what you think to strangers is one of them. . . . And though it's a pity perhaps it's just as well. Our judgment isn't good enough to allow us to say what we think to anyone we chance to meet. We'd probably offend more than we please—and besides, we do not pay enough compliments to the friends we have now

Confidence Is Saroyan's Key

BY EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

A young taxicab driver was telling me the other day all about a play he is writing. I thought his plot had real possibilities. He was a likely looking lad, gesturing dramatically with his right hand as he tooled his car through the traffic with his left, outlining his story with instinctive dramatic emphasis. I missed some of the fine points as we zipped around the El pillars and was relieved when the curtain fell and we were still rolling. He said he was worried about his grammar; it wasn't so good. I told him grammarians were a dime a dozen; that if he really had a play it would be easy enough to rig the grammar to fit. He said, "O. K. See you on Broadway."

William Saroyan, the Armenian boy from Fresno, scribbling tortured thoughts in flop-houses, East and West, using a park bench for a studio, wouldn't have lured many bets to win, place or show as a playwright. But here's "The Time of Your Life" on Broadway and here's young Mr. Saroyan away out in front not only as a playwright but as an all-around writing man.

In a recent newspaper interview, he gives his rules for knocking out a hit play. In sum, they are that you must be a good looker and listener, you must write a great deal, don't be afraid to measure yourself, don't hesitate to tell the world! and above all "don't take anybody's course on the drama."

Methods Vary

Working habits and methods of creative men in all the arts are as varied as the wild flowers in a meadow. One is a precisionist who works like a lapidary, re-shaping, cutting, polishing refining endlessly. Another leads a generally disordered life, shoots the works when he feels like it, and may, in the smoke and steam of creative chaos, produce a work of exquisite perfection. The "how" of it all doesn't seem to be as important as what the writer or painter has to start with. And, unless I am mistaken, none of the Olympians has ever paused to remark, "I owe all I have achieved to Professor Baker's course on the drama," or "Whoozis on The Srt of Useful Writing."

* * *

Nothing Alien to Bard

The plays of Shakespeare boiled up out of taprooms, tavern brawls, dirty deals around the court, current political intrigue, the Main Stem gossip of London, the murder of the day, brass-rail philosophy, wars, skullduggery, love, hate, lust, greed, racketeering, roadside poesy, the tinkling of a lute or the belch of a cannon—nothing was alien to the bard's cosmic genius.

Suppose Shakespeare had come out of Time's suspense file in the person of my young friend, the taxicab driver. He would have a much better chance to see life than did Shakespeare, holding horses for the gentry in front of the Blackfriar's Theatre. One of his mentors might advise him first to get a good typewriter with red and black ribbon shift, properly to denote "Upper RE," and "lower LE" for stage entrances on a copper-plate script. Then he might be advised to spend all his spare time in the library reading books on the technique of playwriting and, if possible, to enroll in some good dramatic course.

Another might suggest that he just root around town a lot, mix everywhere, keep a sharp ear for shadings and subtleties of speech and a sharp eye for type behaviour, and keep a pencil and a scrap of paper handy to catch anything when it was hot, and maybe get up in the middle of the night to blacksmith out a stretch of dialogue when the creative urge is on the uptake. The lattter was Mr. Saroyan's method and here he is in a new stand-out in the theatre.

* * *

Only a Suggestion

This is no boost for sloppy writing or a disordered life. It is merely to suggest, in line with the Scriptures, that if you are of the elect, all things will "be added unto you." By which I mean the technics of Professor Baker and the life. The latter are, of course, useful tools. But it depends on who's using them. You can outfit one man with everything Hammacher and Schlemmer has in stock and he couldn't build a dog house. You can give another man a hammer and a saw and he'll build you a mansion. The above, of course, applies to genius. Those of us who are not in that picture, will do well to mind our syntax, but I think we are kidding ourselves if we think that has anything to do with creative writing.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

MAY REPRESENT KING

The Earl of Elgin is most prominently mentioned by British press as possible successor to Lord Tweedsmuir as Canada's governor general.

CUTHBERT! HOW COULD YOU?

Sound Policy of National Defense Is Advocated by American Legionnaires

(By An American Legionnaire)

High school graduates, and even graduates of some colleges, after studying the conventional history taught from the typical American history book, are left with an incomplete if not totally wrong picture of our military affairs. This government has found it necessary to used its armed forces in a military way in 118 of the 164 years since 1775. Most fortunately, in all its conflicts to date, the United States has always been successful. Let us correct a mal-impression lest we be blinded by pride.

It is fair and just, without casting the slightest slur on the gallant courage of our defenders, to sum up the principal reasons for our success under these headings: the grace of God; fortutious circumstances; the strength and good will of our friends and allies; and the weakness and unpreparedness of our enemies. This record promises no guarantee of the future. In fact no intelligent persons would take similar chances in ordering his business or in planning his family life.

Vigorously Supported

For years the American Legion and others have vigorously supported a comprehensive program of Americanism. "Americanism", as heard over the radio, in schools, and from pulpits, is supported by both labor and business. It boils down to the statement that as an American you enjoy the greatest privileges and advantages, ever devised by man, but to continue these you must assume corresponding obligations. Everything worth having has its cost. Something for nothing just does not exist.

Following the World war, the National Defense act set up a policy of three component forces for protection: a standing army and navy, the National Guard, and an army and navy reserve. It is intended that these three components should at all times provide adequate protection with the least expense and with the minimum disruption of our family and business life.

Question of Adequacy

This is true if only the intent had been carried through to completion. What is adequate protection? The weapons of defense have become extremely complicated. Can you imagine men taking their hunting guns from over the mantel and opposing such arms as are in the hands of German soldiers who have hewed their devastating path through Poland? Do you for one minute think that the material now in the hands of the French, the British, the Japanese, or even the Spanish armies, could be turned out in a week, a month, or even a year?

During what are now historical times, strife affected directly only the professional soldiers. Those times are past. Now when a nation is drawn into a war, the whole nation, all of its men, women and children who are able to perform service, are involved. There was a time when a nation at war quit when its money gave out and material and man power could no longer be purchased. Now a nation at war preempts the total man power and all the material it possesses.

Must Admit Possibility

In times of world crisis as now exists, another situation arises. Industry is humming with orders born of anxiety and strife. Under these conditions no employer is anxious or very willing to see his organization disrupted by employees taking from fifteen to ninety days for military training. But, unless you can convince yourself that there will be no more wars, no move striving by the "have nots" to gain, if necessary by force, some part of that which is possessed by the "haves", unless you can successfully argue against all present day evidence, then you must admit that there is the possibility of armed clashes requiring millions of our own young men.

There is no room for argument that men without training will fill the bill. If ever it should come again to pass that the United States is involved in a major conflict are you willing to see three men killed or maimed in doing a job where with proper training the same results could be obtained with the loss of perhaps one man?

For Sound Policy

To prevent this we urge you now, during National Defense week, to make your demands heard for a sound policy of adequate national defense. See that a sound policy of national defense becomes a vital matter in your churches and in other meeting places. See that the obligations of an American citizen are thoroughly explained in your schools where American citizens are made. Encourage, help and inspire those around you, who sometime may be called upon to defend you and yours, to prepare themselves seriously and thoroughly. In so doing you will be helping them, if ever called, to a fairer chance of living and at the same time you will be providing protection for all you hold most dear.

Repeal of Silver Act Sensible

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

There is before the Senate for consideration at this session, a bill to repeal the provisions of the Silver Purchase act dealing with foreign silver.

Of all the foolish experiments undertaken by the Roosevelt administration, few surpass that of the silver buying policy. When the law was passed, committing the government to acquisition of both domestic and foreign silver at an artificially stepped-up price, a number of fine-spun theoretical arguments were advanced in favor of it. The buying power of the people of China, of Mexico, of India, in particular, and of other countries in general, would be greatly enhanced, we were told, so that American exports inevitably would soar.

Well, if anything of the sort has resulted, the records fail to disclase it. What they do show is that we not only greatly stimulated silver production all over the world, but brought old silver out of vaults and cupboards and dining rooms all over the universe to take advantage of the inflated price. As a result, we have spent a vast sum of tax money buying silver we have no use for, and that without accomplishing any good purpose at all. The only beneficiaries have been the domestic silver miners in a handful of western states who have profited from the rich subsidy.

Of course, the sensible thing to do would be to repeal the entire act. But the power of the silver bloc being what it is, there is little hope that such a step could be taken during this session. But if it isn't possible to take away the domestic subsidy, surely no valid argument remains against retirement from the foreign market.

Precious Heritage

From the Parkersburg, W. Va., Sentinel

Despite assurances by government officials at odd moments since the European war began, the American press would not be permitted to go on unchecked if this country ever became involved in war, Prof. Harold L. Cross of Columbia University and special counsel to the American Publishers' association, predicted recently. Professor Cross contended that emergencies, even those as great as war itself, do not justify curtailment of press freedom; that the very liberty under which newspapers operate today was obtained during an emergency.

It is unlikely that any section of the press would turn to treason during a war involving this country. Freedom of the press remains a precious American heritage. The United States can never afford to dispense with it, even temporarily.

The Will To Save

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The large scale spending of the Roosevelt Administration is usually defended on the ground that, wisely on unwisely, the president has spent in an effort to restore prosperity.

There is, undoubtedly, much of truth in this. Beyond this, however, the record indicates pretty definitely that the president is by nature a spender. Whether his training and familiarity with money have made him scornful of economy, or whether some other explanation must be found for his attitude toward money, the fact remains that he is the easiest spender we ever had in the White House.

Take the record of White House cost, for example. Here is a phase of government spending which has nothing whatever to do with emergency, unemployment or pump priming. Yet extravagance there has been on the same ascending scale as it has been elsewhere in the government.

In 1933, according to official figures, the White House cost $369,000; in 1934, $359,000; 1935, $458,000; 1936, $425,000; 1937, $502,000; 1938, $479,000; 1939, $2,370,000. For 1940, this item is carried at $2,872,000, and for 1941 is estimated at $3,573,000.

As the economist, John T. Flynn, points out, "here is an increase in Mr. Roosevelt's own department of 1,000 percent."

On the Record

By United States Senator Harry F. Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia

The bonds the Government of the United States is issuing daily are made possible because of the property the people of the 48 States have accumulated. The Federal Government is using the credit of the people of the 48 States to bond them, frequently without their consent.

Poll Questions Not Quite Fair

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

Washington, Feb. 19.—In spite of their conductor's spirited defense of them, I still don't like Gallup polls except in simple choices of well recognized issues close to the end of a political campaign such as—"Are you going to vote for Mr. Roosevelt or Senator Taft?"

Take the most recent one, which Dr. Gallup says is significant insofar as it indicates among other things, the general tendency of sentiment at the moment to favor "advocates rather than the opponents of a Japanese embargo." Referring to other "studies" by his Institute of Public Opinion, Dr. Gallup says, "By last year boycott sentiment had grown to the point where two-thirds of the voters were in favor of a movement to stop buying Japanese goods."

* * *

Is Absurd

Now, obviously, the latter statement is absurd. Dr. Gallup's sampling of opinion of infinitesimal groups may indicate trends, but it certainly does not warrant him in saying that "two-thirds of the voters" want to stop buying anything from Japan—any more than he is now justified in intimating that the present general tendency is for an embargo denying the right to any American to sell anything to Japan.

To understand these polls accurately, it is necessary to examine the phrasing of the questions they ask. In this latest 'study" of public opinion on the "embargo", the question asked was: "Do you think our government should forbid the sale of arms, airplanes, gasoline and other war materials to Japan?"

* * *

Highly Technical

What are "war materials?" It is a highly technical question which few laymen could answer. As the question is phrased (omitting "gasoline" which is in a doubtful category), it asks if we should cease to sell "arms, airplanes and other war materials" would mean when thus connected, "such as arms and airplanes"—that is, explosives, shells, guns, tanks or, in other words, "direct" war materials or "lethal" weapons.

If that is a correct interpretation of the question, it is highly misleading for a poll. We are not selling Japan any direct war materials. There is no law preventing it, but our government has none the less effectively "forbidden" it through a so-called "moral" embargo.

* * *

Fooled by Form

The vice in this form of question is that if the person questioned thinks we ought not to sell weapons and are doing so, he is fooled by its form into an answer which Dr. Gallup has interpreted to mean that he favors an embargo—a very different matter.

On that point, Japan is our third or fourth biggest customer both in imports and exports. The vitally important item in our exports is cotton. Through Mr. Wallace's price policies, we have been so rapidly losing our foreign market for our leading Southern farm product that we can ill afford to drop this important customer.

* * *

Economic Lunacy

We have recently sold increasing amounts of scrap metal and petroleum products to Japan. Cotton is indirectly and in small quantities used in explosives. Scrap metal is a more important ingredient of munitions, but it is also used for other things and so also is petroleum, but only high octane gasoline is much used in airplanes. To cut off all these exports without discrimination as to their use for war would be an act of economic lunacy.

To embroil ourselves unnecessarily in the Far East would be military and naval as well as economic lunacy. It would weaken us in the Atlantic and in the defense of the Americas, require at least double the military and naval force we need for the Western hemisphere alone and promises to us no substantial gain whatever. If the American people polled are given the facts, or even a fair statement of the issue, it is a safe bet that no seventy-five percent of them will vote for an embargo against Japan.—(Distributed by United States Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

An Advanced Step

STUDY of a program of national policy to get country out of the mess it is in, has not been completed with the report submitted to the Republican National Committee by Dr. Glen Frank's program committee, although tremendous assistance has been given it by the labors of the group. The report provides food for still further study, and it is good, solid food at that, which will be duly digested to the end that the party at its national convention in June will be better enabled to round out a strong platform that will appeal to a perplexed and distressed people.

The report represents exhaustive research by many brilliant minds into authoritative facts, thus giving the advantage of a thorough-going, dependable analysis not possible in the haste to which the platform is usually subjected in the hurly-burly of a national convention of many delegates. Herein the Republican party has taken an advanced step, which should prove exceedingly helpful in the formulation of national policy.

As the report states, New Deal experimentation has been a miserable failure, despite the good intentions with which it was originally backed. The thing to do is to correct the mistakes and halt the failure that has been sending the national economy downward before it is too late. The report sifts the causes, examines the authoritative facts and points to the obvious remedies. A substantial reduction in the alarming increase in governmental expenses along with the determination to keep out of war, which this nation simply cannot afford, are the top suggestions, and these are patent to all who are aware of the troubles with which we have been afflicted.

The various topics call for further discussion, and this will naturally be prompted by the report as the campaign rolls onward. By the time the national convention is held, the facts will have been so well examined and the needful steps so well grounded that a platform in keeping with conditions and needs can be expected in consequence.

Third Term Voting Assured

NATIONAL POLITICS will present a strange anomaly in April. Certainly in Wisconsin on April 2, probably in Illinois on April 9, President Roosevelt will actually be running for a third presidential nomination although keeping his sphinxlike silence as to his true intention.

The president has permitted this situation to develop. His course is not forthright and, on that account, seriously open to attack.

The highly dramatic and important voting is scheduled in the Illinois and Wisconsin presidential preference primaries. Vice President Garner will be the president's opponent before those who vote as Democrats, in both cases.

It is fair and square for the president to invite voters' support of him, in a case wherein he may use their action in behalf of some other man for whom they would not vote? The vice president is displaying political courage of a high order, by boldly facing tests that may eliminate him.

The Wisconsin Garner-Roosevelt vote is certain to occur. There remains some doubt in Illinois, because a signed certificate of candidacy has not been filed for the president. That requirement of Illinois law has been complied with by Garner. The president may yet withdraw his name or it may be stricken from the ballot by court order.

Finland's Verdun

NONE was so optimistic as to believe that Finland—fighting against odds of fifty to one—could vanquish the invading Russians unless it received prompt and formidable aid, or unless Russia cracked up from within. The aid has not come, and Stalin appears to be as firmly entrenched as ever in the Kremlin.

The Karelian Isthmus has now become Finland's Verdun, and the prospect for Finland and Scandinavia is dark indeed.

Washington dispatches tend to confirm the ominous news from Helsinki. According to information received in diplomatic circles, "a huge new Soviet army composed of trained troops is being transported northward from three Russian areas toward the Finnish frontier, apparently in preparation for the biggest Russian drive of the war." Washington also hears that Britain and France are preparing three divisions, one Polish, one French and one Canadian, for possible transport to the Finnish front.

This report is denied in British and French diplomatic quarters—where it is obliged to be denied, of course, because neither Britain nor France is technically at war with Russia. It is impossible to say whether London and Paris believe that the psychological moment has arrived for openly recognizing Russia as Germany's ally and acting accordingly. But there are unmistakable signs—particularly in the Near East—that the western democracies realize that Stalin and Hitler are their twin foes.

Will definite "merging" of the two wars come before Russia's hordes overrun Finland? And if it does come, where will Great Britain and France find the reserves to offset the vastly greater man-power of the Nazi-Communist coalition? These are questions which must cause grave anxiety in London and Paris, as well as in Helsinki. But, as the Finns stand at their Verdun, men and women in Europe's three embattled democracies well may remember the earlier and original Verdun. There free men, fighting for their homes, said: "They shall not pass"—and the hordes of invaders did not pass.

Dispatches describe the Finnish army as "fighting with its back to the wall." This brings back another World war memory. In the great German spring drive of 1918, Ludendorff's troops seemed only a few days' fighting away from the Channel ports and complete victory over the Allies. Then the cool, grim Scotsman, Haig, gave his "backs to the wall" order, directing all forces under his command to stand and die, if need be, in the positions which they then held. The order ended with this matter-of-fact masterpiece: "There will be no further retirement."

There was no further retirement. The Germans didn't get an inch nearer to the Channel ports—although British casualties ran as high as 40,000 a day in that tenacious, triumphant back-to-the-wall stand.

But the Finns cannot lose men at the rate of 40,000 a day, or at anything approaching that figure. Reinforced man-power is what the warriors of the North need and need desperately. Will they get it in time?

Broadway Fades

BROADWAY, according to recent advices from New York, is not what it used to be. That one-time center of New York night life, the American symbol of metropolitan gayety and lavishness, has been watching its prestige dwindle in recent years until at last the glamor of the Great White Way is only a parody of its former greatness.

The fine hotels and theaters for which Broadway once was noted are disappearing. They have been crowded out largely by the cheapest type of night club and other enterprises usually associated with traveling tent shows. In short, Broadway seems to have become a scarcely glorified Bowery and looks it, with results exceedingly damaging to the street's pocketbook as well as its pride.

What happened is obvious. Broadway reached the pinnacle of its prestige with the introduction of electricity that helped to make it the brightest street in the world, and so Broadway has proceeded on the principle that lights and yet more lights are the secret of success.

But while this was going on, property owners and persons interested in other streets were organizing to promote the orderly development of their thoroughfares. Broadway made no effective effort to control ugliness. Instead, it encouraged all that was blatant and offensive to the eye in the form of street signs and building fronts. The result is that in comparison to Fifth Avenue in New York and Michigan Boulevard in Chicago, Broadway is now insignificant.

Probably every city in the country has something to learn from this demonstration of how orderly and intelligent street development pays for itself many times over.

Bitter Medicine

"WE have learned the lesson that when opportunities for profit diminish, opportunities for jobs likewise disappear."

So declares the American Federation of Labor's executive council.

It is not that the statement is true that brings it so much to the fore, but the fact that the Federation is impressing it upon those bright-eyed New Dealers who have been preaching other theories.

"We urge," the council further said, "that all government actions that tend unnecessarily to discourage business expansion cease and that a positive effort be made to encourage greater industrial activity."

The general discouragement of business by the New Deal is seen in another part of the same report.

"At this time," it states, "there are not enough jobs in private industry to go around. This is largely due, in our opinion, to the fact that lack of confidence has stunted business growth and expansion."

All of which must be very bitter medicine to those enthusiastic left-wingers who have been following their crack-pot theories in government service for the past six years and more.

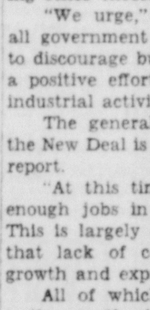
Alexander Woollcott is reported to have organized a society the members of which are pledged to shoot—and shoot to kill—all persons who misuse the word "flair." It will be a flop. There are not that many pistols.

What's worrying the Balkans, it appears, is that both the Allies and Germany seem desirous of pouring Rumanian oil on Europe's troubled waters.

Speaking Right Out

By MARSHALL MASLIN

You can't always say what you think. You can think what you want and theoretically you can SAY what you think, but in practice the wise man guards his tongue.



Marshall Maslin

You don't walk up to a strange woman on the street and say, "Pardon me, Miss, but your slip is showing." . . . A woman might say that and be thanked for it. But not a man. . . . And even if you had any ideas on the subject, you wouldn't turn to a woman alongside of you in a street car and inform her that she should never wear that shade of green and that a woman with a big nose like hers shouldn't wear a hat that makes it so prominent. . . . You wouldn't say that to a man, either. He might say what he thought of your or poke YOUR nose.

Some doctors have a bad time. Wherever they go they size up people, analyze them and mentally make diagnoses. But they can't say anything—except to some close friend or to a patient—because it would sound too much like "drumming up trade."

So you can't make critical remarks, but you can even make friendly ones, either.

Unless you're a nice old lady—and nice old ladies enjoy privileges that nobody else does—you can't compliment that pretty stranger on her lovely eyes. She knows she has fine eyes, she knows you know it, and that's enough. . . . You can compliment some man on the fine fit of the suit he is wearing and ask him where he got it—and just possibly what it cost. You can tell him you envy him his hearty and infectious laugh. But you cannot tell him it's a pity he has no sense of humor.

There are a lot of things you can't do in this world and saying what you think to strangers is one of them. . . . And though it's a pity perhaps it's just as well. Our judgment isn't good enough to allow us to say what we think to anyone we chance to meet. We'd probably offend more than we please—and besides, we do not pay enough compliments to the friends we have now.

Confidence Is Saroyan's Key

Edwin C. Hill

A young taxicab driver was telling me the other day all about a play he is writing. It thought his plot had real possibilities. He was a likely looking lad, gesturing dramatically with his right hand as he tooled his car through the traffic with his left, outlining his story with instinctive dramatic emphasis. I missed some of the fine points as we zipped around the El pillars and was relieved when the curtain fell and we were still rolling. He said he was worried about his grammar; it wasn't so good. I told him grammarians were a dime a dozen; that if he really had a play it would be easy enough to rig the grammar to fit. He said, "O. K. See you on Broadway."

William Saroyan, the Armenian boy from Fresno, scribbling tortured thoughts in flop-houses, East and West, using a park bench for a studio, wouldn't have lured many bets to win, place or show as a playwright. But here's "The Time of Your Life" on Broadway and here's young Mr. Saroyan away out in front not only as a playwright but as an all-around writing man.

In a recent newspaper interview, he gives his rules for knocking out a hit play. In sum, they are that you must be a good looker and listener, you must write a great deal, don't be afraid to measure yourself, don't hesitate to tell the world! and above all "don't take anybody's course on the drama."

Methods Vary

Working habits and methods of creative men in all the arts are as varied as the wild flowers in a meadow. One is a precisionist who works like a lapidary, re-shaping, cutting, polishing refining endlessly. Another leads a generally disordered life, shoots the works when he feels like it, and may, in the smoke and steam of creative chaos, produce a work of exquisite perfection. The "how" of it all doesn't seem to be as important as what the writer or painter has to start with. And, unless I am mistaken, none of the Olympians has ever paused to remark, "I owe all I have achieved to Professor Baker's course on the drama," or "Whoozis on 'The Srt of Useful Writing.'"

* * *

Nothing Alien to Bard

The plays of Shakespeare boiled up out of taprooms, tavern brawls, dirty deals around the court, current political intrigue, the Main Stem gossip of London, the murder of the day, brass-rail philosophy, wars, skullduggery, love, hate, lust, greed, racketeering, roadside poesy, the tinkling of a lute or the belch of a cannon—nothing was alien to the bard's cosmic genius.

Suppose Shakespeare had come out of Time's suspense file in the person of my young friend, the taxicab driver. He would have a much better chance to see life than did Shakespeare, holding horses for the gentry in front of the Blackfriar's Theatre. One of his mentors might advise him first to get a good typewriter with red and black ribbon shift, properly to denote "Upper RE," and "lower LE" for stage entrances on a copper-plate script. Then he might be advised to spend all his spare time in the library reading books on the technique of playwriting and, if possible, to enroll in some good dramatic course.

Another might suggest that he just root around town a lot, mix everywhere, keep a sharp ear for shadings and subtleties of speech and a sharp eye for type behaviour, and keep a pencil and a scrap of paper handy to catch anything when it was hot, and maybe get up in the middle of the night to blacksmith out a stretch of dialogue when the creative urge is on the uptake. The lattter was Mr. Saroyan's method and here he is in a new stand-out in the theatre.

* * *

Only a Suggestion

This is no boost for sloppy writing or a disordered life. It is merely to suggest, in line with the Scriptures, that if you are of the elect, all things will "be added unto you." By which I mean the technics of Professor Baker and the life. The latter are, of course, useful tools. But it depends on who's using them. You can outfit one man with everything Hammacher and Schlemmer has in stock and he couldn't build a dog house. You can give another man a hammer and a saw and he'll build you a mansion. The above, of course, applies to genius. Those of us who are not in that picture, will do well to mind our syntax, but I think we are kidding ourselves if we think that has anything to do with creative writing.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

CUTHBERT! HOW COULD YOU?

(By An American Legionnaire)

High school graduates, and even graduates of some colleges, after studying the conventional history taught from the typical American history book, are left with an incomplete if not totally wrong picture of our military affairs. This government has found it necessary to used its armed forces in a military way in 118 of the 164 years since 1775. Most fortunately, in all its conflicts to date, the United States has always been successful. Let us correct a mal-impression lest we be blinded by pride.

It is fair and just, without casting the slightest slur on the gallant courage of our defenders, to sum up the principal reasons for our success under these headings: the grace of God; fortutious circumstances; the strength and good will of our friends and allies; and the weakness and unpreparedness of our enemies. This record promises no guarantee of the future. In fact no intelligent persons would take similar chances in ordering his business or in planning his family life

Vigorously Supported

For years the American Legion and others have vigorously supported a comprehensive program of Americanism. "Americanism", as heard over the radio, in schools, and from pulpits, is supported by both labor and business. It boils down to the statement that as an American you enjoy the greatest privileges and advantages, ever devised by man, but to continue these you must assume corresponding obligations. Everything worth having has its cost. Something for nothing just does not exist.

Following the World war, the National Defense act set up a policy of three component forces for protection: a standing army and navy, the National Guard, and an army and navy reserve. It is intended that these three components should at all times provide adequate protection with the least expense and with the minimum disruption of our family and business life.

Question of Adequacy

This is true if only the intent had been carried through to completion. What is adequate protection? The weapons of defense have become extremely complicated. Can you imagine men taking their hunting guns from over the mantel and opposing such arms as are in the hands of German soldiers who have hewed their devastating path through Poland? Do you for one minute think that the material now in the hands of the French, the British, the Japanese, or even the Spanish armies, could be turned out in a week, a month, or even a year?

During what are now historical times, strife affected directly only the professional soldiers. Those times are past. Now when a nation is drawn into a war, the whole nation, all of its men, women and children who are able to perform service, are involved. There was a time when a nation at war quit when its money gave out and material and man power could no longer be purchased. Now a nation at war preempts the total man power and all the material it possesses.

Must Admit Possibility

In times of world crisis as now exists, another situation arises. Industry is humming with orders born of anxiety and strife. Under these conditions no employer is anxious or very willing to see his organization disrupted by employees taking from fifteen to ninety days for military training. But, unless you can convince yourself that there will be no more wars, no move striving by the "have nots" to gain, if necessary by force, some part of that which is possessed by the "haves", unless you can successfully argue against all present day evidence, then you must admit that there is the possibility of armed clashes requiring millions of our own young men.

There is no room for argument that men without training will fill the bill. If ever it should come again to pass that the United States is involved in a major conflict are you willing to see three men killed or maimed in doing a job where with proper training the same results could be obtained with the loss of perhaps one man?

For Sound Policy

To prevent this we urge you now, during National Defense week, to make your demands heard for a sound policy of adequate national defense. See that a sound policy of national defense becomes a vital matter in your churches and in other meeting places. See that the obligations of an American citizen are thoroughly explained in your schools where American citizens are made. Encourage, help and inspire those around you, who sometime may be called upon to defend you and yours, to prepare themselves seriously and thoroughly. In so doing you will be helping them, if ever called, to a fairer chance of living and at the same time you will be providing protection for all you hold most dear.

Repeal of Silver Act Sensible

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

There is before the Senate for consideration at this session, a bill to repeal the provisions of the Silver Purchase act dealing with foreign silver.

Of all the foolish experiments undertaken by the Roosevelt administration, few surpass that of the silver buying policy. When the law was passed, committing the government to acquisition of both domestic and foreign silver at an artificially stepped-up price, a number of fine-spun theoretical arguments were advanced in favor of it. The buying power of the people of China, of Mexico, of India, in particular, and of other countries in general, would be greatly enhanced, we were told, so that American exports inevitably would soar.

Well, if anything of the sort has resulted, the records fail to disclase it. What they do show is that we not only greatly stimulated silver production all over the world, but brought old silver out of vaults and cupboards and dining rooms all over the universe to take advantage of the inflated price. As a result, we have spent a vast sum of tax money buying silver we have no use for, and that without accomplishing any good purpose at all. The only beneficiaries have been the domestic silver miners in a handful of western states who have profited from the rich subsidy.

Of course, the sensible thing to do would be to repeal the entire act. But the power of the silver bloc being what it is, there is little hope that such a step could be taken during this session. But if it isn't possible to take away the domestic subsidy, surely no valid argument remains against retirement from the foreign market.

Precious Heritage

From the Parkersburg, W. Va., Sentinel

Despite assurances by government officials at odd moments since the European war began, the American press would not be permitted to go on unchecked if this country ever became involved in war, Prof. Harold L. Cross of Columbia University and special counsel to the American Publishers' association, predicted recently. Professor Cross contended that emergencies, even those as great as war itself, do not justify curtailment of press freedom; that the very liberty under which newspapers operate today was obtained during an emergency.

It is unlikely that any section of the press would turn to treason during a war involving this country. Freedom of the press remains a precious American heritage. The United States can never afford to dispense with it, even temporarily.

The Will To Save

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The large scale spending of the Roosevelt Administration is usually defended on the ground that, wisely on unwisely, the president has spent in an effort to restore prosperity.

There is, undoubtedly, much of truth in this. Beyond this, however, the record indicates pretty definitely that the president is by nature a spender. Whether his training and familiarity with money have made him scornful of economy, or whether some other explanation must be found for his attitude toward money, the fact remains that he is the easiest spender we ever had in the White House.

Take the record of White House cost, for example. Here is a phase of government spending which has nothing whatever to do with emergency, unemployment or pump priming. Yet extravagance there has been on the same ascending scale as it has been elsewhere in the government.

In 1933, according to official figures, the White House cost $369,000; in 1934, $359,000; 1935, $458,000; 1936, $425,000; 1937, $502,000; 1938, $479,000; 1939, $2,370,000. For 1940, this item is carried at $2,872,000, and for 1941 is estimated at $3,573,000.

As the economist, John T. Flynn, points out, "here is an increase in Mr. Roosevelt's own department of 1,000 percent."

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

Washington, Feb. 19.—In spite of their conductor's spirited defense of them, I still don't like Gallup polls except in simple choices of well recognized issues close to the end of a political campaign such as—"Are you going to vote for Mr. Roosevelt or Senator Taft?"

Take the most recent one, which Dr. Gallup says is significant insofar as it indicates among other things, the general tendency of sentiment at the moment to favor "advocates rather than the opponents of a Japanese embargo." Referring to other "studies" by his Institute of Public Opinion, Dr. Gallup says, "By last year boycott sentiment had grown to the point where two-thirds of the voters were in favor of a movement to stop buying Japanese goods."

* * *

Is Absurd

Now, obviously, the latter statement is absurd. Dr. Gallup's sampling of opinion of infinitesimal groups may indicate trends, but it certainly does not warrant him in saying that "two-thirds of the voters" want to stop buying anything from Japan—any more than he is now justified in intimating that the present general tendency is for an embargo denying the right to any American to sell anything to Japan.

To understand these polls accurately, it is necessary to examine the phrasing of the questions they ask. In this latest 'study" of public opinion on the "embargo", the question asked was: "Do you think our government should forbid the sale of arms, airplanes, gasoline and other war materials to Japan?"

* * *

Highly Technical

What are "war materials?" It is a highly technical question which few laymen could answer. As the question is phrased (omitting "gasoline" which is in a doubtful category), it asks if we should cease to sell "arms, airplanes and other war materials" would mean when thus connected, "such as arms and airplanes"—that is, explosives, shells, guns, tanks or, in other words, "direct" war materials or "lethal" weapons.

If that is a correct interpretation of the question, it is highly misleading for a poll. We are not selling Japan any direct war materials. There is no law preventing it, but our government has none the less effectively "forbidden" it through a so-called "moral" embargo.

* * *

Fooled by Form

The vice in this form of question is that if the person questioned thinks we ought not to sell weapons and are doing so, he is fooled by its form into an answer which Dr. Gallup has interpreted to mean that he favors an embargo—a very different matter.

On that point, Japan is our third or fourth biggest customer both in imports and exports. The vitally important item in our exports is cotton. Through Mr. Wallace's price policies, we have been so rapidly losing our foreign market for our leading Southern farm product that we can ill afford to drop this important customer.

* * *

Economic Lunacy

We have recently sold increasing amounts of scrap metal and petroleum products to Japan. Cotton is indirectly and in small quantities used in explosives. Scrap metal is a more important ingredient of munitions, but it is also used for other things and so also is petroleum, but only high octane gasoline is much used in airplanes. To cut off all these exports without discrimination as to their use for war would be an act of economic lunacy.

To embroil ourselves unnecessarily in the Far East would be military and naval as well as economic lunacy. It would weaken us in the Atlantic and in the defense of the Americas, require at least double the military and naval force we need for the Western hemisphere alone and promises to us no substantial gain whatever. If the American people polled are given the facts, or even a fair statement of the issue, it is a safe bet that no seventy-five percent of them will vote for an embargo against Japan.—(Distributed by United States Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

THE DAILY STORY

UNDER FIRE

A Strange Adventure in a Bomb-Torn City and Only a Man's Fears to Keep Him Company.

By CECIL C. FOSTER

Overhead the planes continued to roar in a droning crescendo of sound, and with every explosion of the deadly bombs Gerald Kernaghen shuddered and pressed his throbbing ears more tightly against the dirt of the cellar wall and floor.

At first it had seemed rather thrilling to him to be trapped in this beleaguered city, but the continued shelling had lately done something to his morale. Something he could not fathom. No one had ever called him a coward, but now he knew every waking moment of his life was filled with a numbing, cowardly fear.

No Sound Came from the Figure

He had been lucky in finding the open window leading into the little cellar. He shuddered again and even smiled a little grimly as he remembered how he had flung himself head foremost through the opening and slithered down the wall.

There was a figure there, squatting against the opposite wall—a grotesque, huddled form. The light had been fleeting and the figure indistinct, but he saw, for an instant, wild, glaring eyes and dishevelled hair.

"Who's there?" Gerald called, trying to still the tremors in his voice and the wild pounding of his heart.

There was no answer, not even a movement to indicate that his unknown companion had heard his question.

Again there came a flickering light as a shell struck and he saw that the figure had not moved. Directly opposite him it sat, terrified eyes in a chalky white face.

"Say something!" he shouted hysterically, staring into the darkness, but no sound came from the figure, only the pounding of his heart and the noise of the breath in his throat.

Gerald reached out covertly for a possible weapon. There might be a brick or a stone within reach. His heart sank as his fingers found nothing but dirt. Possibly a little farther along the wall there might be something.

He was moving slowly to the right when the light flared up for an instant. His heart jumped as he saw that the figure opposite was also moving.

Gerald stopped, his mind suddenly cunning. So the creature had heard him and was trying to creep around the wall where he would be in a position to murder him! He must be on his guard! Insane things were dangerous and needed careful handling!

His outspread fingers suddenly found and clutched a hard, jagged object. He chuckled to himself as he felt of its rough outline, hugging it gleefully to his breast. The murderer opposite, for such he had become to Gerald, did not know that he was armed. He would bide his time, getting its position definitely in mind. Then he would strike — surely and with deadly accuracy.

Suddenly it came and in the flash he saw that the figure had partly concealed itself behind some object, only part of its body being visible.

For a moment this development was puzzling to Gerald, and then he remembered that from his original position he had had an unobstructed view. He would crawl back a few inches where his aim would be uninterrupted by any obstacle.

Moving with infinite patience and quietness, his eyes probing into the blackness, he crept back. When he judged that he was in the same spot as before, he halted, every nerve strained to the breaking point. He would wait until the reddish light flared again. When it came he would rise to his feet.

When the light came he saw that his adversary was no longer shielded. Gerald fixed the position of the wild-eyed, crouching figure carefully in his mind and as the light died rose slowly to his feet. Motionless he stood, his right arm stretched backward, ready to hurl the missile as a baseball player throws the ball.

He waited, every nerve taut, his eyes focused on the place where the cunning face was.

For a breathless moment there was a complete silence and then came the screech of a heavy shell.

Crash! The shell struck and the light flared up. As the cellar filled with the flickering flame a scream came from Gerald's lips. The thing opposite had risen to its feet and was standing with its hand thrown back. In its eyes was a murderous gleam.

Something in Gerald's brains snapped and as the light died out he screamed once more and dropped forward on his face.

In the morning, when the bombardment had ceased, the people stirred from their havens and began a methodical search for food and possible wounded. After a time a head was poked into the low cellar in which Gerald had found refuge.

"There is someone here, Manuel," called the owner of the head triumphantly to a companion.

In a few seconds they had entered the cellar and had turned Gerald over.

"He is an Englishman," said Manuel philosophically, dropping to his knees.

As he was about to rise to his feet the first speaker said with curiosity, "Do you see the mark of a bullet, Manuel?"

"That is so, Jose," answered Manuel, looking carefully over the body. "There is no mark. Perhaps the heart was weak and the noise of the guns last night was too loud. Who knows!"

As he rose to his feet he glanced across the room. "The war is a strange thing, Jose," he said reflectively.

"Here is a man who is dead and there is no mark upon his body. And there is a mirror which also has no mark upon it," pointing to a full-length mirror leaning against the wall, where some fond owner had placed it, hoping that it would be safe from destruction.

His Streamlined Car Gives Him Headache

Stevens Point, Wis., Feb. 19—(AP) — Ora R. Barber, a rural mail carrier, applied ice packs to a sore, aching head and vowed fervently that he would trade his streamlined automobile for an old model with a straight back.

A tire and rim broke loose from dual wheels of a truck. The wheel overtook Barber's car, climbed up its sloping rear end, bounced high in the air and came down with a crash, pushing the top of the car down on Barber's head.

55 Had Incomes of Million in 1938

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—Fifty-five persons had incomes of $1,000,000 or more in 1938. This was six more than in 1937, but six less than in 1936.

An analysis released by the treasury Sunday showed that 6,155,856 returns were made by individuals who had $18,315,194 of net income.

However, only 2,995,034 had enough income to be taxed. They paid a total of $764,724,000.

Boy Flees School, Freezes to Death

Petoskey, Mich., Feb. 19. (AP)—Thirteen-year-old Donald Douglas, frostbitten and frightened, stumbled into an Indian cabin in northern Michigan at dawn Sunday crying for help for a chum who ran away with him from an Indian school.

Officers and Indian guides set off on a search and on the shore of Sturgeon Bay on Lake Michigan, far from any settlement, found the frozen body of David Devarney, also 13, who with Donald had fled from the Holy Childhood Indian School at Harbor Springs on Friday.

Through tears, Donald told of trying to help David stay on his feet and keep up "but it was just no use."

The boy sobbed out a story of their leaving the school because they were "homesick." They intended to hitch-hike the 150 miles to their homes in Munsing, a northern peninsula city.

Mrs. Frank U. Davis, president, will preside.

Roundtable Discussion

"City Shadows", will be discussed this evening by members of Circle Number 2 of the First Presbyterian church, Washington street, after a covered dish supper which will be served at 6 o'clock in the lecture hall of the church.

Mrs. Adolph Blunk is leader. Mrs. Clarence Eyre and Mrs. Robert Scheib will be hostesses.

Miss Mary Rice, who because of her foreign travels and personal observations and appreciation of Christian standards, has been chosen to lead a roundtable discussion, after her discussion of the chapters in "City Shadows" dealing with the Negro, the immigrant and the Jew in a large city, and her application to the situation in Cumberland.

Founders' Day Event

A living tired birthday cake was a feature of a Founders' day celebration of Mt. Royal Parent-Teachers Association, last evening in the school auditorium.

Twenty-six of the women of the association, costumed in pink crepe-paper and holding lighted candles were grouped in tiers to form this unique birthday cake.

Mrs. Harry G. Beneman read a clever skit, "Old Friends Come to the Meeting," and each time she mentioned the name of an old song the members of the Association sang it. Mrs. Herbert Platt accompanied at the piano.

Mrs. George Miller gave a report on the card party earnings.

Club Party

The club prize was won by Mrs. Fred Mills at the regular Monday bridge luncheon yesterday at the Cumberland Country Club, Christie road.

Others present were Mrs. Morris Rosenbaum, Mrs. A. Taylor Smith, Mrs. Walter C. Capper, Mrs. J. Thruston Boyd, Mrs. William A. Douglas, Mrs. Wilbur Seymour, Mrs. Joseph E. Bludworth and Mrs. Fred Mills.

Backs to the Front!

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE are thousands of beautiful backs that have never been discovered by the women who have them. They have paid no heed to posture, so the spinal column has taken on the wrong pose. Shoulders are rounded. By pulling oneself up tall, extending the chest, holding the abdomen in, there will appear a neat nip-in at the rear of the waistline. That turns the trick.

Strong back, young body; weak back and one looks like 60, even though one may not yet be 30. Get the muscles strong and resilient and the silhouette takes on pleasing lines. We trust this may catch the attention of the Young Person who trails around as if she were a piece of chiffon trying to be arty.

Hold the hands high above the head, fingers spread wide apart. Sway from side to side, moving the arms with the body, pivoting at the waistline. Tuck in your hips. When a hand goes up, give yourself a hard pull at the equator. Muscles were made to be used. If you don't use them, they go to sleep and fat cells catch them napping.

Another exercise: Place the feet far apart, clasp the hands together, bring them down between the knees. This is known as the wood chopping exercise. Good for normalizing the arms and slimmering down the waistline.

* * *

Natural blushes seem to have disappeared. Shouldn't do. We know more about hygienic living habits, nutrition and food values than our mothers did and we go in for outdoor sports in a big way. But we tear around nights and life is hectic. That puts on the wan look.

Use ice freely on the face; it is a wonderful cosmetic. Do a five-minute massage with cream every night. Do deep breathing exercises every morning. It's easy to dip the ruby glow out of the rouge pot, but no cosmetic chemist has ever produced an exact duplicate of natural flesh coloring. You have to grow it.

Japanese Faiths Are Described At Circle Meeting

Religious persecution would probably appear in Japan today if it were not for the social welfare activities of the Christians, Miss Mary Rice told ladies of Circle Number 8, of the First Presbyterian church, Washington street, when they met last evening at the home of Mrs. Ralph Balch, Park Heights. "The Religions and Shrines of Japan," was the topic Miss Rice chose for her talk.

The two chief religions of Japan are Shintoism and Buddhism, Miss Rice explained. Shinto means "the way of the Gods," and is the primitive religion of Japan. Buddhism was introduced into Japan in 522 A. D. and absorbed Shintoism, and until 1867 there was no distinction between Shintoism and Buddhism. In that year Shinto was declared the state religion and the Buddhist church was dis-established.

Two Types

Miss Rice said that there are two types of Shintoism, state and religious, and that there seems to be few similarities between Shintoism and Christianity. She said it is futile to expect that the development of certain Shinto sects will result in a religious or moral revolution in the promotion of world peace, or in the realization of economic reform.

Partial similarities between Christianity and Buddhism are the emphasis on a moral life and the belief in salvation, Miss Rice said. However, Buddhism has weaknesses. For example, it places a low value on human life, and refuses to accept any social responsibility.

Miss Rice quoted from Kagawa in his "Christ and Japan", the statement that "the deities of religious Shinto are worshipped not only in Shinto by practically all Buddhist families." Faith in Shinto means merely a sort of religious renaissance, a return to Japan's traditional and historical past.

Is Intolerant

Shinto is intolerant of other religions. Kagawa believes that Christian persecution would probably appear in Japan if it were not for the social welfare activities of the Christians.

The Japanese are building Shinto shrines in Korea to the memory of Japanese statesmen and forcing Korean children to visit these shrines. Among the shrines Miss Rice visited in Japan was the Famous Daibutsu Buddah at Kamakura. This bronze statue more than forty feet in height represents Buddha in the act of contemplation.

Nara is a Buddhist center, and a number of temples are situated in a park of several hundred acres. Miss Rice had several books with her so that her audience might see pictures of the winding paths, the huge red torii, the giant cryptomerias and the thousands of gray stone lanterns which she described. These, she said, with scores of tame deer, combine to make an unforgettable setting.

The old Japanese saying, "Never say magnificent until you have seen Nikko," certainly has foundation, Miss Rice declared. It is a beautiful spot and the temples the most gorgeous she ever saw.

Wood Carving Magnificent

The approach and the grounds surrounding the temples were originally planted with 40,000 cryptomerias, 18,000 of which remain. The most impressive feature of Nikko is the wood carving. This appears at its best in the cloister like gilded and lacquered enclosure surrounding one of the temple courts. In these panels appear flowering trees, birds, and aquatic plants; each realistically colored. At Nikko, Miss Rice saw the original "three monkeys."

One thing that impressed Miss Rice during these visits was the fact that worship in Japan is a highly individualistic affair. On only one occasion did she see a group of any size at a shrine.

Birthday Is Celebrated

Miss Mary C. Gillette was honored with a birthday dinner Sunday at her home 104 Washington street.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Gillette, Dubois, Pa.; Mrs. Gillette's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Williams; Miss Josephine Williams, Mr. and Mrs. A. Charles Piper, Miss Lois Piper, Charles A. Piper, Jr.; Marshall Gillette Williams, student at St. James's school, Hagerstown, and Mrs. Edith Fowler.

Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Piper are granddaughters of Mrs. Gillette. Mrs. Fowler is a cousin and Misses Williams and Piper, Charles A. Piper, Jr., and Marshall Williams are great grandchildren.

Small Waists Pay

Any member whose waist measured more than twenty-five inches had to pay one cent for each inch over that amount, while a penny was given to any whose waist was less than that amount, at a meeting Thursday evening of the Narrows Addition Improvement Association, in its club house at Locust Grove.

The party was for the benefit of the electric light fund.

The program included musical readings by Miss Paula Williams and dances by Miss Jacquelyn Cassen, Miss Wilda Ruth Winterburg, Miss Lois Heishman, Miss Ruth Hildegarde Algier and Miss Barbara Carder, of the Lee Winters Studios. They were accompanied by Mrs. Bertie Ranck at the piano and George Tipton on the guitar. Klyde Kuhns was chairman of the program committee.

Events in Brief

Mrs. Marcus L. Lazarus, 535 Washington street, will be hostess to her Wednesday bridge club at a 1 o'clock luncheon tomorrow afternoon at her home.

The Girl Scouts of the Cumberland council will hold their regular monthly meeting at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Girl Scout headquarters, 72 Greene street.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Kauffman, LaVale, entertained at their home Saturday evening after the George Washington-West Virginia game. The party was in honor of the George Washington team, though both teams and about thirty local couples attended. A buffet supper was served, dancing followed.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rexroad were honored with a wedding anniversary party Saturday evening by the latter's daughter, Miss Lottie Irene Rollins, 236 Williams street.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert I. Brant, 215 Arch street, have received word that their son Ralph E. Brant, a student at Stetson University, De Land, Fla., has been a first semester honor student.

David Kaufman, LaVale, is in New York city, purchasing equipment for his new office he will open here in March. Mr. Kauffman is a member of the Washington Bar, has passed the Maryland examinations and will be admitted to practice in March.

Mrs. George R. Alexander and son Eugene, Creek road, are visiting in Florida, where Mr. Alexander expects to join them about the middle of March.

Mrs. William M. Bruce has returned to her home, 209 Greene street, after attending the wedding of her son, Richard Jonson Bruce, and Miss Mary Jo Shelton in Fredericksburg, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Bruce, 209 Greene street have returned to their home having been in Fredericksburg, Va., for the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Milnor R. Bruce have returned from a weekend in Virginia to their home at 303 Decatur street.

Miss G. Shirley Holmes, 509 Dunbar drive; George Williamson, 306 Mountain View drive, and K. Richard Hosey, 542 Greene street, have returned home from Fredericksburg Va., where they attended the Bruce-Shelton wedding.

Luke List, grand knight of Patapasco council of the Knights of Columbus, Patapasco, and Vincent Lester, grand knight of Forest Glenn council at Forest Glenn, have returned home after attending the funeral of Francis McMullen.

The Rt. Rev. Monsignor John W. Dowling, formerly of Mt. Savage, who came here for the funeral of Francis McMullen, has returned to Washington, D. C.

Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Delaney have returned to their home in Williamsport, Pa., and Mrs. William Jacob and Mr. and Mrs. John R. Gloninger have returned to their home in Pittsburgh, having been called here by the death of Francis McMullen.

The Rev. Father Daniel Eagan, T. O. R., dean of St. Francis's college Loretta, Pa., has returned to Loretta after attending services of Francis McMullen.

John J. Stakem has returned to Baltimore after spending the weekend here.

Miss Frances Thompson is a patient at Memorial hospital.

Miss Georgia Ritenour and Miss Myrle, 31 South Center street, are expected home today from a tour of Mexico and New Orleans.

Mrs. Maude Holzel has returned to her home, 738 North Mechanic street, after visiting her sister, Mrs. Robert Portmess, Baltimore, the last seven weeks.

Clarence E. Shepherd, who has been confined to his home the past week, continues ill.

Dr. James E. McLean and Arnett M. Widener have returned from Miami and other cities in Florida.

SPOIL THEIR TIMING

ANYBODY knows that an established card is of no value to the side possessing it unless the chance to play it is found. If the last remaining entry to the hand possessing it is gone before it is set up, the later establishing of it comes under the heading of "love's labor lost." An alert player, therefore, will always consider knocking entries out of a hand which seems likely to build up such a card.

1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♠	3 ♣	4 ♠

South made a duplicate top on this deal with a bit of help from the enemy, getting an overtrick where others only made a bare game. He won the club Q lead with dummy's K, cashed the spade A and spade K, setting up East's Q, took the club A, then ruffed his last club with the spade 9, East over-ruffing and returning his spade 8 to the 10.

Here South made a guess at the heart division. He led the 6 to the 10 and Q, and read the 10 as indicating only the A remaining with West. So he fired back the heart 4, played the 7, and West had to take it. He returned the club J for South to ruff. South then took the heart J, led to dummy's diamond A and discarded his losing diamond on the heart K, finishing with a trumped diamond.

When West was in with the heart A, a diamond return would have spoiled declarer's timing by getting the diamond A out of dummy too soon. After South led to the heart J, he could not then have got back into dummy to use the heart K and so would have had to lose a diamond at the end.

Young Mothers! Do What Your Mother Did About

COUGHING COLDS

3 Out of 5 Mothers Use This Home-Proved Treatment

You are right to worry when a cold strikes your family. You should take steps, at once, to relieve the misery and suffering. But you want to be sure that what you do is really helpful. You don't want to take needless risks.

Now here is what most mothers do. They use Vicks VapoRub. Since 1895 Vicks and their doctors have studied ways to treat the distressing symptoms of colds. Today three out of five mothers are benefiting by this forty-four-year-study of colds when they use VapoRub and let its amazing poultice-vapor action go to work. PROFIT BY THEIR EXPERIENCE. Do this. If it's a coughing cold, melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a pan of boiling water, and breathe in the soothing, medicated vapors. Then massage Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest, and back and go to bed.

Japanese Faiths Are Described At Circle Meeting

Religious persecution would probably appear in Japan today if it were not for the social welfare activities of the Christians, Miss Mary Rice told ladies of Circle Number 8, of the First Presbyterian church, Washington street, when they met last evening at the home of Mrs. Ralph Balch, Park Heights. Young Mothers! Do What Your Mother Did About

COUGHING COLDS

3 Out of 5 Mothers Use This Home-Proved Treatment

You are right to worry when a cold strikes your family. You should take steps, at once, to relieve the misery and suffering. But you want to be sure that what you do is really helpful. You don't want to take needless risks.

Now here is what most mothers do. They use Vicks VapoRub. Since 1895 Vicks and their doctors have studied ways to treat the distressing symptoms of colds. Today three out of five mothers are benefiting by this forty-four-year-study of colds when they use VapoRub and let its amazing poultice-vapor action go to work. PROFIT BY THEIR EXPERIENCE. Do this. If it's a coughing cold, melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a pan of boiling water, and breathe in the soothing, medicated vapors. Then massage Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest, and back and go to bed.

Swinging Arms While Walking Only Natural

Movements Are Performed by Muscular Action, Doctor Says

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Do we swing our arms in walking from habit or because it fulfils some function?

When man assumed the erect position, his arms were liberated from their traditional function of aiding in the support and propulsion of the body. In spite of this, they instinctively move in the act of walking.

This action is not that of a pendulum, the movements are performed by muscular action. They perform functions, not only maintaining and helping equilibrium, but diminishing the clinical difficulties of walking by decreasing the rotation of the body as a whole about the vertical axis during the interval in which only one foot is on the ground. The swinging of the arms is, according to Elftman, of Columbia University, an integral part of the dynamics of walking. Therefore, the fellow who carries a cane and swings it as really helping himself move.

Botulism Shows Itself

Has the food poisoning known as "botulism" been completely controlled in the United States?

No. An epidemic was reported from Los Angeles in December, 1939. Five outbreaks of botulism have oscurred in the region of Los Angeles in the last two years. There is, however, little danger any more from foods that are manuufactured and canned by commercial firms because proper precautions are taken. One of the Los Angeles cases was due to eating home-canned figs; others from home-canned stringbeans.

Botulism is a poisoning caused by the toxin of a germ which grows in a medium from wnich air has been excluded (in other words, an anaerobic organism.)

One of the worst epidemics was due to the ingestion of canned olives. Canned stringbeans, however, are the most frequent offender, being responsible for one-third of all the outbreaks.

The absorption of the toxin of botulism produces a severe prostration of the nervous system, with difficulty in swallowing and paralysis of many muscles.

Another serious epidemic of food poisoning has recently been reported in which food was infected with a salmonella organism. This is about the commonist form of food poisoning. In the epidemic mentioned, the food served at a wedding banquet on a hot day was responsible. Apparently tomatoes stuffed with a liver paste were the source of the poisoning. These were prepared by a private caterer who had not been examined by the health department.

The symptoms of salmonella poisoning are not nearly as serious as those of botulism.

L. M.: "Is there any known sure for pyorrhea? When this diagnosis has been made, is it vital to the person's health to have the teeth removed? Is there any special diet that will assist it? If the person does not have the teeth removed, is there danger from absorbing poison?

Answer—Pyorrhea can almost always be cured without resorting to such dractic measures as removal of the teeth. Only when the infection around the teeth and in the gums has gotten to advanced that the teeth are loose and wobbly is removal indicated. The use of a diet with plenty of fruit juices, particularly orange juice, is helpful in pyorrhea. The amount of absorption, which occurs depends on the severity of the condition. Some cases of pyorrhea are so mild that they consist in nothing more than a slight redness of the gum margin.

"I don't know what kind of a person you think I am," said Cholly.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

HAYWORTH sent his son to bed finally, with a promise to think things over before he discharged the new pianist.

The fact that Dover had fallen in love with a girl without money was a little matter that gave the older man no worry insofar as he himself was concerned. But how to break the news to Mrs. Hayworth —that was the question.

What sort of a girl was Charlotte O'Neil, he wondered? Was she the fine person his son thought her to be, or was she just a very clever little schemer who had played upon his affections, refusing to accept money because she was too wise?

Before the syrup manufacturer fell into a troubled sleep at 4 a. m. he had come to a decision. He must meet and talk with the girl. So he had set the alarm clock so that he could be at the studio for the 8:30 broadcast. That was also another sure way of avoiding his wife, until he'd made up his mind what to do. It would be difficult to take any sort of step without hurting and humiliating Dover. That must be avoided at any cost. If he could show the girl up, that would solve all their problems.

When Cholly went into the studio, she saw an elderly, stout man sitting in the control room with the engineer. But she gave the matter little thought. Sitting down to the piano, she ran her hands over the keys, playing a few bars. Then Hayworth saw her smiling and talking with the announcer.

The girl certainly looked harmless enough. Didn't even look as though she had on any makeup. She was red-headed, with a pert, turned-up nose and a wistful smile. Her dress was a tan, tailored wool that looked as though it had seen plenty of wear, and her coat was dark brown and innocent of fur. Her curls were topped with a small-brimmed, tan felt hat.

Looking at her, Hayworth decided, no one would ever take her for a designing woman. The announcer gave his opening speech and Cholly began to play. The older man sat back, enjoying the lovely melody.

"That girl's darn good, Mr. Hayworth!" the engineer said when Cholly had finished. "Where did you find her? Unknown, wasn't she?"

"My son"—Mr. Hayworth smiled in spite of himself—"is a bit of a talent scout. He found her."

"Well," the engineer smiled, your son knows how to pick 'em. She's a swell kid. We all like working with her."

Hayworth got up.

"Guess I'll go out and get acquainted with her myself," he said casually. "I always like to know my employes."

Cholly was getting up from the piano when Mr. Hayworth opened the door of the studio. For the benefit of the staff, he smiled cordially and held out his hand.

"I'm Dover Hayworth, senior, Miss O'Neil. I thought I'd drop up and hear you this morning instead of tuning in at breakfast."

Cholly's heart almost stopped, but she managed to match his smile.

"I'm so glad." She held out her own hand to shake his. "This is very kind of you."

"Missed my breakfast to do it," the manufacturer chuckled. "Hope you haven't had yours. I thought we might go down to the restaurant and have a bite together."

Cholly thought, with a little pang, that the zero hour she had been fearing had struck. But she summoned her courage and smiled again.

"I'm starved! I'd love to go."

Hayworth reached for her music case.

"Well, come along. I hope they have good ham and eggs. That's what I feel like this morning. Ham and eggs! Like 'em?"

"I like nothing better," Cholly assured him. "I haven't one of those ladylike appetites for orange juice and toast. I guess it's because I was brought up on a farm."

"Well," Hayworth pressed the elevator button in the corridor, "you've done your day's stint. You've had time to work up an appetite."

"I get up at six to get down here on time," Cholly said to make conversation. "My girl friend and I live at Seventy-third street, South."

"Quite a trip." Hayworth walked into the elevator after her.

Downstairs he paused; dropped his mask.

"Is there a quiet corner where we can talk, Miss O'Neil?"

"There are booths," she nodded, understanding, "and very few of the radio people eat so early. We'll be quite private."

In the restaurant they found a deserted corner and sat down. To put her at ease, the father smiled.

"Now, you're not afraid of me, are you?"

"A little—" she said truthfully. "You took me completely by surprise, you know, Mr. Hayworth.

"I had a little surprise myself last night." He chuckled dryly.

His face was a little pale, and he looked tired after his sleepless night. But he smiled paternally.

"Well, don't be nervous about having breakfast with me. I don't eat little girls. I just like ham and eggs."

"I think—" Cholly rearranged her silver. "I think I know why you are here. You've found out I am a friend of Dover's.

"I found out my son's big radio idea was a carefully thought out plan, and not just a good business idea." Mr. Hayworth unfolded his napkin, placing it on his ample lap. "It was Mrs. Hayworth who gave me the information."

"Oh!" Cholly said blankly. "I hope this isn't going to cause any trouble for Dover. I'd do anything to avoid that. You mustn't scold him, Mr. Hayworth. He just wanted to help me."

"That's what he said." The millionaire leaned forward, studying the girl before him closely. "So you'd be willing to make a settlement? We wouldn't have any difficulty."

"A set[illegible]?" Cholly looked at him blankly. "I'd be willing to tear up the contract. It's in my briefcase now. If you'll hand it to me—"

"I'd be willing to pay you a good sum." Hayworth watched her. "The Hayworth company always keeps its obligations."

Cholly's face colored. The old man saw the anger in her blue eyes.

"Mr. Hayworth!" She reached for the case herself. "I don't know what sort of a person you think I am! But if you're insinuating that you want to buy me off because you think I'm going to cause either you or your son any trouble, you're very much mistaken."

Her hands trembled, fumbling with the snap on the case. Hayworth reached over and took it from her.

"Don't tear that contract up just yet. Let's have a little talk."

"There's nothing to talk about!" Cholly's chin squared. "This is a great deal more embarrassing for me than it is for you, I'm sure. I guess you didn't know I'd no idea who was hiring me when I signed that contract!"

"So I understand," Hayworth nodded.

"Well," Cholly ignored the breakfast the waiter had just placed in front of her to say icily, "as far as I'm concerned, the thing is settled. You can get another pianist for tomorrow morning!"

"Then you don't care anything about my son?" The father picked up his coffee and took a sip, avoiding the blazing eyes. "You'll give him up, too?"

"What I think of your son has nothing to do with business, Cholly answered spiritedly. "But, for your peace of mind, I want you to know that I feel exactly the same way you do about rich men getting mixed up with poor girls. I have no intention of marrying out of my class."

"Perhaps you think"—Hayworth hid his face behind his napkin, pretending to wipe his mouth—"my Dover is a rich wastrel who isn't good enough for you."

"I think"—Cholly's chin trembled childishly, "your Dover is the sweetest human being that ever set foot on this earth. But I wouldn't marry him! And you can go home and tell his mother not to lose any sleep over me. Let Pee Wee Tyler have him!"

Three Hit and Run Drivers Hit Man

New York, Feb. 19 (AP) — John Brown, 40, a pedestrian, was the victim of three hit-and-run drivers here.

Crossing an ice-covered street in Brooklyn, Brown slipped and fell. While another pedestrian tried to pull him to safety, a taxicab and two other motor cars in quick succession "clipped" the fallen man. All sped on without stopping.

Brown died a few minutes later in a hospital.

Garner May Seek To Bar Roosevelt in Illinois

Chicago, Feb. 18 (AP) — Vice President Garner's Illinois campaign manager says he is making an independent study of the legal status of Illinois primary petitions unamcompanied by a signed declaration of candidacy, such as those for President Roosevelt.

"At present there is no program for filing any objections to the president's candidacy," announced Julius F. Smietanka, Garner's state manager .

Garner also has entered the Illinois preferential presidential primary and filed a signed declaration with his petitions.

The lack of a signed certificate with the petitions for president Roosevelt raised a question in political circles over their legality, which apparently will be decided by the state primary certifying board when it meets March 5.

Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes has opined they were legal because the presidential primary is merely advisory and not binding on convention delegates.

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America, has initiated a movement to begin upon the nineteenth day of February and extend to the twenty-fourth day of February, 1940, to be known as "National Americanism Week;" it being the purpose of said organization to interest all true American citizens in the Constitution of the United States and the laws passed pursuant thereto, and likewise to educate our population in the basic principles of true Americanism as embraced in the representative form of government under which we exist.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, by the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, That this body does hereby pledge itself to observe the aforesaid "Americanism Week," and as Mayor of the City of Cumberland, I do hereby request all of our citizens to cooperate with the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America, in promulgating and fostering the true principles of the Government of the United States, as exemplified by its Constitution and the traditions of the Republic.

GIVEN UNDER MY HAND AND SEAL THIS 19th DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1940, WITH THE CORPORATE SEAL OF THE CITY OF CUMBERLAND HERETO ATTACHED.

HARRY IRVINE, Mayor.

Only Minor Increases In Cost of Living

By FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, Feb. 19. (AP)—Consumers in the United States have weathered the war period so far with only minor increases in general living costs.

Various gauges of prices show costs today are not much higher than they were in late August. Part of the initial war gains in major staples, such as metals, sugar and rubber, have been eliminated. Meanwhile, a spell of slack buying has discouraged efforts to start another round of war-time price boosting.

A spurt in the Chicago wheat market last week and reports of advancing living costs in England and other European countries only served to emphasize in financial circles the stability of American prices in recent weeks.

The latest wholesale price index of the United States bureau of labor statistics—the most comprehensive measure of price changes compiled in this country—stands at 78.5 per cent of the 1926 level compared with 76.6 a year ago.

Decatur Goblet Is Found in Pawnshop

Washington, Feb. 19. (AP)—A silver goblet awarded to Stephen Decatur, naval hero of the war of 1812, has turned up here in a pawnshop where it was left as security for a fifty-cent loan.

Detectives making a routine check of pawnshops found the cup. It is inscribed: "By the Citizens of Philadelphia to their Townsman, Commodore Stephen Decatur. Esteemed for his virtue, honored for His Valour."

A "Mr. Johnson" had "hocked" the cup, and given what police discovered was a fictitious address.

Partnership Ends In Fatal Shooting

San Bernardino, Calif., Feb. 19 (AP) — A fatal shooting ended the partnership of two grizzled prospectors in one of the loneliest sections of Death Valley.

Deputy Coroner Edward Doyle said Nicholas E. Jegg, 64, threatened to kill Harvey C. Brown, 58, for "double crossing." Jegg contended Brown had discovered a talc deposit and brought in a third party to develop it in a separate partnership.

In the ensuing argument, the two went into their cabins for weapons, emerged and shot it out. Jegg was killed. Brown was arrested.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Your Federal Income Tax

Deductions Allowed for Various Taxes Are Explained

Taxes on real estate and personal property paid during the year 1939 ere deductible. So-called taxes which are assessed against local benefits, such as streets, sidewalks, drainage, and other like improvements, are not deductible but are to be capitalized, as they tend to increase the value of the property and thus constitute cost of a permanent improvement. The Federal income tax may not be deducted. The tax on unjust enrichment—a federal tax on income—is not deductible. Income tax, however, paid to the state by an individual on his income is an allowable deduction in his federal income-tax return.

Customs duties paid by a person on articles imported for his own use are deductible. Import or tariff duties paid to customs officers; and business, license, privilege, excise, and stamp taxes paid to internal revenue collectors are deductible as taxes, provided they are not added to and made a part of the expenses of the business or the cost of the articles of merchandise with respect to which they are paid, in which case they cannot be deducted separately as a tax.

Admission Taxes Also

The federal tax of one cent for each ten cents or fraction thereof paid for admission to any place (where the amount paid is forty-one cents or more) is deductible, provided an account has been kept by the taxpayer of the amount paid. Taxes on club dues are deductible by the member paying them. An individual may deduct the tax on his telephone conversations, radio messages, telegrams, and cables, and on the rent of his safety deposit box.

Unemployment compensation contributions required under a state law, if officially classified as taxes, are deductible as taxes and not as business expenses.

The excise taxes imposed upon employers by the Social Security act as amended, are deductible, but the income tax imposed on employees by the act is not deductible. If an employer pays such tax for the employees, the amount may be deducted by the employer as a business expense, and the employees are required to report as additional income in their federal income-tax returns the amounts of the tax so paid for them.

License Fees Deductible

License fees exacted by a state or city upon certain businesses are deductible as taxes. Automobile license fees are ordinarily taxes and deductible. Postage is not a tax and is not deductible. In general, taxes are deductible only by the person upon whom they are imposed.

Federal estate and gift taxes and state inheritance, estate legacy, or succession taxes are not deductible on federal income-tax returns. The federal taxes on automobiles, gasoline, cigarettes, and liquor are imposed upon the manufacturer, producer, or importer and are not deductible by the purchaser or consumer. Whether or not the gasoline tax, the use tax, or the sales tax levied by a state may be deducted by the individual purchaser depends upon the terms of the state law imposing the tax; consequently, the right to the deduction ,as between purchaser and seller, varies in the different states.

HAYWORTH sent his son to bed finally, with a promise to think things over before he discharged the new pianist.

The fact that Dover had fallen in love with a girl without money was a little matter that gave the older man no worry insofar as he himself was concerned. But how to break the news to Mrs. Hayworth—that was the question.

What sort of a girl was Charlotte O'Neil, he wondered? Was she the fine person his son thought her to be, or was she just a very clever little schemer who had played upon his affections, refusing to accept money because she was too wise?

Before the syrup manufacturer fell into a troubled sleep at 4 a. m. he had come to a decision. He must meet and talk with the girl. So he had set the alarm clock so that he could be at the studio for the 8:30 broadcast. That was also another sure way of avoiding his wife, until he'd made up his mind what to do. It would be difficult to take any sort of step without hurting and humiliating Dover. That must be avoided at any cost. If he could show the girl up, that would solve all their problems.

When Cholly went into the studio, she saw an elderly, stout man sitting in the control room with the engineer. But she gave the matter little thought. Sitting down to the piano, she ran her hands over the keys, playing a few bars. Then Hayworth saw her smiling and talking with the announcer.

The girl certainly looked harmless enough. Didn't even look as though she had on any makeup. She was red-headed, with a pert, turned-up nose and a wistful smile. Her dress was a tan, tailored wool that looked as though it had seen plenty of wear, and her coat was dark brown and innocent of fur. Her curls were topped with a small-brimmed, tan felt hat.

Looking at her, Hayworth decided, no one would ever take her for a designing woman. The announcer gave his opening speech and Cholly began to play. The older man sat back, enjoying the lovely melody.

"That girl's darn good, Mr. Hayworth!" the engineer said when Cholly had finished. "Where did you find her? Unknown, wasn't she?"

"My son"—Mr. Hayworth smiled in spite of himself—"is a bit of a talent scout. He found her."

"Well," the engineer smiled, your son knows how to pick 'em. She's a swell kid. We all like working with her."

Hayworth got up.

"Guess I'll go out and get acquainted with her myself," he said casually. "I always like to know my employes."

Cholly was getting up from the piano when Mr. Hayworth opened the door of the studio. For the benefit of the staff, he smiled cordially and held out his hand.

"I'm Dover Hayworth, senior, Miss O'Neil. I thought I'd drop up and hear you this morning instead of tuning in at breakfast."

Cholly's heart almost stopped, but she managed to match his smile.

"I'm so glad." She held out her own hand to shake his. "This is very kind of you."

"Missed my breakfast to do it," the manufacturer chuckled. "Hope you haven't had yours. I thought we might go down to the restaurant and have a bite together."

Cholly thought, with a little pang, that the zero hour she had been fearing had struck. But she summoned her courage and smiled again.

"I'm starved! I'd love to go."

Hayworth reached for her music case.

"Well, come along. I hope they have good ham and eggs. That's what I feel like this morning. Ham and eggs! Like 'em?"

"I like nothing better," Cholly assured him. "I haven't one of those ladylike appetites for orange juice and toast. I guess it's because I was brought up on a farm."

"Well," Hayworth pressed the elevator button in the corridor, "you've done your day's stint. You've had time to work up an appetite."

"I get up at six to get down here on time," Cholly said to make conversation. "My girl friend and I live at Seventy-third street, South."

"Quite a trip." Hayworth walked into the elevator after her.

Downstairs he paused; dropped his mask.

"Is there a quiet corner where we can talk, Miss O'Neil?"

"There are booths," she nodded, understanding, "and very few of the radio people eat so early. We'll be quite private."

In the restaurant they found a deserted corner and sat down. To put her at ease, the father smiled.

"Now, you're not afraid of me, are you?"

"A little—" she said truthfully. "You took me completely by surprise, you know, Mr. Hayworth.

"I had a little surprise myself last night." He chuckled dryly.

His face was a little pale, and he looked tired after his sleepless night. But he smiled paternally.

"Well, don't be nervous about having breakfast with me. I don't eat little girls. I just like ham and eggs."

"I think—" Cholly rearranged her silver. "I think I know why you are here. You've found out I am a friend of Dover's.

"I found out my son's big radio idea was a carefully thought out plan, and not just a good business idea." Mr. Hayworth unfolded his napkin, placing it on his ample lap. "It was Mrs. Hayworth who gave me the information."

"Oh!" Cholly said blankly. "I hope this isn't going to cause any trouble for Dover. I'd do anything to avoid that. You mustn't scold him, Mr. Hayworth. He just wanted to help me."

"That's what he said." The millionaire leaned forward, studying the girl before him closely. "So you'd be willing to make a settlement? We wouldn't have any difficulty."

"A set[illegible]?" Cholly looked at him blankly. "I'd be willing to tear up the contract. It's in my briefcase now. If you'll hand it to me—"

"I'd be willing to pay you a good sum." Hayworth watched her. "The Hayworth company always keeps its obligations."

Cholly's face colored. The old man saw the anger in her blue eyes.

"Mr. Hayworth!" She reached for the case herself. "I don't know what sort of a person you think I am! But if you're insinuating that you want to buy me off because you think I'm going to cause either you or your son any trouble, you're very much mistaken."

Her hands trembled, fumbling with the snap on the case. Hayworth reached over and took it from her.

"Don't tear that contract up just yet. Let's have a little talk."

"There's nothing to talk about!" Cholly's chin squared. "This is a great deal more embarrassing for me than it is for you, I'm sure. I guess you didn't know I'd no idea who was hiring me when I signed that contract!"

"So I understand," Hayworth nodded.

"Well," Cholly ignored the breakfast the waiter had just placed in front of her to say icily, "as far as I'm concerned, the thing is settled. You can get another pianist for tomorrow morning!"

"Then you don't care anything about my son?" The father picked up his coffee and took a sip, avoiding the blazing eyes. "You'll give him up, too?"

"What I think of your son has nothing to do with business, Cholly answered spiritedly. "But, for your peace of mind, I want you to know that I feel exactly the same way you do about rich men getting mixed up with poor girls. I have no intention of marrying out of my class."

"Perhaps you think"—Hayworth hid his face behind his napkin, pretending to wipe his mouth—"my Dover is a rich wastrel who isn't good enough for you."

"I think"—Cholly's chin trembled childishly, "your Dover is the sweetest human being that ever set foot on this earth. But I wouldn't marry him! And you can go home and tell his mother not to lose any sleep over me. Let Pee Wee Tyler have him!"

Three Hit and Run Drivers Hit Man

New York, Feb. 19 (AP) — John Brown, 40, a pedestrian, was the victim of three hit-and-run drivers here.

Crossing an ice-covered street in Brooklyn, Brown slipped and fell. While another pedestrian tried to pull him to safety, a taxicab and two other motor cars in quick succession "clipped" the fallen man. All sped on without stopping.

Brown died a few minutes later in a hospital.

Garner May Seek To Bar Roosevelt in Illinois

Chicago, Feb. 18 (AP) — Vice President Garner's Illinois campaign manager says he is making an independent study of the legal status of Illinois primary petitions unamcompanied by a signed declaration of candidacy, such as those for President Roosevelt.

"At present there is no program for filing any objections to the president's candidacy," announced Julius F. Smietanka, Garner's state manager.

Garner also has entered the Illinois preferential presidential primary and filed a signed declaration with his petitions.

The lack of a signed certificate with the petitions for president Roosevelt raised a question in political circles over their legality, which apparently will be decided by the state primary certifying board when it meets March 5.

Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes has opined they were legal because the presidential primary is merely advisory and not binding on convention delegates.

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America, has initiated a movement to begin upon the nineteenth day of February and extend to the twenty-fourth day of February, 1940, to be known as "National Americanism Week;" it being the purpose of said organization to interest all true American citizens in the Constitution of the United States and the laws passed pursuant thereto, and likewise to educate our population in the basic principles of true Americanism as embraced in the representative form of government under which we exist.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, by the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, That this body does hereby pledge itself to observe the aforesaid "Americanism Week," and as Mayor of the City of Cumberland, I do hereby request all of our citizens to cooperate with the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks of the United States of America, in promulgating and fostering the true principles of the Government of the United States, as exemplified by its Constitution and the traditions of the Republic.

GIVEN UNDER MY HAND AND SEAL THIS 19th DAY OF FEBRUARY, 1940, WITH THE CORPORATE SEAL OF THE CITY OF CUMBERLAND HERETO ATTACHED.

HARRY IRVINE, Mayor.

Only Minor Increases In Cost of Living

By FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, Feb. 19. (AP)—Consumers in the United States have weathered the war period so far with only minor increases in general living costs.

Various gauges of prices show costs today are not much higher than they were in late August. Part of the initial war gains in major staples, such as metals, sugar and rubber, have been eliminated. Meanwhile, a spell of slack buying has discouraged efforts to start another round of war-time price boosting.

A spurt in the Chicago wheat market last week and reports of advancing living costs in England and other European countries only served to emphasize in financial circles the stability of American prices in recent weeks.

The latest wholesale price index of the United States bureau of labor statistics—the most comprehensive measure of price changes compiled in this country—stands at 78.5 per cent of the 1926 level compared with 76.6 a year ago.

Decatur Goblet Is Found in Pawnshop

Washington, Feb. 19. (AP)—A silver goblet awarded to Stephen Decatur, naval hero of the war of 1812, has turned up here in a pawnshop where it was left as security for a fifty-cent loan.

Detectives making a routine check of pawnshops found the cup. It is inscribed: "By the Citizens of Philadelphia to their Townsman, Commodore Stephen Decatur. Esteemed for his virtue, honored for His Valour."

A "Mr. Johnson" had "hocked" the cup, and given what police discovered was a fictitious address.

Partnership Ends In Fatal Shooting

San Bernardino, Calif., Feb. 19 (AP) — A fatal shooting ended the partnership of two grizzled prospectors in one of the loneliest sections of Death Valley.

Deputy Coroner Edward Doyle said Nicholas E. Jegg, 64, threatened to kill Harvey C. Brown, 58, for "double crossing." Jegg contended Brown had discovered a talc deposit and brought in a third party to develop it in a separate partnership.

In the ensuing argument, the two went into their cabins for weapons, emerged and shot it out. Jegg was killed. Brown was arrested.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 PINTS A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Kidneys remove excess acids and poisonous waste from your blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Your Federal Income Tax

Deductions Allowed for Various Taxes Are Explained

Taxes on real estate and personal property paid during the year 1939 are deductible. So-called taxes which are assessed against local benefits, such as streets, sidewalks, drainage, and other like improvements, are not deductible but are to be capitalized, as they tend to increase the value of the property and thus constitute cost of a permanent improvement. The Federal income tax may not be deducted. The tax on unjust enrichment—a federal tax on income—is not deductible. Income tax, however, paid to the state by an individual on his income is an allowable deduction in his federal income-tax return.

Customs duties paid by a person on articles imported for his own use are deductible. Import or tariff duties paid to customs officers; and business, license, privilege, excise, and stamp taxes paid to internal revenue collectors are deductible as taxes, provided they are not added to and made a part of the expenses of the business or the cost of the articles of merchandise with respect to which they are paid, in which case they cannot be deducted separately as a tax.

Admission Taxes Also

The federal tax of one cent for each ten cents or fraction thereof paid for admission to any place (where the amount paid is forty-one cents or more) is deductible, provided an account has been kept by the taxpayer of the amount paid. Taxes on club dues are deductible by the member paying them. An individual may deduct the tax on his telephone conversations, radio messages, telegrams, and cables, and on the rent of his safety deposit box.

Unemployment compensation contributions required under a state law, if officially classified as taxes, are deductible as taxes and not as business expenses.

The excise taxes imposed upon employers by the Social Security act as amended are deductible, but the income tax imposed on employees by the act is not deductible. If an employer pays such tax for the employees, the amount may be deducted by the employer as a business expense, and the employees are required to report as additional income in their federal income-tax returns the amounts of the tax so paid for them.

License Fees Deductible

License fees exacted by a state or city upon certain businesses are deductible as taxes. Automobile license fees are ordinarily taxes and deductible. Postage is not a tax and is not deductible. In general, taxes are deductible only by the person upon whom they are imposed.

Federal estate and gift taxes and state inheritance, estate legacy, or succession taxes are not deductible on federal income-tax returns. The federal taxes on automobiles, gasoline, cigarettes, and liquor are imposed upon the manufacturer, producer, or importer and are not deductible by the purchaser or consumer. Whether or not the gasoline tax, the use tax, or the sales tax levied by a state may be deducted by the individual purchaser depends upon the terms of the state law imposing the tax; consequently, the right to the deduction as between purchaser and seller, varies in the different states.

Europe Must Choose This Spring between Peace Or War on Terrific Scale, Says Military Writer

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

By HERBERT B. MAYER
Lieutenant, Infantry Reserve
Written for Central Press and The Cumberland News

The situation of Europe today is like that of The Man on the Ledge.

Two years ago millions of awed and upturned faces watched a demented youth on a precarious foothold on the seventeenth story of a New York hotel.

Late at night, after many hours, with rescue near, he leaped into space. Like a dying moth he fell to destruction in the eerie and lambent glow of photographers' lights and flares.

Will last minute efforts drag Europe back from the abyss on which mad power politics has placed her? Or will the leap be made into a chasm of unrestricted warfare, lighted by the flames of death?

The suspense is the greatest the world has known.

With spring the irrevocable decision must be voiced one way or another.

But the present outlook — subject to change without notice like everything else in this strangest of wars—appears to point to an early and dramatic peace.

Encouraging Signs

No matter how much speculation is restrained, the appointment of Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles as "roving ambassador" to the belligerent and neutral powers must be considered encouraging.

Coming on the head of the previous appointment of Myron C. Taylor as an "ambassador of peace," to the Vatican, the Welles designation can be accepted as clinching the fact that President Franklin D. Roosevelt has discerned some hope, is planning to take advantage of a situation that can end hostilities, if such develops.

Added to this is the significant fact that belligerents are conducting only routine operations, just about enough to show that a war is on.

Through all the fog it is clear that a definite peace move of some sort is under way. If it develops it will take form very probably as an appeal to which all combatants needs must give ear.

No matter what differences may exist it would be difficult, if not impossible, for the fighting powers to refuse to listen to a plea possibly voiced by all neutrals, perhaps headed by President Roosevelt, Pope Pius XII and Premier Mussolini — the latter holding what amounts to a balance of power in the European line-up.

Peace Talk

As related in these columns some weeks ago, reports from Copenhagen not only named negotiators for an early peace, but purported to give a general outline of the terms agreed upon.

The preliminary discussions were said to have been undertaken by Andre Francois - Poncet, former French ambassador to Berlin; the Earl of Perth, British ambassador to Italy; Hans Georg von Mackensen, German envoy to Rome, and Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister.

According to this report which, while probably exaggerated, may detail some points for agreement, Czechoslovakia and Poland would be reconstructed in part and a plebescite would be held in Austria under British, French and German auspices. The economic and colonies situations would be revised.

All this, such as it is, sums up the outlook for peace by spring.

On the other hand, preparations for war to the limit are being continued on both sides.

Anzac Expedition

In this connection the arrival at Suez of large Australian and New Zealand forces indicates one way that the conflict is certain to develop in event all peace moves fail.

A drive toward Suez by Germany or Russia or both has been indicated as an objective at any time that the war gets under way in earnest. To check such a movement has been a major part of Allied diplomacy. The most significant of these protective measures came with the defacto alliance with Turkey and Allied control of the crucial Dardenelles.

In Syria a well-trained force of 350,000 has been gathered together under General Weygand. The war mobilization power of the Turkish army is around 700,000. With the new arrivals, this gives a potential Allied force of around 1,100,000 to break up any onslaught of the Hitler-Stalin axis.

This force should be large enough for defense against any reasonable assumed effort. It may be large enough to take the offense in case of need and cause a material weakening of a German thrust at the Maginot Line, if one is made.

Additional German efforts to control Rumanian oil and reports of movement of German troops to Odessa and other oil regions, serve to indicate the wisdom of the Allied move.

New Strategies

But while the question of war and peace hangs in the offing to be settled within the next few weeks, even in this short space of time new problems of strategy and tactics have emerged from this half war that will alter all previous conceptions.

From this nation — the most powerful and least aggressive — by some quirk of fate have come most of the weapons and fundamental tactics now employed.

We invented the airplane. From our inventive genius have come instruments leading to its present ranges and power for destruction. Also from our patents came the listening ears and detectors for anti-aircraft weapons.

Again from the turmoil of our own Civil war and the historic encounter between the Monitor and the Merrimac came the steel-girded battleship of today.

Aircraft's Threat

Further, modern methods of concealment and security, while administering punishment, came from these shores, too — learned by our colonists from the Indians and taught the hard way to Europeans by the distressing fate of Braddock's army.

Consequently, even with the little use comparatively that it has had, it is important to perceive the position to which aircraft has emerged in Europe's war, a position which offers the opportunity of changes that will alter the viewpoint of every naval and military staff in the world.

Without superiority in the air, control of the sea is dubious. As was pointed out last week, for the first time in its history the British fleet has been forced to divide or scatter, rather than face in mass a concentrated aerial attack from the air. Only geography alone and the fact that its fleet could carry on its mission outside bombing range serves to give Britain time to catch up on her lapses in the air.

Just as navy men have asserted that the airplane would be inconclusive in a war, army staffs throughout the world, and probably even in Germany, have stuck to the opinion that the "infantry is the queen of battles," that no war could be decided by aircraft.

On the frozen soil of Finland, licked to a frazzle by a fighting defensive force aided by climate, the Russians have presented what must be taken as to show the logical development of air warfare in the future.

Parchute Troops

One objection to an air force as a means to force decision has been the statement, often repeated, that it "could not hold ground."

To this the Russians made an answer that may prove as important as the use of tanks in the first World war. They dropped men behind the Finnish lines with parachutes.

It makes no difference whether the move succeeded or failed, as it did. The lesson it indicated is one that is bound to affect all conceptions of strategy of the future.

As in the case of the tanks themselves, this will come through evolvements and developments on a much larger scale of aerial means to place armed forces behind an enemy's line. It probably will take the form of transport planes, carrying from 50 to 70 men each with weapons and equipment.

What effect such a rational development will have upon current strategy is easy to point to.

Current Strategy

An army of today consists of three parts: Base, intermediate base and combat zone. The latter is divided roughly into three parts of its own: Outpost line, main line of resistance and artillery or fortress line.

Along the tenuous and lengthy routes of communication there are ration dumps, supply stations, headquarters and distribution centers to which most of the activities of any army must be devoted.

Attention of all combat forces, naturally has to be directed toward the front.

If superiority in the air has been gained, or even on daring raids without it, this vital rear zone can be penetrated by armed units carried in transport or bombing planes.

Following the Russian precedent, enough men could be dropped in parachutes to seize and control level ground or an air field in the vicinity of a chosen point.

Once this has been accomplished the transport planes could land, each with 50 to 70 men, perhaps more. If the movement included 1,000 planes, protected by fighters, this could place forces of from 50,000 to 70,000 armed men at critical points.

Plane Troops Uses

If only a brief movement was desired these could tear up or blow up bridges, railroad tracks, warehouses or seize general headquarters, for that matter, considering that only one or two regiments are likely to be set to guard such a vital link.

If an attack in force was desired, the first 50,000 or 70,000 men could hold a port or an area until the planes, covering say 200 miles on each lap, could bring reinforcements at a rate that would quickly build up a strong army in the area seized. This army, of course, would lack heavy artillery, but clever prior reconnaissance could correct that deficiency by making the raid to include enemy parks and reserve weapons and ammunition.

As in the World war, this form of attack will be subject to development only if hostilities continue and on a grand scale. But such attack could place a powerful army in the rear of either the Siegfried or Maginot lines. Granted superiority in the air and sufficient planes, the Germans could quickly seize Calais and every port in a real full dress blitzkrieg.

Granted that the airplane armies would be subject to mass attack and possible capture, there can be no denial that such a foray ouside its actual damage would weaken the fighting front, probably permit penetration of an attack synchronized with the air-ground efforts.

This is the trend which must be followed. Infantry will remain the "queen of battles," but it seems that an air force that can transport it with dizzy speed to one objective or another may become "the empress."

Europe Must Choose This Spring between Peace Or War on Terrific Scale, Says Military Writer

By HERBERT B. MAYER
Lieutenant, Infantry Reserve
Written for Central Press and
The Cumberland News

The situation of Europe today is like that of The Man on the Ledge.

Two years ago millions of awed and upturned faces watched a demented youth on a precarious foothold on the seventeenth story of a New York hotel.

Late at night, after many hours, with rescue near, he leaped into space. Like a dying moth he fell to destruction in the eerie and lambent glow of photographers' lights and flares.

Will last minute efforts drag Europe back from the abyss on which mad power politics has placed her? Or will the leap be made into a chasm of unrestricted warfare, lighted by the flames of death?

The suspense is the greatest the world has known.

With spring the irrevocable decision must be voiced one way or another.

But the present outlook — subject to change without notice like everything else in this strangest of wars—appears to point to an early and dramatic peace.

Encouraging Signs

No matter how much speculation is restrained, the appointment of Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles as "roving ambassador" to the belligerent and neutral powers must be considered encouraging.

Coming on the head of the previous appointment of Myron C. Taylor as an "ambassador of peace," to the Vatican, the Welles designation can be accepted as clinching the fact that President Franklin D. Roosevelt has discerned some hope, is planning to take advantage of a situation that can end hostilities, if such develops.

Added to this is the significant fact that belligerents are conducting only routine operations, just about enough to show that a war is on.

Through all the fog it is clear that a definite peace move of some sort is under way. If it develops it will take form very probably as an appeal to which all combatants needs must give ear.

No matter what differences may exist it would be difficult, if not impossible, for the fighting powers to refuse to listen to a plea possibly voiced by all neutrals, perhaps headed by President Roosevelt, Pope Pius XII and Premier Mussolini — the latter holding what amounts to a balance of power in the European line-up.

Peace Talk

As related in these columns some weeks ago, reports from Copenhagen not only named negotiators for an early peace, but purported to give a general outline of the terms agreed upon.

The preliminary discussions were said to have been undertaken by Andre Francois - Poncet, former French ambassador to Berlin; the Earl of Perth, British ambassador to Italy; Hans Georg von Mackensen, German envoy to Rome, and Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister.

According to this report which, while probably exaggerated, may detail some points for agreement, Czechoslovakia and Poland would be reconstructed in part and a plebescite would be held in Austria under British, French and German auspices. The economic and colonies situations would be revised.

All this, such as it is, sums up the outlook for peace by spring.

On the other hand, preparations for war to the limit are being continued on both sides.

Anzac Expedition

In this connection the arrival at Suez of large Australian and New Zealand forces indicates one way that the conflict is certain to develop in event all peace moves fail.

A drive toward Suez by Germany or Russia or both has been indicated as an objective at any time that the war gets under way in earnest. To check such a movement has been a major part of Allied diplomacy. The most significant of these protective measures came with the defacto alliance with Turkey and Allied control of the crucial Dardenelles.

In Syria a well-trained force of 350,000 has been gathered together under General Weygand. The war mobilization power of the Turkish army is around 700,000. With the new arrivals, this gives a potential Allied force of around 1,100,000 to break up any onslaught of the Hitler-Stalin axis.

This force should be large enough for defense against any reasonable assumed effort. It may be large enough to take the offense in case of need and cause a material weakening of a German thrust at the Maginot Line, if one is made.

Additional German efforts to control Rumanian oil and reports of movement of German troops to Odessa and other oil regions, serve to indicate the wisdom of the Allied move.

New Strategies

But while the question of war and peace hangs in the offing to be settled within the next few weeks, even in this short space of time new problems of strategy and tactics have emerged from this half war that will alter all previous conceptions.

From this nation — the most powerful and least aggressive — by some quirk of fate have come most of the weapons and fundamental tactics now employed.

We invented the airplane. From our inventive genius have come instruments leading to its present ranges and power for destruction. Also from our patents came the listening ears and detectors for anti-aircraft weapons.

Again from the turmoil of our own Civil war and the historic encounter between the Monitor and the Merrimac came the steel-girded battleship of today.

Aircraft's Threat

Further, modern methods of concealment and security, while administering punishment, came from these shores, too — learned by our colonists from the Indians and taught the hard way to Europeans by the distressing fate of Braddock's army.

Consequently, even with the little use comparatively that it has had, it is important to perceive the position to which aircraft has emerged in Europe's war, a position which offers the opportunity of changes that will alter the viewpoint of every naval and military staff in the world.

Without superiority in the air, control of the sea is dubious. As was pointed out last week, for the first time in its history the British fleet has been forced to divide or scatter, rather than face in mass a concentrated aerial attack from the air. Only geography alone and the fact that its fleet could carry on its mission outside bombing range serves to give Britain time to catch up on her lapses in the air.

Just as navy men have asserted that the airplane would be inconclusive in a war, army staffs throughout the world, and probably even in Germany, have stuck to the opinion that the "infantry is the queen of battles," that no war could be decided by aircraft.

On the frozen soil of Finland, licked to a frazzle by a fighting defensive force aided by climate, the Russians have presented what must be taken as to show the logical development of air warfare in the future.

Parchute Troops

One objection to an air force as a means to force decision has been the statement, often repeated, that it "could not hold ground."

To this the Russians made an answer that may prove as important as the use of tanks in the first World war. They dropped men behind the Finnish lines with parachutes.

It makes no difference whether the move succeeded or failed, as it did. The lesson it indicated is one that is bound to affect all conceptions of strategy of the future.

As in the case of the tanks themselves, this will come through evolvements and developments on a much larger scale of aerial means to place armed forces behind an enemy's line. It probably will take the form of transport planes, carrying from 50 to 70 men each with weapons and equipment.

What effect such a rational development will have upon current strategy is easy to point to.

Current Strategy

An army of today consists of three parts: Base, intermediate base and combat zone. The latter is divided roughly into three parts of its own: Outpost line, main line of resistance and artillery or fortress line.

Along the tenuous and lengthy routes of communication there are ration dumps, supply stations, headquarters and distribution centers to which most of the activities of any army must be devoted.

Attention of all combat forces naturally has to be directed toward the front.

If superiority in the air has been gained, or even on daring raids without it, this vital rear zone can be penetrated by armed units carried in transport or bombing planes.

Following the Russian precedent, enough men could be dropped in parachutes to seize and control level ground or an air field in the vicinity of a chosen point.

Once this has been accomplished the transport planes could land, each with 50 to 70 men, perhaps more. If the movement included 1,000 planes, protected by fighters, this could place forces of from 50,000 to 70,000 armed men at critical points.

Plane Troops Uses

If only a brief movement was desired these could tear up or blow up bridges, railroad tracks, warehouses or seize general headquarters, for that matter, considering that only one or two regiments are likely to be set to guard such a vital link.

If an attack in force was desired, the first 50,000 or 70,000 men could hold a port or an area until the planes, covering say 200 miles on each lap, could bring reinforcements at a rate that would quickly build up a strong army in the area seized. This army, of course, would lack heavy artillery, but clever prior reconnaissance could correct that deficiency by making the raid to include enemy parks and reserve weapons and ammunition.

As in the World war, this form of attack will be subject to development only if hostilities continue and on a grand scale. But such attack could place a powerful army in the rear of either the Siegfried or Maginot lines. Granted superiority in the air and sufficient planes, the Germans could quickly seize Calais and every port in a real full dress blitzkrieg.

Granted that the airplane armies would be subject to mass attack and possible capture, there can be no denial that such a foray ouside its actual damage would weaken the fighting front, probably permit penetration of an attack synchronized with the air-ground efforts.

This is the trend which must be followed. Infantry will remain the "queen of battles," but it seems that an air force that can transport it with dizzy speed to one objective or another may become "the empress."

Alderson-Broaddus Whips Potomac State

Catamounts Drop 68-44 Battle to Baptist Outfit

Griffith Scores 30 Points To Set New Broaddus Record

Winners Forge to Front after Trailing Early in Game

Philippi, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP)—Alderson-Broaddus trounced Potomac State College here tonight 68 to 44. The score at the half was 39 to 44. The victory enabled the Broaddus outfit to sweep the season's series with State, the Baptists taking the first meeting at Keyser by a 48-42 margin.

Griffith scored 30 points for the local Baptists to set a new Broaddus College scoring record. His total for the season is now 410, which breaks the record set by Neil Sappington in 1936. Neil's mark was 403 points.

Potomac took an early lead of 6-4, but Alderson-Broaddus quickly forged to the front and led the rest of the way. The lineups:

Mehl Wins Lloyd Two-Mile Event

Newark, N. J., Feb. 19 (AP)—Staging a driving finish, Walter Mehl, Big Ten champion from the University of Wisconsin, captured the Lloyd two-mile special invitation run in record-smashing time to set off the fireworks in Seton Hall College's 13th annual track meet tonight in the Newark Armory.

Declining a 15-yard handicap and starting from scratch with Don Lash, the favorite, Mehl let loose a terrific kick on the home stretch to edge out the veteran Joe McCluskey of Manchester, Conn., by a yard. The time was 9:03.4, the second fastest two miles ever run on a flat board track and smashed the old Newark mark of 9:12.6, created by Lash two years ago.

McCluskey, who received a 25-yard handicap, led Mehl for two laps, but was unable to match the Wisconsin boy's "kick" at the finish. Thomas Deckard of Bloomington, Ind., winner of the event last year, finished third.

The Scotches hiked their lead in the Temperance League by handing the Brandies a 2-1 setback and the Ryes climbed into second place by trimming the Bourbons 3 to 0 in fourth-week matches of the second half over the SS. Peter & Paul boards. The fifth-place Cordials whipped the cellar-dwelling Gins 3-0 in the other match.

B. McDermott cleared 424 maples off the paths in pacing the Scotches while F. Coyle located the head pin for a 384 score for the losers. Joe Minke brushed aside 201 sticks for the winners in the Cordial-Gin clash to establish a new individual game record and ended up with a 496 set, the highest of the evening. Paul Wood led the losers with a 408 mark. J. Wood's 362 score was the best for the Bourbons and Geatz's 421 the top mark for the Ryes.

Vitt Says Feller Game's Best Hurler

San Francisco, Feb. 19. (AP)—Oscar "Witty" Vitt, manager of the Cleveland Indians, speaking on his favorite subject—baseball:

"Bobby Feller is the best pitcher in the game today. Barring accidents he'll continue to be for years.

"I think he will have at least as good a record this year as last. (Feller won 24 and lost 9 for the Indians.)

"The kid lost four or five games last season that were so heartbreaking they'd bring tears to a rocking horse.

"Feller isn't afraid of the Yankees and never has been. He'd like to pitch against them every day.

"I read where I've been accused of holding out my best pitchers when we played the Yankees last season and using them against the Red Sox instead. I suspect my old pal, Joe Cronin, started that story. If he looks up the records he'll find Feller worked the same number of games against the Yankees and the Red Sox. He won 3 and lost 2 with each club.

"What Cronin doesn't know is that Joe McCarthy of the Yanks said to me during one series: 'You so and so, you always work your best pitchers against us. Go to it. We'll beat their ears off.'

"Once in a while I've given Feller a four-day rest—remember, he's only a boy—21 last November. But I'll never pick any spots for him. He'll take his regular turn. He's the best pitcher in baseball. Does anybody want to make something of it?"

Marshall College Beats Morehead

Hpuntington, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP)—Marshall College staved off a second half rally by Morehead State Teachers tonight to down the Kentuckians 51 to 40 before approximately 2,500 fans.

After trailing 26 to 14 at half time "Big" John Wiggers, Morehead center, led his team-mates in a wild scoring spree to a 32-32 tie with the Thundering Herd mid-way in the second period. Wiggers, who tallied 19 points to lead his team in scoring, went out on personal fouls shortly before the end of the game.

The Herd spurted ahead after Morehead had knotted the score and did not relinquish the lead. Roger Tricot, Marshall guard, sank eight field goals and four fouls to lead his team in scoring for the second time against the Teachers.

It was Marshall's twenty-third win of the season out of twenty-six starts. Morehead closed its season with tonight's game.

Waners Believe Frisch Will Be Help to Pirates

Mighty Mites Say New Boss Likely To Put Steam into Club

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 19 (AP)—In as neat a brother act as you'll see anywhere, Paul and Lloyd Waner, the mighty mites of the Pittsburgh Pirates, today allowed that fiery Frankie Frisch, the new Pirate boss, was likely to put a lot of steam into the 1940 club.

Paul did the talking. Lloyd put in an amen where it was needed.

"I've been playing major league baseball fourteen years," Paul said, "and I've never made a pre-season prediction yet."

"I've been in thirteen years, and ditto," Lloyd echoed.

"But," Paul went on, "I believe Frankie Frisch is going to be a big help to the Pirates as manager. All of the players on the squad have admired Frisch for his ability as a player, his fighting spirit and intelligence as a manager.

"Sure, we were on the other side of the fence, and Frankie was a thorn in the side of every other National League club, but he's a great ball player and that's what you've got to admire."

Both Paul and Lloyd think they're in for good seasons this year, despite Lloyd's setback in 1939.

"I wouldn't be surprised if we didn't give the other top flight clubs a real battle all the way. But," Paul added with a grin, "if you want to make out-on-a-limb boys out of us, you've come to the wrong place."

This, in parting, from the man who over a period of fourteen years in the National League has a batting average of .342. Brother Lloyd, in thirteen years, has an average at the plate of .321.

"Heck," Paul concluded, "we could always play baseball. Even back in high school where Lloyd and I weighed about 120 pounds each, we didn't have any trouble in hitting, or hitting hard."

Dempsey Figures Paychek 'Set-Up'

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 19. (AP)—In the opinion of Jack Dempsey, Johnny Paychek, the Iowa heavyweight next on Champion Joe Louis's list of challengers, would be better off a long way from the same ring with the Brown Bomber.

The former champion, here en route to Columbus, O., saw on the other hand possibilities that Pittsburgh's light heavyweight champion Billy Conn might eventually take the title.

"Conn can't hit hard," Dempsey observed, "and that's something you can't develop. But he's clever and may win the title some day.

Dempsey ventured that Arturo Godoy, the Chilean who stayed with Louis 15 rounds and whom he termed a "smart fighter," would be better "when and if he meets Louis again."

Crane's Bow 47-44 to Eureka Stores at Windber

The Crane Clothiers of Cumberland basketball team lost by a 47-44 score to the Eureka Stores Five at Windber, Pa. Saturday night. The Crane's trailed by a point at the quarter 12-11 but were in front 23-19 at the half and 33-30 at the three-quarter time out.

The home team had the added punch in the stretch and outscored the visitors 17 to 11 to take the triumph.

Morris paced the Cranes with 13 points with Furda leading the Eureka basketers to triumph by netting 10 field goals and a foul for 21 points.

Cranes will go to Aurora, Pa., Wednesday to meet the Independents of that town.

SAILS IN THE WIND—Yachts in Miami-Nassau race make a pretty picture against the cloudy sky.

The Sportlight

by GRANTLAND RICE

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 19 (N.A.N.A.)—Few people among the sideline or non-combatant contingent of sport, including over three million golfers, appreciate the toughest scramble now taking place in competition. This scramble involves the job of finishing in the money among the leading golf pros of the United States. Their 7,000 mile trek from Florida to California, now back to Florida again via Arizona and Texas, and Louisiana, finds them facing $10,000 in prize money at New Orleans this week, where the job of eating and sleeping under a roof is no minor consideration to more than a few. The New Orleans $10,000 show is one of the high spots and the hot spots of the year.

The head-on collision from the Deep South gives such money winners as Jimmy Damaret, Eddie Oliver, Lawson Little, Clayton Heafner, Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson and one or two others a big chance to build up the bank-roll.

They, already, have money in the bank. But there are hundred others who have broken or come close to par without collecting a dime—and they can use a few dollars on their way to the big Four-Ball tournament at Miami in early March.

The New Orleans and the Miami shows must be listed among golf's headliners.

They are two magnificent competitions where class runs many deep, and where human drama has quite a story to tell.

The Deeper Punishment

What sport brings the greater punishment? Tommy Armour, the Silver Scot of golf, happens to be a world war veteran and one of the closest and keenest followers of boxing, football and baseball that I know.

Armour, winner of both the U. S. and British Open, also the PGA, has the type of brain to cover broader fields.

"When it comes to taking punishment," Armour told me, "there isn't even an argument. The answer is golf. Some one fights Joe Louis and is probably knocked out in a few rounds. He only has to absorb physical punishment for a short while. Physical punishment is one of the minor ailments. Firpo was knocked down 7 or 8 times by Jack Dempsey and less than an hour later was the same as ever, having a big night in a cafe."

"Golf is different. The physical part is a minor matter. The suffering in golf belongs to nerves—and also to the brain attempting to concentrate. It is like having a nerve pulled from a tooth. In golf you take this beating from four to eight hours a day during a big tournament. This is actual suffering, when things are not breaking correctly. Any ox can take a physical beating. Any cow—any dumb, stupid animal. That's no test of courage. Courage has little to do with the physical side. It has almost everything to do with the nerves and the mental side."

"It takes no bravery or real courage to be knocked down and get up again. You know even the worm will turn—if you step on him. But to force yourself to battle against jumpy nerves and a stale mental state in golf calls for more real courage than Joe Louis or Jack Dempsey or any other fighter ever had to show. Golf calls for the courage of the civilized human being—not the human animal."

Armour Is Right

Tommy Armour is 100 percent right in this diagnosis. I've seen Christy Mathewson, one of the smartest and gamest baseball pitchers that ever lived—Gene Tunney, one of the smartest and gamest fighters of all time—not only blow up completely in a golf game, but also refuses to accept the nerve and mental punishment that golf often demands—especially on off days.

I saw an All-America Cornell guard collapse during a golf tournament, because in football he had never been called on to face the deadlier punishment that only nerves and the brain can know.

"I recall more than one golf tournament," Armour told me, "where I had much rather step up and slap Joe Louis or Dempsey across the mouth than tackle a 3 foot putt where I had the yips or the jitters and I knew what that putt meant to me. I've seen Bobby Jones suffer far more than Jess Willard ever suffered against Dempsey at Toledo—far more than Joe Louis or Max Schmeling ever suffered in their two fights where both were knocked out."

"Few will believe this. But every thinking human being will know I am right. What is real punishment? It is all largely on the mental or nerve side. That's the punishment you take in tournament golf."

Which brought to my mind the remark Sailor Tom Sharkey gave me when I spoke of his broken ribs in the Jeffries fight.

"Wotthehel are a few broken ribs or a broken jaw? What do they matter?"

In the way of suffering or punishment, the physical side is completely unimportant when compared to the departments of nerves and brain. The former calls for a minor degree of courage.

Sam Snead Takes Lead in Western Open Tournament

Punctures Par as National Open Champion Quits in Disgust

By WILLIAM T. RIVES

Houston, Tex., Feb. 19 (AP) —While the National Open champion quit in disgust, Sammy Snead, the young West Virginia slammer, punctured par to take the second-round lead in the Western Open Golf Tournament today.

One of five men who came below par 71, Snead blew around the River Oaks course in 34-34-68. He combined that with his 75 of yesterday for a 143 two-day total.

Slippery greens handicapped the players and Byron Nelson, the National champion and defending titleholder, gave up when he missed a two-foot putt on No. 10.

"I've missed 12 putts that I should have made in the last 28 holes," he groaned.

Birdies Five Holes

He had turned the first nine in 40, and probably could not have qualified for tomorrow's rounds.

Snead birdied five holes, and sank numerous long putts, winding up at No. 18 by holing a 25-footer.

Alone in second place was Clayton Heafner, Linville, N. C. A smooth 36-36-72 gave him a two-day total of 144.

Three men were tied for third place at 145 — Ralph Guldahl of Dallas, who won the title three years in a row before Nelson won it six months ago; Jack Grout, Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Harold (Jug) McSpaden, Winchester, Mass., pro, who won the Houston Open over the same layout last year.

Guldahl First To Break Par

Guldahl, the first man to break par today, had 34-35-69; Grout 36-34-70, and McSpaden 35-36-71.

The sixth place spot was jammed by Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, whose 35-36-71 gave him 146; Jimmy Demaret, Houston pro and darling of the gallery, with 36-38-74; Tony Penna, of Dayton, O., 35-36-71, and Leonard Dobson of Kansas City, 34-34-68.

The 50 low pros and ties and the 22 low amateurs and ties qualified for the 36-hole final day's play tomorrow for the $5,000 and prizes. First place is worth $1,000.

Alderson-Broaddus Whips Potomac State

Catamounts Drop 68-44 Battle to Baptist Outfit

Griffith Scores 30 Points To Set New Broaddus Record

Winners Forge to Front after Trailing Early in Game

Philippi, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP)—Alderson-Broaddus trounced Potomac State College here tonight 68 to 44. The score at the half was 39 to 44. The victory enabled the Broaddus outfit to sweep the season's series with State, the Baptists taking the first meeting at Keyser by a 48-42 margin.

Griffith scored 30 points for the local Baptists to set a new Broaddus College scoring record. His total for the season is now 410, which breaks the record set by Neil Sappington in 1936. Neil's mark was 403 points.

Potomac took an early lead of 6-4, but Alderson-Broaddus quickly forged to the front and led the rest of the way. The lineups:

Mehl Wins Lloyd Two-Mile Event

Newark, N. J., Feb. 19 (AP)—Staging a driving finish, Walter Mehl, Big Ten champion from the University of Wisconsin, captured the Lloyd two-mile special invitation run in record-smashing time to set off the fireworks in Seton Hall College's 13th annual track meet tonight in the Newark Armory.

Declining a 15-yard handicap and starting from scratch with Don Lash, the favorite, Mehl let loose a terrific kick on the home stretch to edge out the veteran Joe McCluskey of Manchester, Conn., by a yard. The time was 9:03.4, the second fastest two miles ever run on a flat board track and smashed the old Newark mark of 9:12.6, created by Lash two years ago.

McCluskey, who received a 25-yard handicap, led Mehl for two laps, but was unable to match the Wisconsin boy's "kick" at the finish. Thomas Deckard of Bloomington, Ind., winner of the event last year, finished third.

The Scotches hiked their lead in the Temperance League by handing the Brandies a 2-1 setback and the Ryes climbed into second place by trimming the Bourbons 3 to 0 in fourth-week matches of the second half over the SS. Peter & Paul boards. The fifth-place Cordials whipped the cellar-dwelling Gins 3-0 in the other match.

B. McDermott cleared 424 maples off the paths in pacing the Scotches while F. Coyle located the head pin for a 384 score for the losers. Joe Minke brushed aside 201 sticks for the winners in the Cordial-Gin clash to establish a new individual game record and ended up with a 496 set, the highest of the evening. Paul Wood led the losers with a 408 mark. J. Wood's 362 score was the best for the Bourbons and Geatz's 421 the top mark for the Ryes.

Vitt Says Feller Game's Best Hurler

San Francisco, Feb. 19. (AP)—Oscar "Witty" Vitt, manager of the Cleveland Indians, speaking on his favorite subject—baseball:

"Bobby Feller is the best pitcher in the game today. Barring accidents he'll continue to be for years.

"I think he will have at least as good a record this year as last. (Feller won 24 and lost 9 for the Indians.)

"The kid lost four or five games last season that were so heartbreaking they'd bring tears to a rocking horse.

"Feller isn't afraid of the Yankees and never has been. He'd like to pitch against them every day.

"I read where I've been accused of holding out my best pitchers when we played the Yankees last season and using them against the Red Sox instead. I suspect my old pal, Joe Cronin, started that story. If he looks up the records he'll find Feller worked the same number of games against the Yankees and the Red Sox. He won 3 and lost 2 with each club.

"What Cronin doesn't know is that Joe McCarthy of the Yanks said to me during one series: 'You so and so, you always work your best pitchers against us. Go to it. We'll beat their ears off.'

"Once in a while I've given Feller a four-day rest—remember, he's only a boy—21 last November. But I'll never pick any spots for him. He'll take his regular turn. He's the best pitcher in baseball. Does anybody want to make something of it?"

Marshall College Beats Morehead

Hpuntington, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP)—Marshall College staved off a second half rally by Morehead State Teachers tonight to down the Kentuckians 51 to 40 before approximately 2,500 fans.

After trailing 26 to 14 at half time "Big" John Wiggers, Morehead center, led his team-mates in a wild scoring spree to a 32-32 tie with the Thundering Herd mid-way in the second period. Wiggers, who tallied 19 points to lead his team in scoring, went out on personal fouls shortly before the end of the game.

The Herd spurted ahead after Morehead had knotted the score and did not relinquish the lead. Roger Tricot, Marshall guard, sank eight field goals and four fouls to lead his team in scoring for the second time against the Teachers.

It was Marshall's twenty-third win of the season out of twenty-six starts. Morehead closed its season with tonight's game.

Waners Believe Frisch Will Be Help to Pirates

Mighty Mites Say New Boss Likely To Put Steam into Club

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 19 (AP)—In as neat a brother act as you'll see anywhere, Paul and Lloyd Waner, the mighty mites of the Pittsburgh Pirates, today allowed that fiery Frankie Frisch, the new Pirate boss, was likely to put a lot of steam into the 1940 club.

Paul did the talking. Lloyd put in an amen where it was needed.

"I've been playing major league baseball fourteen years," Paul said, "and I've never made a pre-season prediction yet."

"I've been in thirteen years, and ditto," Lloyd echoed.

"But," Paul went on, "I believe Frankie Frisch is going to be a big help to the Pirates as manager. All of the players on the squad have admired Frisch for his ability as a player, his fighting spirit and intelligence as a manager.

"Sure, we were on the other side of the fence, and Frankie was a thorn in the side of every other National League club, but he's a great ball player and that's what you've got to admire."

Both Paul and Lloyd think they're in for good seasons this year, despite Lloyd's setback in 1939.

"I wouldn't be surprised if we didn't give the other top flight clubs a real battle all the way. But," Paul added with a grin, "if you want to make out-on-a-limb boys out of us, you've come to the wrong place."

This, in parting, from the man who over a period of fourteen years in the National League has a batting average of .342. Brother Lloyd, in thirteen years, has an average at the plate of .321.

"Heck," Paul concluded, "we could always play baseball. Even back in high school where Lloyd and I weighed about 120 pounds each, we didn't have any trouble in hitting, or hitting hard."

Dempsey Figures Paychek 'Set-Up'

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 19. (AP)—In the opinion of Jack Dempsey, Johnny Paychek, the Iowa heavyweight next on Champion Joe Louis's list of challengers, would be better off a long way from the same ring with the Brown Bomber.

The former champion, here en route to Columbus, O., saw on the other hand possibilities that Pittsburgh's light heavyweight champion Billy Conn might eventually take the title.

"Conn can't hit hard," Dempsey observed, "and that's something you can't develop. But he's clever and may win the title some day.

Dempsey ventured that Arturo Godoy, the Chilean who stayed with Louis 15 rounds and whom he termed a "smart fighter," would be better "when and if he meets Louis again."

Crane's Bow 47-44 to Eureka Stores at Windber

The Crane Clothiers of Cumberland basketball team lost by a 47-44 score to the Eureka Stores Five at Windber, Pa. Saturday night. The Crane's trailed by a point at the quarter 12-11 but were in front 23-19 at the half and 33-30 at the three-quarter time out.

The home team had the added punch in the stretch and outscored the visitors 17 to 11 to take the triumph.

Morris paced the Cranes with 13 points with Furda leading the Eureka basketers to triumph by netting 10 field goals and a foul for 21 points.

Cranes will go to Aurora, Pa., Wednesday to meet the Independents of that town.

SAILS IN THE WIND—Yachts in Miami-Nassau race make a pretty picture against the cloudy sky.

The Sportlight by GRANTLAND RICE

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 19 (N.A.N.A.)—Few people among the sideline or non-combatant contingent of sport, including over three million golfers, appreciate the toughest scramble now taking place in competition. This scramble involves the job of finishing in the money among the leading golf pros of the United States. Their 7,000 mile trek from Florida to California, now back to Florida again via Arizona and Texas, and Louisiana, finds them facing $10,000 in prize money at New Orleans this week, where the job of eating and sleeping under a roof is no minor consideration to more than a few. The New Orleans $10,000 show is one of the high spots and the hot spots of the year.

The head-on collision from the Deep South gives such money winners as Jimmy Damaret, Eddie Oliver, Lawson Little, Clayton Heafner, Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson and one or two others a big chance to build up the bank-roll.

They, already, have money in the bank. But there are hundred others who have broken or come close to par without collecting a dime—and they can use a few dollars on their way to the big Four-Ball tournament at Miami in early March.

The New Orleans and the Miami shows must be listed among golf's headliners.

They are two magnificent competitions where class runs many deep, and where human drama has quite a story to tell.

The Deeper Punishment

What sport brings the greater punishment? Tommy Armour, the Silver Scot of golf, happens to be a world war veteran and one of the closest and keenest followers of boxing, football and baseball that I know.

Armour, winner of both the U. S. and British Open, also the PGA, has the type of brain to cover broader fields.

"When it comes to taking punishment," Armour told me, "there isn't even an argument. The answer is golf. Some one fights Joe Louis and is probably knocked out in a few rounds. He only has to absorb physical punishment for a short while. Physical punishment is one of the minor ailments. Firpo was knocked down 7 or 8 times by Jack Dempsey and less than an hour later was the same as ever, having a big night in a cafe."

"Golf is different. The physical part is a minor matter. The suffering in golf belongs to nerves—and also to the brain attempting to concentrate. It is like having a nerve pulled from a tooth. In golf you take this beating from four to eight hours a day during a big tournament. This is actual suffering, when things are not breaking correctly. Any ox can take a physical beating. Any cow—any dumb, stupid animal. That's no test of courage. Courage has little to do with the physical side. It has almost everything to do with the nerves and the mental side."

"It takes no bravery or real courage to be knocked down and get up again. You know even the worm will turn—if you step on him. But to force yourself to battle against jumpy nerves and a stale mental state in golf calls for more real courage than Joe Louis or Jack Dempsey or any other fighter veer had to show. Golf calls for the courage of the civilized human being—not the human animal."

Armour Is Right

Tommy Armour is 100 percent right in this diagnosis. I've seen Christy Mathewson, one of the smartest and gamest baseball pitchers that ever lived—Gene Tunney, one of the smartest and gamest fighters of all time—not only blow up completely in a golf game, but also refuses to accept the nerve and mental punishment that golf often demands—especially on off days.

I saw an All-America Cornell guard collapse during a golf tournament, because in football he had never been called on to face the deadlier punishment that only nerves and the brain can know.

"I recall more than one golf tournament," Armour told me, "where I had much rather step up and slap Joe Louis or Dempsey across the mouth than tackle a 3 foot putt where I had the yips or the jitters and I knew what that putt meant to me. I've seen Bobby Jones suffer far more than Jess Willard ever suffered against Dempsey at Toledo—far more than Joe Louis or Max Schmeling ever suffered in their two fights where both were knocked out."

"Few will believe this. But every thinking human being will know I am right. What is real punishment? It is all largely on the mental or nerve side. That's the punishment you take in tournament golf."

Which brought to my mind the remark Sailor Tom Sharkey gave me when I spoke of his broken ribs in the Jeffries fight.

"Wotthehel are a few broken ribs or a broken jaw? What do they matter?"

In the way of suffering or punishment, the physical side is completely unimportant when compared to the departments of nerves and brain. The former calls for a minor degree of courage.

Sam Snead Takes Lead in Western Open Tournament

Punctures Par as National Open Champion Quits in Disgust

By WILLIAM T. RIVES

Houston, Tex., Feb. 19 (AP) —While the National Open champion quit in disgust, Sammy Snead, the young West Virginia slammer, punctured par to take the second-round lead in the Western Open Golf Tournament today.

One of five men who came below par 71, Snead blew around the River Oaks course in 34-34-68. He combined that with his 75 of yesterday for a 143 two-day total.

Slippery greens handicapped the players and Byron Nelson, the National champion and defending titleholder, gave up when he missed a two-foot putt on No. 10.

"I've missed 12 putts that I should have made in the last 28 holes," he groaned.

Birdies Five Holes

He had turned the first nine in 40, and probably could not have qualified for tomorrow's rounds.

Snead birdied five holes, and sank numerous long putts, winding up at No. 18 by holing a 25-footer.

Alone in second place was Clayton Heafner, Linville, N. C. A smooth 36-36-72 gave him a two-day total of 144.

Three men were tied for third place at 145 — Ralph Guldahl of Dallas, who won the title three years in a row before Nelson won it six months ago; Jack Grout, Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Harold (Jug) McSpaden, Winchester, Mass., pro, who won the Houston Open over the same layout last year.

Guldahl First To Break Par

Guldahl, the first man to break par today, had 34-35-69; Grout 36-34-70, and McSpaden 35-36-71.

The sixth place spot was jammed by Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, whose 35-36-71 gave him 146; Jimmy Demaret, Houston pro and darling of the gallery, with 36-38-74; Tony Penna, of Dayton, O., 35-36-71, and Leonard Dobson of Kansas City, 34-34-68.

The 50 low pros and ties and the 22 low amateurs and ties qualified for the 36-hole final day's play tomorrow for the $5,000 and prizes. First place is worth $1,000.

Allegany Host to Fort Hill Teams Tonight

Sentinel Boys Can Upset Campobello "Championships"

WMI and City Crown Quests at Issue in Game at Campobello

Central Is at Bruce and Barton at Beall in Finales

If Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Fort Hill high Sentinels can do at Campobello tonight what they started too late to accomplish at their home gym several weeks ago, they can upset a couple of applecarts for Walter L. "Bill" Bowers Allegany high quint.

Allegany is headed for the WMI and city basketball championships held last year by the Sentinels. The Blue and White won over Fort Hill in their first game by 44-33 but it was only because of the Sentinels slow start that Allegany was able to stave off the last half rush of Cavanaugh's reserve crew.

Tonight's tilt is the final WMI skirmish for the Sentinels and they must win to stay in the running since Allegany has a postponed game with Barton to play. Allegany has won seven of eight games being upset by Central, while Fort Hill has taken seven of nine, losing to Allegany and Beall.

Bearing on City Crown

Tonight's game also will have a distinct bearing on the city series chase, since a Fort Hill victory will put LaSalle on even terms with Allegany and make their clash at Allegany March 8 a city championship tussle. Otherwise LaSalle can only tie it up with a win, necessitating a play-off.

In tonight's preliminary Allegany's girls meet Fort Hill's lassies and, on the comparative score of their initial setto, it should be all Allegany again since the Campobello girls had little difficulty in that first skirmish.

The girls' game starts at 7:15 wit hthe boys' battle billed to begin at 8:30 o'clock.

Central and Bruce teams will bring WMI campaigns to a close by meeting at Westernport while in the other loop twin bill, Barton and Beall outfits will clash at Frostburg. The boys' tilt at Westernport should be close while Central's girls, who clinched the title last week, are top-heavy favorites. Beall's boys and Barton's girls should score wins at Frostburg.

In other contests tonight, Ridgeley will play at Keyser and the Petersburg Vikings will go to Moorefield for Potomac Valley Conference games. Romney will journey to Capon Bridge, Martinsburg and Charles Town will meet at the latter place and Hagerstown will exchange shots with St. James at St. James.

On tonight's college program Frostburg State cagers, who were awarded a forfeit victory over Alderson-Broaddus last week, will be host to the California (Pa.) Teachers. Oakland High and the Frostburg Jayvees will tangle in the preliminary.

With Sammy DeLuca providing the spark, Railway Express pinmen won three games from Times-News, first half champion, at the Savoy last week to tie Eiler Chevrolet for first place in the home stretch dash of the Commercial League.

DeLuca scattered a total of 601 sticks, getting 178 the first game, 225 the second and 198 in the third. Frantz Carl with 190-498 was high for the Newsmen, who have copped but one match of five in the last half.

Chevrolet managed to nose out United Accessories but in losing one of three games was tied by Express. Harry Smith paced Eiler with 186-501 while Brooks led Accessories with 430.

In the other match, Nelson Neon went into a tie for third place by scoring a sweep victory over Rosenbaum's, which had only four men. Thorpe stood out for Neon with 458 while "Sparky" Chisholm was the only Rosenbaum pinman to hit over 400. The summaries:

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Feb. 19 (AP) — The recent baseball meetings at Belleair, Fla., aside from putting pitchers on a free-wheeling basis, did much to clear the air of the haze of apprehension which followed Commissioner Landis' seven-point bulletin.

In fact, Ford Frick sees the path finally opening toward a clearer understanding of major and minor league problems, and he gives the commissioner credit for the improved condition.

"The meeting was highly satisfactory," the National League president says, "And I really believe we are at last on the road to a solution of our problems.

"Much credit must go to Mr. Landis. He cooperated 100 per cent at the Belleair meeting. In fact, he even seemed to lean over backwards in his efforts to be fair.

"I think, also, that he gained a better understanding of the problems of the club owners, and his willingness to compromise on two major points indicates as much.

"Mr. Landis primarily is interested in the protection of the individual ball player. Everything he does pertaining to farm clubs and working agreements hinges on that.

"As a matter of fact, according to the present rules a player could be held down in the minors because the major league club which controlled him had no place for his on its own roster. I say it could be done, but it isn't.

"There are any number of men in the majors who came up through farm systems of other clubs. Paul Derringer, for instance, came up through the Cardinal system, as did Bill Lee. Eddie Miller is a product of the Yankee system, as is Joe Gallagher.

"No, they aren't held down, but the fact remains that they could be under our present rules.

"Anyway, the players who might raise a fuss to the effect that they were being kept in the minors are the ones who never would make major leaguers anyway."

Frick was sidetracked to the problems of minor leaguers.

"I don't want to say much about that," he protested. "I'm interested primarily in the majors, and the minor leaguers might say: 'Look who's trying to explain our problems.'

"But there are obvious problems, which I believe Mr. Landis understands better since our meeting. For instance, there's the problem of signing players. Mr. Landis winted it done directly by an official of the minor league club.

"Well, lots of these clubs in lower classifications aren't conducted on a year-around basis. You can't expect these young fellows to know all the ramifications of the game. Why, I believe you could count on your fingers the men who really understand all the rules of baseball procedure.

"I don't. I know the major league rules, and have other information, but so far as knowing them inside out is concerned, well, there aren't very many who qualify, and that's one of the reasons the rules must be rewritten before long.

"They may sound simple, but they're about as complicated as anything you could find. Why, Judge Branham told me he had to send a contract back to a club official seven times before it was right. And a contract is a comparatively simple doument.

"But we're on the right track now, and I think everybody came away from the Florida meeting with a brighter outlook."

Jack Marshall Wins

Patty Berg Seen As Contented Amateur Golfer

Former Champion Not Believed Anxious To Turn Professional

By LAWRENCE PERRY

New York, Feb. 19 (C.N.F.)—For just what reason does not appear, but talk has been heard in Florida and accepted with some seriousness in Patty Berg's home state, Minnesota, concerning temptations to turn professional now confronting this brilliant and personable young luminary. It is said she could earn an immense sum of money almost immediately through affiliation with one of the big golf supply firms. There would, of course, be other sources of income.

Men whose opinions carry official weight in golf are not certain whether reward as great as has been estimated would attend Miss Berg's departure from the amateur ranks. Helen Hicks, now Mrs. Whitney Harb, associated herself with a sporting goods firm at the height of her fame; but it is doubted that even a small fortune came to her in return for her abandonment of amateur status. Comparative riches are more likely to fall to tennis players turning pro as a result of indoor play. This is obviously not possible in golf.

In any case the buoyant Patty is so happy in her amateur environment, so intent upon regaining the National Amateur crown, as to render negligible any inducement in the way of commercializing her golfing talent. Then, too, her father, Herman L. Berg, although not a man of wealth is sufficiently well-endowed as to income to bulwark his known objection to having a pro golfer in his family.

Girls who Have Turned Pro

Not many outstanding women golfers have gone commercial. Miss Joyce Wethered, probably the greatest woman shot-maker the world has seen to date, gave up her amateur standing several years ago and at once made a tour of this country, marked by large galleries and various lucrative advertising contracts. Having done this she married Sir John Heathcote Amory and now, as Lady Amory, her interest in golf is purely sporting.

Mary Browne, one of the most accomplished women athletes ever developed in this country went pro willy-nilly as a result of her affiliation with cash and carry Pyle's Tennis Circus. Thus relinquishing her amateur standing in lawn tennis, some ill-advised publicity in connection with her tennis tour in which her eminence as a golfer was extolled, brought her under the U. S. G. A. ban. Later, however, she was reinstated.

In fact, last year in the qualifying round for the National Women's event she was one of only seven to turn in a card showing a score below eighty. Her best in amateur play came in the 1924 U. S. G. A. women's championship when she finished as runner-up to the then Dorothy Campbell Hurd, now Mrs. Edward L. Howe.

Another deserter from the amateur ranks was Miss Helen Detweiler, never a champion, but none the less a corking golfer. Mrs. Opal S. Hill, still another fine exponent of the game and Babe Didrickson, now Mrs. George Zaharias, round out the list.

Opportunities for Pro Play

If Patty Berg ever does turn pro she would have to accept such financial return as accrued in lieu of many pleasant contacts through tourney play and social functions therewith associated. Two or three tournaments would be open to her, as for instance an affair conducted by the Western Women's Open. In a more general sense her social status would depend upon herself. She would necessarily lost a certain element of caste, as tennis players seem to do, merely because of her transfer from one branch of the sport to the commercial side. Joyce Wethered certainly did not. It all depends upon the individual.

Incidentally, they say that the recent contest between Patty and Miss Betty Jameson, national titleholder, at Miami-Biltmore recently was a thriller. The champion carried Miss Berg 38 holes before she yielded. One will appreciate how much is expected of the young Minnesota lass these days when comment concerning that match by critical observers is quoted. Her putting and approach shots "were not up to her usual high standard," it was said. Inasmuch as she shot two 76 rounds on a woman's par 82 course one well may wonder what extraordinary feat she would have accomplished had her approaches and green play been up to her standard.

Concord Five Ekes Out 60-58 Win over Salem

Athens, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP)—Concord's Mountain Lions nosed out Salem 60 to 58 tonight in a basketball game which was decided in the last minute of play after the Tigers had let most of the way.

Salem took an early lead, and the half ended with the Tigers ahead 32-30. In the second half the Mountain Lions spurted ahead and the lead changed twice before James McNeish, Concord pivot man, tossed in the deciding basket with only 20 seconds to go.

The rampaging Barrels climaxed a great drive in the German Brewery League last week by winning tnree games from the Bottles to oust the Cases from first place and take over the lead in the last half chase.

A week ago the Barrels shaved the Cases' edge to one game and this week, while the previous pace-setters were dropping three to the Labels, scored a sweep victory to grab a two-game lead.

In the other matches, the Cellars stopped the Crowns by a 3-0 score and the Brewers outlasted the Bungs to register a 2-1 victory.

In addition to taking over the pacing berth, the Barrels set a new record for three games, breaking the old mark of 2,583 made by the Cases with a 2,598 total. Dill contributed 556 pins and Carpenti 503. Stakem's 478 topped the Battles.

Meet the Girls' Izaak Walton Club

Le Center, Minn. (AP) — Girls here would be interested in knowing the feminine equivalent of Izaak Walton.

Taking no back talk from the men folks in the matter of conservation, they have organized a girls' group of Waltonites, but the difficulties of translating the venerable Ike into the female language have left them with the Girls' Izaak Walton Club for their name.

They believe they have the first such organization in the country. While the men's outfit studies conservation matters — with one eye on future takings of ducks and fish — the girls occupy themselves with the care and feeding of songbirds.

Start New Orleans Open Is Delayed by Western

New Orleans, Feb. 19. (AP)—A one-day postponement of the $10,000 New Orleans open golf tournament, originally scheduled to start Wednesday, was announced today because rain has delayed the Western open at Houston, Tex.

The pro-amateur best-ball matches will begin Thursday, and the regular 72-hole competition will get under way Friday with one round each day, ending on Monday instead of Sunday.

BANG! BANG! BANG!—Sharpshooters of Drexel Institute in Philadelphia line up for a "shot" in the school gym.

No Reds To Leave From Cincinnati

Cincinnati, Feb. 19 (AP)—Unless all signs fail, it looked today as if Cincinnati "M-Day" for the National League champion Reds would be distinguished for its lack of mobilization.

So far as front office attaches could ascertain, nary a member of the team is likely to board the Tampa-bound train when it pauses here next Monday or Tuesday.

Not that they won't show up in camp on March 1. It's just that all of them—even rookie Lloyd Dietz of nearby Dayton, Ky.—are scattered in all parts of the country.

All but four of 38 on the roster have signed contracts and these, unless they hurry, likely will find General Manager Warren C. Giles in Tampa, if and when they are ready to talk turkey. Giles is expected to head south late this week.

The four are not considered holdouts and only two, catcher Ernie Lombardi and shortstop Billy Myers, were full-time "regulars" on last year's pennant team. Wally Berger and third baseman Lew Riggs are considered only as possible trading material.

Lombardi had been as loquacious as a clam since mailing back his unsigned contract, but as he prepared today to leave his Oakland, Calif., home for the Reds' Tampa training camp he announced he would discuss contract terms when he arrived.

He reported he anticipated "no trouble."

Dispatch duxmen, who last week climbed from a second-place tie into the pacing spot in the Kelly Springfield League, increased their margin to three games this week at Club Recreation by scoring another sweep victory, this time over the Kellys.

However, the feature of the evening was the establishment of a new team game record by the Buckeyes, who despite breaking a season mark lost 2-1 to the Registereds. After losing two games to the Registereds, the Buckeyes came back to win the third by the overwhelming margin of 1,025 to 849. The old record of 1,010 was held by Dispatch.

Dispatch had little trouble with the Kellys as Northrup with 448 and Miller with 444 led the winners' offensive. Costello with 489 featured for the Kellys.

Slemmer with 485 and Utz with 474 featured for the Buckeyes while in the record-breaking game, Slemmer rolled 202 and Trail 211. Thompson was high for the Registereds with 499.

In the other matches, Robertson with 503 led the Camel Backs to a 3-0 victory over the Coasters, paced by Sulser's 452, and the Commercials, with Boden rolling 211-508, stopped the Kant Slips 2-1.

Davis Hi Defeats Piedmont by 43-31

Davis, W. Va., Feb. 19 (Special)—Davis high school basketball team played host to Piedmont here tonight but played the visitors off their feet in the second and third periods to win 43-31.

The third period rally was necessary for the home team to come through before a crowd of 300 fans as Piedmont stepped out to ring up 16 points in the final quarter, one more than its total in the first three.

The count was deadlocked at 7-7 in the first quarter and Davis went to the front 19-11 at half time. It was another case of Piedmont being limited to four points in the third quarter as Davis tallied 14 points to lead 35-15 at the intermission before the final furlong.

Gaynor with 13 and Moore with ten points topped the Davis scorers. Niland nicked the notches for a dozen tallies for Piedmont with Blackburn adding eight.

On Wednesday night Davis entertains the strong Coalton team here.

Dartmouth climbed to within a game of the rejuvenated Holy Cross crew which is setting the pace in the second half chase of the SS. Peter and Paul Mixed League, by recently scoring a 3-0 victory over Southern California, while the leaders were winning 2 to 1 over Army. Holy Cross' defeat by a 123-pin margin in the second game was the first loss of the second half for the leaders.

After losing its seventh straight game to the Yale Bulldogs in the other match, Notre Dame bounced back to capture the next two tilts. In the first game Yale set a new team record for one game by spilling 824 pins but in the next tussle Notre Dame bettered the mark by shoving 825 sticks into the pits. The Elis, however, managed to emerge from the match with a new set record by piling a 2,355 wood pile.

Johnny Briner sent 428 maples flying to pace the Holy Cross crew while John Billard and Paul Cioni, for the third successive week, were the Cadets' high scorers with marks of 416 and 413, respectively. "Father Time" Barney Martz applied his scythe to 436 sticks in pacing Notre Dame. Other team leaders were Ed Neus, Yale, 449; Tom Grabenstein, Southern California, 380; and Paul Moore, Dartmouth, 447.

The three-way tie for first place in the Georges Creek Bowling League second-half campaign was broken last week with the Henrys ci Keyser scoring a sweep victory over Midland on the winners' alleys to go to the fore.

The Devon Club and Piedmont's Fallons, knotted with Keyser for the lead before last week's contests, are in a tie for second as a result of scoring 2-1 victories. Devon Cluo bested Lonaconing at the latter place and Piedmont won over Frostburg's Majestics at Frostburg.

Keyser turned in games of 750, 740 and 748 in trimming Midland Brotemarkle with 487 and Casey and Oss each with 466 featured for Henry's crew while "Herbie" Stevens was high for Midland with 433.

Lonaconing spilled three more pins than the Devon Club but lost the match. Although the team totals were close, two of the games were decided by large margins. "Bud" Kelly of the Devon Club with 506 and "Jake" Moses of Lonaconing with 502 were the leading pinspillers.

Jess Jacobs of Frostburg had the week's high set with 533. He topped off games of 160 and 165 with a 228 effort. "Fats" Marsh paced Piedmont's attack with 508. The summaries:

Allegany Host to Fort Hill Teams Tonight

Sentinel Boys Can Upset Campobello "Championships"

WMI and City Crown Quests at Issue in Game at Campobello

Central Is at Bruce and Barton at Beall in Finales

If Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Fort Hill high Sentinels can do at Campobello tonight what they started too late to accomplish at their home gym several weeks ago, they can upset a couple of applecarts for Walter L. "Bill" Bowers Allegany high quint.

Allegany is headed for the WMI and city basketball championships held last year by the Sentinels. The Blue and White won over Fort Hill in their first game by 44-33 but it was only because of the Sentinels slow start that Allegany was able to stave off the last half rush of Cavanaugh's reserve crew.

Tonight's tilt is the final WMI skirmish for the Sentinels and they must win to stay in the running since Allegany has a postponed game with Barton to play. Allegany has won seven of eight games being upset by Central, while Fort Hill has taken seven of nine, losing to Allegany and Beall.

Bearing on City Crown

Tonight's game also will have a distinct bearing on the city series chase, since a Fort Hill victory will put LaSalle on even terms with Allegany and make their clash at Allegany March 8 a city championship tussle. Otherwise LaSalle can only tie it up with a win, necessitating a play-off.

In tonight's preliminary Allegany's girls meet Fort Hill's lassies and, on the comparative score of their initial setto, it should be all Allegany again since the Campobello girls had little difficulty in that first skirmish.

The girls' game starts at 7:15 wit hthe boys' battle billed to begin at 8:30 o'clock.

Central and Bruce teams will bring WMI campaigns to a close by meeting at Westernport while in the other loop twin bill, Barton and Beall outfits will clash at Frostburg. The boys' tilt at Westernport should be close while Central's girls, who clinched the title last week, are top-heavy favorites. Beall's boys and Barton's girls should score wins at Frostburg.

In other contests tonight, Ridgley will play at Keyser and the Petersburg Vikings will go to Moorefield for Potomac Valley Conference games. Romney will journey to Capon Bridge, Martinsburg and Charles Town will meet at the latter place and Hagerstown will exchange shots with St. James at St. James.

On tonight's college program Frostburg State cagers, who were awarded a forfeit victory over Alderson-Broaddus last week, will be host to the California (Pa.) Teachers. Oakland High and the Frostburg Jayvees will tangle in the preliminary.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Feb. 19 (AP) — The recent baseball meetings at Belleair, Fla., aside from putting pitchers on a free-wheeling basis, did much to clear the air of the haze of apprehension which followed Commissioner Landis' seven-point bulletin.

In fact, Ford Frick sees the path finally opening toward a clearer understanding of major and minor league problems, and he gives the commissioner credit for the improved condition.

"The meeting was highly satisfactory," the National League president says. "And I really believe we are at last on the road to a solution of our problems.

"Much credit must go to Mr. Landis. He cooperated 100 per cent at the Belleair meeting. In fact, he even seemed to lean over backwards in his efforts to be fair.

"I think, also, that he gained a better understanding of the problems of the club owners, and his willingness to compromise on two major points indicates as much.

"Mr. Landis primarily is interested in the protection of the individual ball player. Everything he does pertaining to farm clubs and working agreements hinges on that.

"As a matter of fact, according to the present rules a player could be held down in the minors because the major league club which controlled him had no place for his on its own roster. I say it could be done, but it isn't.

"There are any number of men in the majors who came up through farm systems of other clubs. Paul Derringer, for instance, came up through the Cardinal system, as did Bill Lee. Eddie Miller is a product of the Yankee system, as is Joe Gallagher.

"No, they aren't held down, but the fact remains that they could be under our present rules.

"Anyway, the players who might raise a fuss to the effect that they were being kept in the minors are the ones who never would make major leaguers anyway."

Frick was sidetracked to the problems of minor leaguers.

"I don't want to say much about that," he protested. "I'm interested primarily in the majors, and the minor leaguers might say: 'Look who's trying to explain our problems.'

"But there are obvious problems, which I believe Mr. Landis understands better since our meeting. For instance, there's the problem of signing players. Mr. Landis winted it done directly by an official of the minor league club.

"Well, lots of these clubs in lower classifications aren't conducted on a year-around basis. You can't expect these young fellows to know all the ramifications of the game. Why, I believe you could count on your fingers the men who really understand all the rules of baseball procedure.

"I don't. I know the major league rules, and have other information, but so far as knowing them inside out is concerned, well, there aren't very many who qualify, and that's one of the reasons the rules must be rewritten before long.

"They may sound simple, but they're about as complicated as anything you could find. Why, Judge Branham told me he had to send a contract back to a club official seven times before it was right. And a contract is a comparatively simple doument.

"But we're on the right track now, and I think everybody came away from the Florida meeting with a brighter outlook."

Jack Marshall Wins

Patty Berg Seen As Contented Amateur Golfer

By LAWRENCE PERRY

New York, Feb. 19 (C.N.P.)—For just what reason does not appear, but talk has been heard in Florida and accepted with some seriousness in Patty Berg's home state, Minnesota, concerning temptations to turn professional now confronting this brilliant and personable young luminary. It is said she could earn an immense sum of money almost immediately through affiliation with one of the big golf supply firms. There would, of course, be other sources of income.

Men whose opinions carry official weight in golf are not certain whether reward as great as has been estimated would attend Miss Berg's departure from the amateur ranks. Helen Hicks, now Mrs. Whitney Harb, associated herself with a sporting goods firm at the height of her fame; but it is doubted that even a small fortune came to her in return for her abandonment of amateur status. Comparative riches are more likely to fall to tennis players turning pro as a result of indoor play. This is obviously not possible in golf.

In any case the buoyant Patty is so happy in her amateur environment, so intent upon regaining the National Amateur crown, as to render negligible any inducement in the way of commercializing her golfing talent. Then, too, her father, Herman L. Berg, although not a man of wealth is sufficiently well-endowed as to income to bulwark his known objection to having a pro golfer in his family.

Girls who Have Turned Pro

Not many outstanding women golfers have gone commercial. Miss Joyce Wethered, probably the greatest woman shot-maker the world has seen to date, gave up her amateur standing several years ago and at once made a tour of this country, marked by large galleries and various lucrative advertising contracts. Having done this she married Sir John Heathcote Amory and now, as Lady Amory, her interest in golf is purely sporting.

Mary Browne, one of the most accomplished women athletes ever developed in this country went pro willy-nilly as a result of her affiliation with cash and carry Pyle's Tennis Circus. Thus relinquishing her amateur standing in lawn tennis, some ill-advised publicity in connection with her tennis tour in which her eminence as a golfer was extolled, brought her under the U. S. G. A. ban. Later, however, she was reinstated.

In fact, last year in the qualifying round for the National Women's event she was one of only seven to turn in a card showing a score below eighty. Her best in amateur play came in the 1924 U. S. G. A. women's championship when she finished as runner-up to the then Dorothy Campbell Hurd, now Mrs. Edward L. Howe.

Another deserter from the amateur ranks was Miss Helen Detweiler, never a champion, but none the less a corking golfer. Mrs. Opal S. Hill, still another fine exponent of the game and Babe Didrickson, now Mrs. George Zaharias, round out the list.

Opportunities for Pro Play

If Patty Berg ever does turn pro she would have to accept such financial return as accrued in lieu of many pleasant contacts through tourney play and social functions therewith associated. Two or three tournaments would be open to her, as for instance an affair conducted by the Western Women's Open. In a more general sense her social status would depend upon herself. She would necessarily lost a certain element of caste, as tennis players seem to do, merely because of her transfer from one branch of the sport to the commercial side. Joyce Wethered certainly did not. It all depends upon the individual.

Incidentally, they say that the recent contest between Patty and Miss Betty Jameson, national title-holder, at Miami-Biltmore recently was a thriller. The champion carried Miss Berg 38 holes before she yielded. One will appreciate how much is expected of the young Minnesota lass these days when comment concerning that match by critical observers is quoted. Her putting and approach shots "were not up to her usual high standard," it was said. Inasmuch as she shot two 76 rounds on a woman's par 82 course one well may wonder what extraordinary feat she would have accomplished had her approaches and green play been up to her standard.

Concord Five Ekes Out 60-58 Win over Salem

Athens, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP)—Concord's Mountain Lions nosed out Salem 60 to 58 tonight in a basketball game which was decided in the last minute of play after the Tigers had let most of the way.

Salem took an early lead, and the half ended with the Tigers ahead 32-30. In the second half the Mountain Lions spurted ahead and the lead changed twice before James McNeish, Concord pivot man, tossed in the deciding basket with only 20 seconds to go.

Paw Paw Defeats St. Peter's 38 to 23

Piedmont, W. Va., Feb. 19 (Special) — Paw Paw high defeated St. Peter's high of Westernport here tonight at the K. of P. Armory 38 to 23. After being held to a 5-5 quarter score, the Paw Paw quint held a two-point lead, 13-11, at the half then stepped out to a 28-15 margin at the three quarters.

Bohrer paced the winners with 17 points while Pendergast led St. Peter's with 11 points.

In the preliminary the St. Peter's Juniors defeated Bruce high Juniors, 13-11.

The rampaging Barrels climaxed a great drive in the German Brewery League last week by winning three games from the Bottles to oust the Cases from first place and take over the lead in the last half chase.

A week ago the Barrels shaved the Cases' edge to one game and this week, while the previous pace-setters were dropping three to the Labels, scored a sweep victory to grab a two-game lead.

In the other matches, the Cellars stopped the Crowns by a 3-0 score and the Brewers outlasted the Bungs to register a 2-1 victory.

In addition to taking over the pacing berth, the Barrels set a new record for three games, breaking the old mark of 2,583 made by the Cases with a 2,598 total. Dill contributed 556 pins and Carpenti 503. Stakem's 478 topped the Battles.

Other team pace-setters were: Morrissey, Cellars, 499; G. Becker, Crowns, 406; Cross, Labels, 459; Bob Hager, Cases, 389; T. Hager, Brewers, 439, and Brodbeck, Bungs, 456.

Meet the Girls' Izaak Walton Club

Le Center, Minn. (AP) — Girls here would be interested in knowing the feminine equivalent of Izaak Walton.

Taking no back talk from the men folks in the matter of conservation, they have organized a girls' group of Waltonites, but the difficulties of translating the venerable Ike into the female language have left them with the Girls' Izaak Walton Club for their name.

They believe they have the first such organization in the country. While the men's outfit studies conservation matters — with one eye on future takings of ducks and fish — the girls occupy themselves with the care and feeding of songbirds.

Start New Orleans Open Is Delayed by Western

New Orleans, Feb. 19. (AP)—A one-day postponement of the $10,000 New Orleans open golf tournament, originally scheduled to start Wednesday, was announced today because rain has delayed the Western open at Houston, Tex.

The pro-amateur best-ball matches will begin Thursday, and the regular 72-hole competition will get under way Friday with one round each day, ending on Monday instead of Sunday.

BANG! BANG! BANG!—Sharpshooters of Drexel Institute in Philadelphia line up for a "shot" in the school gym.

No Reds To Leave From Cincinnati

Cincinnati, Feb. 19 (AP)—Unless all signs fail, it looked today as if Cincinnati "M-Day" for the National League champion Reds would be distinguished for its lack of mobilization.

So far as front office attaches could ascertain, nary a member of the team is likely to board the Tampa-bound train when it pauses here next Monday or Tuesday.

Not that they won't show up in camp on March 1. It's just that all of them—even rookie Lloyd Dietz of nearby Dayton, Ky.—are scattered in all parts of the country.

All but four of 38 on the roster have signed contracts and these, unless they hurry, likely will find General Manager Warren C. Giles in Tampa, if and when they are ready to talk turkey. Giles is expected to head south late this week.

The four are not considered holdouts and only two, catcher Ernie Lombardi and shortstop Billy Myers, were full-time "regulars" on last year's pennant team. Wally Berger and third baseman Lew Riggs are considered only as possible trading material.

Lombardi had been as loquacious as a clam since mailing back his unsigned contract, but as he prepared today to leave his Oakland, Calif., home for the Reds' Tampa training camp he announced he would discuss contract terms when he arrived.

He reported he anticipated "no trouble."

Dispatch duxmen, who last week climbed from a second-place tie into the pacing spot in the Kelly Springfield League, increased their margin to three games this week at Club Recreation by scoring another sweep victory, this time over the Kellys.

However, the feature of the evening was the establishment of a new team game record by the Buckeyes, who despite breaking a season mark lost 2-1 to the Registereds. After losing two games to the Registereds, the Buckeyes came back to win the third by the overwhelming margin of 1,025 to 849. The old record of 1,010 was held by Dispatch.

Dispatch had little trouble with the Kellys as Northrup with 448 and Miller with 444 led the winners' offensive. Costello with 489 featured for the Kellys.

Slemmer with 485 and Utz with 474 featured for the Buckeyes while in the record-breaking game, Slemmer rolled 202 and Trail 211. Thompson was high for the Registereds with 499.

In the other matches, Robertson with 503 led the Camel Backs to a 3-0 victory over the Coasters, paced by Sulser's 452, and the Commercials, with Boden rolling 211-508, stopped the Kant Slips 2-1.

Davis Hi Defeats Piedmont by 43-31

Davis, W. Va., Feb. 19 (Special)—Davis high school basketball team played host to Piedmont here tonight but played the visitors off their feet in the second and third periods to win 43-31.

The third period rally was necessary for the home team to come through before a crowd of 300 fans as Piedmont stepped out to ring up 16 points in the final quarter, one more than its total in the first three.

The count was deadlocked at 7-7 in the first quarter and Davis went to the front 19-11 at half time. It was another case of Piedmont being limited to four points in the third quarter as Davis tallied 14 points to lead 35-15 at the intermission before the final furlong.

Gaynor with 13 and Moore with ten points topped the Davis scorers. Niland nicked the notches for a dozen tallies for Piedmont with Blackburn adding eight.

On Wednesday night Davis entertains the strong Coalton team here.

Dartmouth climbed to within a game of the rejuvenated Holy Cross crew which is setting the pace in the second half chase of the SS. Peter and Paul Mixed League, by recently scoring a 3-0 victory over Southern California, while the leaders were winning 2 to 1 over Army. Holy Cross' defeat by a 123-pin margin in the second game was the first loss of the second half for the leaders.

After losing its seventh straight game to the Yale Bulldogs in the other match, Notre Dame bounced back to capture the next two tilts. In the first game Yale set a new team record for one game by spilling 824 pins but in the next tussle Notre Dame bettered the mark by shoving 825 sticks into the pits. The Elis, however, managed to emerge from the match with a new set record by piling a 2,355 wood pile.

Johnny Briner sent 428 maples flying to pace the Holy Cross crew while John Billard and Paul Cioni, for the third successive week, were the Cadets' high scorers with marks of 416 and 413, respectively. "Father Time" Barney Martz applied his scythe to 436 sticks in pacing Notre Dame. Other team leaders were Ed Neus, Yale, 449; Tom Grabenstein, Southern California, 380; and Paul Moore, Dartmouth, 447.

The three-way tie for first place in the Georges Creek Bowling League second-half campaign was broken last week with the Henrys of Keyser scoring a sweep victory over Midland on the winners' alleys to go to the fore.

The Devon Club and Piedmont's Fallons, knotted with Keyser for the lead before last week's contests, are in a tie for second as a result of scoring 2-1 victories. Devon Club bested Lonaconing at the latter place and Piedmont won over Frostburg's Majestics at Frostburg.

Keyser turned in games of 750, 740 and 748 in trimming Midland. Brotemarkle with 487 and Casey and Oss each with 466 featured for Henry's crew while "Herbie" Stevens was high for Midland with 433.

Lonaconing spilled three more pins than the Devon Club but lost the match. Although the team totals were close, two of the games were decided by large margins. "Bud" Kelly of the Devon Club with 506 and "Jake" Moses of Lonaconing with 502 were the leading pinspillers.

Jess Jacobs of Frostburg had the week's high set with 533. He topped off games of 160 and 165 with a 228 effort. "Fats" Marsh paced Piedmont's attack with 508. The summaries:

Specialties Advance in Market, But Remainder of List Sells Off

Turnover Is Small and Losses for Most Part Are Small

By FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, Feb. 19. (AP)—Despite a few striking gains by specialties, stocks in general slipped a bit today.

The session traveled over a rough course, but at such a slow rate that little damage was suffered. An early morning sell-off was wiped out, and fractoinal gains appeared toward noon, but the list slipped again at the finish.

As a result, the Associated Press average of sixty stocks declined .1 of a point at 50.3. The turnover was 633,410 shares.

Star performer was Brooklyn-Queens Transit preferred which zoomed fifteen points and retained twelve of them to close at forty-two, a 1939 high. Other highs for the year were set by Loft, Cluett Peabody and Martin Parry.

In other divisions of the big board sentiment was confused by the drops in industrial activity and retail buying, in the midst of prospects for a pickup in sales of materials to European belligerents.

The session provided minus signs for such stocks as U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, General Motors, Chrysler, Harvester, United Aircraft, Western Union, General Electric, New York Central and Texas Corp.

Boosted fractionally in undecisive Curb transactions were Phoenix Securities, Brewster Aero, American Cyanamid "B" and International Petroleum. On the down side were Fairchild Engine and Aircraft and Creole Petroleum. Turnover was 165,000 shares.

Chicago Grain Prices

Chicago, Feb. 19 (AP)—Marketing of wheat that has been tied up since last summer's harvest under government loans helped to unsettle the grain market today, resulting in an irregular price movement.

May contracts, representing the 1939 crop, finished 1/8-1/2 cent lower than Saturday at $1.02 3/4-1/2.

July and September contracts, representing the coming 1940 crop, closed unchanged to 1/4 higher at $1.00 7/8-3/4 and $1.00 1/2-3/8.

The trend of prices in other pits also was unsettled. Corn closed 1/8 lower to 1/4 higher, May 56 3/8-3/4, July 57; oats unchanged to 1/4 down, rye 3/8-3/8 down and lard 2-5 lower. Soy beans advanced about 2 cents at one stage but closed 3/4-7/8 net higher.

'Intermezzo, Love Story', Opens Today at Maryland

Ingrid Bergman, the young continental actress is introduced to American audiences for the first time in the David O. Selznick production, "Intermezzo, a Love Story," in which she is co-starred with Leslie Howard and Edna Best. This picture a love story set in modern-day Europe, is scheduled for its premiere showing at the Maryland theater today through United Artists release.

Miss Bergman, a blonde plays the role of the other woman in "Intermezzo, a Love Story." The story, briefly told, concerns a world-famous violinist who returns home to Stockholm to rejoin his wife and two children after a two years' absence during which he became the sensation of continental Europe. Hoping to settle down to a quiet existence and to renew acquaintance with his family, he finds himself restless and anxious for a life of youth and gayety.

He urges his wife to accompany him on a second honeymoon to the places which he visited on tour but she explains that her roots are in her home and that her children need her love and guidance. When he meets the lovely young pianist who teaches his daughter, he is strangely attracted to her. He cannot resist her charms and he goes of on another tour with her, leaving his family behind. How their affair finally winds up provides the film with an unexpected climax.

Tarkington Classic Is Feature at the Strand

Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen" which opens at the Strand today and continues tomorrow and Thursday, is recognized as one of the cleverest, wittiest and gayest stories of puppy love ever written. The book, when published, swept the country like wildfire. Produced as a stage play a year or so later, it was a hit in the metropolitan centers and was a success for over three years on road tour.

Although modernized, the present version retains its original charm that made it one of the most delightful sagas of American adolescent love and family life. Old timers will need no description of it, but for those unfamiliar with its basic plot, it is the story of seventeen-year-old Willie Baxter, who, accutely aware of approaching manhod, falls head over heels in love with Lola Pratt, a sophisticated city girl who has come to visit her country cousin. Courting his lady with might and main, Willie experiences pecks of trouble as the fickle lady gives him the go-by and his friends desert him. Only in the sympathy of his family does he find solace for a blasted life.

Jackie Cooper will be seen in the leading role, with the lovely Betty Field appearing as Lola. Otto Kruger and Ann Shoemaker will be the boy's father and mother, and a newcomer, little Betty Moran, will be his impish sister.

"Seventeen" is the sort of a picture that everyone will be happy to see. It is excellent screen fare.

The shorts include Popeye, the Sailor, "Unusual Occupations" filmed in color and the Paramount and Fox News Flashes.

'YUMPH' MEETS 'GOO' AND 'WOO'

Joy Hodges, baby Sandy and Hugh Herbert in "Little Accident" now showing at the Liberty.

Star Astonished At Tiny Rival

Baby Sandy, whose infant charm and bubbling personality have made her the star-sensation of the year, can also take a bow as Hollywood's champion scene stealer.

That was the opinion voiced by Hugh Herbert, a well known scene pirate in his own right, while the comedian was working on his co-starring role with Sandy in "Little Accident," Universal film now at the Liberty theater with Florence Rice, Richard Carlson, Joy Hodges and Ernest Truex.

"I don't mind risking my reputation by working with a baby who makes a habit of walking off with acting honors," Herbert explained with a grin to Charles Lamont, the director. "But when she starts to ad-lib her dialogue, makes up her lines as she goes along — well she's definitely stealing my stuff."

According to Herbert, Sandy is the most captivating child with whom he has worked in forty years of theatrical experience.

Double Feature Bill Is Offered at Garden

There's a reason why Jimmy Cagney shoves grapefruit in a lady's face.

It's the reason why Ed Keene ate a box of fifty cigars for a sequence in Warner Brothers' "The Roaring Twenties," now at the Garden.

He'll probably never introduce a grapefruit to a lady that way again, though since the success of that first achievement heaven knows enough script writers have tried to get him to do it.

What was good enough for Jimmy once isn't good enough for him a second time. When he's hard-boiled he strives to put over his toughness in a variety of ways. His policy is to keep the audience guessing; to keep them anticipating what he will do.

Twenty-five youngsters, ranging in age from 6 to 12, anticipated the time of their lives when they received a call from the Hal Roach studios to "play around" on location for one of the sequences of "Zenobia," the romantic comedy now showing at the Garden.

First shadow of apprehension came with their visit to the wardrobe department. Here they were togged out in the most extraordinary play suits they had ever seen. The boys donned tight-fitting long trousers, shirts with ruffles, windsor ties and crowning the odd ensemble were round hats with streamers on them or caps that had strings and tassels hanging from the peaks. The girls were assigned hoop-skirt dresses.

"Fugitive at Large" and "The Hurricane"

Closing today at the Embassy theater will be the twin hit attraction consisting of Jack Holt in "Fugitive at Large," with Patricia Ellis in the supporting role. The second feature being Samuel Goldwyn's "The Hurricane" starring Dorothy Lamour, Jon Hall, Mary Astor, Raymonw Massey and C. Aubrey Smith.

Opening tomorrow at the Embassy theater will be another bill consisting aof Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Fast and Furious," starring Franchot Tone and Ann Sothern. The second attraction being the exclusive, official motion pictures of the international world's heavyweight champion vs. the heavyweight champion of South America, Arturo Godoy, fifteeen rounds of action, blow by blow description. See for yourself who should have really won the decision. In addition to the two features you will see another chapter of the serial hit "Flash Gordon's Trip To Mars," starring Buster Crabbe.

"INTERMEZZO, A LOVE STORY" NOW AT MARYLAND

Edna Best and Ingrid Bergman are the two women who love Leslie Howard in "Intermezzo, a Love Story," the new romantic drama produced by David O. Selznick and now showing at the Maryland theater through United Artists release.

after a cold then what

DOCTORS stress remaining in bed until the body temperature is normal. Sound advice.

You know how weak you feel after a cold. Colds play havoc in weakening the body. The story is well told in the blood picture. It is important to build back body strength right away to carry the load of work, worries, and loss of sleep. A weakened body may be more susceptible to relapse or long drawn out recovery.

So reason sensibly and take the choice of millions by immediately starting on a course of S.S.S. Tonic — taken three times a day immediately before meals. In the absence of a focal infection or organic disease, you should note improvement in the way you feel and look within the first 10 days. The confidence of millions over many years is the best testimonial of this product.

An experience with S.S.S Tonic will cause you to say to your friends, S.S.S. made me "feel and look like myself again."

Specialties Advance in Market, But Remainder of List Sells Off

Turnover Is Small and Losses for Most Part Are Small

By FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, Feb. 19. (AP)—Despite a few striking gains by specialties, stocks in general slipped a bit today.

The session traveled over a rough course, but at such a slow rate that little damage was suffered. An early morning sell-off was wiped out, and fractoinal gains appeared toward noon, but the list slipped again at the finish.

As a result, the Associated Press average of sixty stocks declined .1 of a point at 50.3. The turnover was 633,410 shares.

Star performer was Brooklyn-Queens Transit preferred which boomed fifteen points and retained twelve of them to close at forty-two, a 1939 high. Other highs for the year were set by Loft, Cluett Peabody and Martin Parry.

In other divisions of the big board sentiment was confused by the drops in industrial activity and retail buying, in the midst of prospects for a pickup in sales of materials to European belligerents.

The session provided minus signs for such stocks as U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, General Motors, Chrysler, Harvester, United Aircraft, Western Union, General Electric, New York Central and Texas Corp.

Boosted fractionally in undecisive Curb transactions were Phoenix Securities, Brewster Aero, American Cyanamid "B" and International Petroleum. On the down side were Fairchild Engine and Aircraft and Creole Petroleum. Turnover was 165,000 shares.

Chicago Grain Prices

Chicago, Feb. 19 (AP)—Marketing of wheat that has been tied up since last summer's harvest under government loans helped to unsettle the grain market today, resulting in an irregular price movement.

May contracts, representing the 1939 crop, finished ⅛-½ cent lower than Saturday at $1.02¾-1⅞.

July and September contracts, representing the coming 1940 crop, closed unchanged to ¼ higher at $1.00⅞-¾ and $1.00½-⅝.

The trend of prices in other pits also was unsettled. Corn closed ⅛ lower to ¼ higher, May 56⅝-¾, July 57; oats unchanged to ¼ down, rye ⅛-⅜ down and lard 2-5 lower. Soy beans advanced about 2 cents at one stage but closed ¾-⅞ net higher.

'Intermezzo, Love Story', Opens Today at Maryland

Ingrid Bergman, the young continental actress is introduced to American audiences for the first time in the David O. Selznick production, "Intermezzo, a Love Story," in which she is co-starred with Leslie Howard and Edna Best. This picture a love story set in modern-day Europe, is scheduled for its premiere showing at the Maryland theater today through United Artists release.

Miss Bergman, a blonde plays the role of the other woman in "Intermezzo, a Love Story." The story, briefly told, concerns a world-famous violinist who returns home to Stockholm to rejoin his wife and two children after a two years' absence during which he became the sensation of continental Europe. Hoping to settle down to a quiet existence and to renew acquaintance with his family, he finds himself restless and anxious for a life of youth and gayety.

He urges his wife to accompany him on a second honeymoon to the places which he visited on tour but she explains that her roots are in her home and that her children need her love and guidance. When he meets the lovely young pianist who teaches his daughter, he is strangely attracted to her. He cannot resist her charms and he goes of on another tour with her, leaving his family behind. How their affair finally winds up provides the film with an unexpected climax.

Tarkington Classic Is Feature at the Strand

Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen" which opens at the Strand today and continues tomorrow and Thursday, is recognized as one of the cleverest, wittiest and gayest stories of puppy love ever written. The book, when published, swept the country like wildfire. Produced as a stage play a year or so later, it was a hit in the metropolitan centers and was a success for over three years on road tour.

Although modernized, the present version retains its original charm that made it one of the most delightful sagas of American adolescent love and family life. Old timers will need no description of it, but for those unfamiliar with its basic plot, it is the story of seventeen-year-old Willie Baxter, who, accutely aware of approaching manhood, falls head over heels in love with Lola Pratt, a sophisticated city girl who has come to visit her country cousin. Courting his lady with might and main, Willie experiences pecks of trouble as the fickle lady gives him the go-by and his friends desert him. Only in the sympathy of his family does he find solace for a blasted life.

Jackie Cooper will be seen in the leading role, with the lovely Betty Field appearing as Lola. Otto Kruger and Ann Shoemaker will be the boy's father and mother, and a newcomer, little Betty Moran, will be his impish sister.

"Seventeen" is the sort of a picture that everyone will be happy to see. It is excellent screen fare.

The shorts include Popeye, the Sailor, "Unusual Occupations" filmed in color and the Paramount and Fox News Flashes.

'YUMPH' MEETS 'GOO' AND 'WOO'

Joy Hodges, baby Sandy and Hugh Herbert in "Little Accident" now showing at the Liberty.

Star Astonished At Tiny Rival

Baby Sandy, whose infant charm and bubbling personality have made her the star-sensation of the year, can also take a bow as Hollywood's champion scene stealer.

That was the opinion voiced by Hugh Herbert, a well known scene pirate in his own right, while the comedian was working on his co-starring role with Sandy in "Little Accident," Universal film now at the Liberty theater with Florence Rice, Richard Carlson, Joy Hodges and Ernest Truex.

"I don't mind risking my reputation by working with a baby who makes a habit of walking off with acting honors," Herbert explained with a grin to Charles Lamont, the director, "But when she starts to ad-lib her dialogue, makes up her lines as she goes along — well she's definitely stealing my stuff."

According to Herbert, Sandy is the most captivating child with whom he has worked in forty years of theatrical experience.

Double Feature Bill Is Offered at Garden

There's a reason why Jimmy Cagney shoves grapefruit in a lady's face.

It's the reason why Ed Keene ate a box of fifty cigars for a sequence in Warner Brothers' "The Roaring Twenties," now at the Garden.

He'll probably never introduce a grapefruit to a lady that way again, though since the success of that first achievement heaven knows enough script writers have tried to get him to do it.

What was good enough for Jimmy once isn't good enough for him a second time. When he's hard-boiled he strives to put over his toughness in a variety of ways. His policy is to keep the audience guessing; to keep them anticipating what he will do.

Twenty-five youngsters, ranging in age from 6 to 12, anticipated the time of their lives when they received a call from the Hal Roach studios to "play around" on location for one of the sequences of "Zenobia," the romantic comedy now showing at the Garden.

First shadow of apprehension came with their visit to the wardrobe department. Here they were togged out in the most extraordinary play suits they had ever seen. The boys donned tight-fitting long trousers, shirts with ruffles, windsor ties and crowning the odd ensemble were round hats with streamers on them or caps that had strings and tassels hanging from the peaks. The girls were assigned hoop-skirt dresses.

"Fugitive at Large" and "The Hurricane"

Closing today at the Embassy theater will be the twin hit attraction consisting of Jack Holt in "Fugitive at Large," with Patricia Ellis in the supporting role. The second feature being Samuel Goldwyn's "The Hurricane" starring Dorothy Lamour, Jon Hall, Mary Astor, Raymonw Massey and C. Aubrey Smith.

Opening tomorrow at the Embassy theater will be another bill consisting aof Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Fast and Furious," starring Franchot Tone and Ann Sothern. The second attraction being the exclusive, official motion pictures of the international world's heavyweight champion vs. the heavyweight champion of South America, Arturo Godoy, fifteeen rounds of action, blow by blow description. See for yourself who should have really won the decision. In addition to the two features you will see another chapter of the serial hit "Flash Gordon's Trip To Mars," starring Buster Crabbe.

after a cold then what
DOCTORS stress remaining in bed until the body temperature is normal. Sound advice.
You know how weak you feel after a cold. Colds play havoc in weakening the body. The story is well told in the blood picture. It is important to build back body strength right away to carry the load of work, worries, and loss of sleep. A weakened body may be more susceptible to relapse or long drawn out recovery.
So reason sensibly and take the choice of millions by immediately starting on a course of S.S.S. Tonic—taken three times a day immediately before meals. In the absence of a focal infection or organic disease, you should note improvement in the way you feel and look within the first 10 days. The confidence of millions over many years is the best testimonial of this product.
An experience with S.S.S Tonic will cause you to say to your friends, S.S.S. made me "feel and look like myself again."

Bruce High School Faculty Will Present 'Everybody's Crazy Now'

Show Will Be Staged at High School Feb. 29 and Mar. 1

Westernport, Feb. 19. (AP)—Members of the Bruce high school faculty will make their initial appearance as thespians when "Everybody's Crazy Now" is staged February 29 and March 1, in the school auditorium.

Unusual histrionic ability has been discovered among the members of the cast and it is predicted that Principal John W. Fisher, who portrays the role of Hiram Dill, will steal the show.

The characters include June Austin, a young and pretty girl who has recently completed a course in finishing school, Miss Lois Hodgson; Greg Beecher, June's boyhood sweetheart, David C. Taxis; Ada Austin, June's mother, Miss Margaret Hayden; Basil Lindsay, a famous author, Charles C. Carney; Nan York, a friend of June, Miss Bernadette O'Rourke.

Stan Barbour, graduate of an osteopathic school, in love with Nan, John E. Grindle; Hetty Metcalfe, a maid who isn't quite right, Miss Hazel Kalbaugh; Hiram Dill, an old man interested in buying the Austin home, John W. Fisher; Gyshia Arndt, a friend of Basil, Miss Edna Maxwell; Lee Tyson, a gigolo, Okey Michael.

Dramatic Club Will Present Play Thursday

"The Night Owl" Will Be Given at Oakland High School

Oakland, Feb. 19 — Members of the Dramatic club of Oakland high school will present an unusual mystery comedy, "The Night Owl," in the high school auditorium Thursday evening, at 8 o'clock.

The scenes take place in an old haunted house in the country during a thunder storm. Strange things happen after a writer of plays comes to the house for inspiration. Candles float across the room, lights go out automatically and hats amble across the room and disappear into a trunk.

The characters are portrayed by Clara Beckman, Raymond Chaney, Mareva Rhodes, Edward Means, Annice Haney, Edward Smouse, Peggy Casteel, DeCorsey Bolden, Mary Treacy and Frank Fazzalari.

Basketball Tonight

Because of the Dramatic club play in the high school Thursday, the usual time for playing the church basketball league games will be changed to tomorrow evening, Tuesday, February 20. The Lutherans and Episcopals will meet in the first game while the Catholics and Methodists will tangle in the second game.

Last week's games resulted in a four-way tie, each team having won two and lost two. The first game will begin at 7:30.

Union Lenten Services will continue Wednesday evening with meeting of Episcopal, Lutheran and Methodist congregations in the Methodist church, at 7:45, the Rev. David C. Trimble, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal church will speak on "I Am the Way." The Lenten mid-week services are centered around the theme, "The Great Affirmations of Jesus," and meet in the various churches. There will also be union Holy Week services.

Besides the regular services in the Lutheran church, Dr. A. B. Leamer, pastor, is conducting a series of Sunday night services in his church, arranged with the purpose of making his congregation meditative and prayerful.

The Rev. Trimble has arranged sermons upon "Life's Opposites" each Sunday morning in Lent. Every Friday morning at 7:30 there will be a service of Holy Communion lasting one-half hour. Every Friday evening there will be a service of Evening Prayer with address, at 7:30. This is being followed by a Bible class. The subject is "The Gospel of St. Mark."

The Methodist and Lutheran churches will have a combined three-hour service on Good Friday, while three-hour services will also be held by the Episcopal church and the Catholic church.

$265,000 Loss from Fire in W. Va.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP)—Fire losses of about $265,000 were reported today from four Southern West Virginia communities along with the death of a six-year-old girl whose clothing ignited from an open grate.

All fires occurred yesterday.

At Slagle, Logan county, the tipple and theater of the Logan County Coal Corporation burned with a loss President H. E. Jones fixed at $200,000. About 500 men will be idle for four months until a new tipple can be installed at the mines, Jones said.

The store, office and warehouse of the Star Coal and Coke Corporation at Red Star, Fayette county, also was destroyed. Jones, who also heads the Star company, estimated the damage at $50,000.

Flames destroyed the three-story frame Longdale Masonic lodge at Winona, Fayette county. The building also housed a theater and bank. Cashier J. R. Hisey said damage would amount to about $10,000.

Majorie Helen Jarvis, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walters Jarvis of Oka, Roane county, died in a Spencer hospital. She was burned when her clothing ignited from an open grate.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Gray Springton burned at Spencer. Mrs. Springton said the loss would be between $4,000 and $5,000.

Mrs. Amanda Otto Succumbs after A Long Illness

Death Occurs at Her Home Near Springs in Garrett County

Grantsville, Feb. 19 — Mrs. Amanda Otto, 68, wife of D. D. Otto, died about 11 o'clock last night at her home near Springs. She had been in ill health for ten years, having suffered several strokes, and had been confined to her bed since last May.

Mrs. Otto was a woman of exceptional character. Her first interest was her family and home and next her church. She had been a faithful and devout member of the Springs Mennonite church for forty-seven years.

Mrs. Otto lived in this section practically all of her life. She was born near Meyersdale, April 9, 1872, a daughter of Jonas and Barbara Maust, natives of that community. She married D. D. Otto forty-seven years ago.

Surviving are her husband, one daughter and three sons. They are, Miss Cora Otto, at home, The Rev. Roy Otto, pastor of the Springs Mennonite church, Walter Otto and Floyd Otto, all of the Springs community. The following brothers and sisters also survive: Jonas Maust, Milford, Ind., Joseph Maust, Pidgeon, Mich., Louis and Joel Maust, near Meyersdale, Simon Maust, Springs, Mrs. Henry Yoder and Mrs. Annie Yoder, Wellman, Iowa, Mrs. Jacob Gnagey (Barbara), Wauseon, Ohio, and Mary Maust, Meyersdale, a twin sister.

Messrs. Edwin Kolb, E. D. Davis, S. W. Bender, J. H. Bender, J. J. Otto, and N. S. Maust will serve as pallbearers.

Joseph Bowman Dies

Joseph Bowman, 84, died about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home at Accident. He was born in this section and for a number of years lived on a farm near the Bear Creek Fish Hatchery. He was engaged in farming all his life. Some fifty years ago he married Annie Bach, who survives him. He also leaves one son, by a previous marriage, who resides on the Pacific Coast.

Seek Canning Factory

For some time there has been a growing desire on the part of the farmers in this section to have a medium of some sort for marketing their vegetables. A canning factory seemed the most logical, as produce grown from the fertile soil of this large farming community is of an exceptionally good quality. Cooperating with the farmers the business people from Grantsville, Springs, Salisbury and Meyersdale will meet with their rural neighbors Tuesday evening to discuss the feasibility of the plan and, if deemed advisable, get the movement started. The meeting is to be held at the Springs school building at 7:30 o'clock. Speakers familiar with this industry will be present.

Brief Mention

Midland Red Men To Celebrate Forty-Second Anniversary Soon

Tioga Tribe No. 126 Plans Celebration on Friday Evening

Midland, Feb. 19—Tioga Tribe No. 126, Improved Order of Red Men will celebrate the forty-first anniversary of their organization Friday night. The function will be attended by members and their guests and also by the local Boy Scout troop which is sponsored by the Red Men order.

The national order of Red Men had its inception ten years before the drafting of the Declaration of Independence under the name of Sonus of Liberty. In 1813 they were re-organized under the name Society of Red Men and then again in 1854, in Baltimore, the present organization was founded under the present name Improved Order of Red Men.

Tioga Tribe, now composed of nearly a hundred members, was started in Loar's Hall, the present site of Ort's Baker: The charter shows that the original membership consisted of William Wellings, John W. Seaman, John D. Loar, W. H. Wellings, Robert R. Loar, John Yates, William B. Yates, Robert Mason, Conrad Kammauf, Richard Williams, William Robertson, Charles Humberson, David W. Morgan, John Wilson, Isaac Morgan, James Schumbert, William Davis, Archibold G. Davis, John Kammauf, John Campbell and Robert Hill. There is not a charter member left in the present Midland lodge.

A distinction for the local order is in having one of its members, Thomas H. Taylor, as the Great Sachem of the state of Maryland. This office is the highest in the Red Men order in the state and is only the second time in 104 years that an Allegany county man has been so honored, John J. Stump, Westernport, a member of Black Hawk Tribe, was Great Sachem in 1916.

The committee in charge of the affair has made arrangements so that the birthday of Washington and the anniversary of the organization may be celebrated simultaneously. The feature of the evening will be ice cream with tiny red hatchets in it symbolic of both the Red Men and the life of George Washington.

Bar Gates Installed

After several weeks of construction by the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad the bar gate equipment at Railroad and Union streets has been put into operation and motorists have ample warning of approaching railway traffic. On both sides of Union street approximately a hundred yards from the crossing, signs have been erected warning of the crossing. When the controls are tripped by an approaching train at night eighteen red lights start to flash and the bars are lowered. In the day time bells ring before the bars start to lower. Because of the poor visibility of the tracks due to the location of the Firemen's Hall the crossing guard is of great benefit.

Miners Refuse To Enter Mine

Welch, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP) — A group of miners variously estimated to number between 80 and 120 did not work today at the Crozier Coal and Coke Company's plant because of a dispute over who should hand out their new electric lamps.

Jess Aquino, United Mine Worker representative, said company officials told 120 workers to go home after the men refused to pick up the work lamps at a "self-service" place. The men contended the company should distribute them through an official. An operators' spokesman said eighty men were affected.

Keyser Citizens Protest Removal Of R.R. Terminal

C. W. VanHorn, General Manager, of B&O Will Be in Keyser Today

Keyser, W. Va., Feb. 19 — Mayor John C. Freeland this morning received a telegram from C. W. VanHorn, Baltimore, general manager of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company, announcing that the railroad official would arrive here tomorrow to confere with city officers in connection with the closing of the line's terminal here. Numerous letters and telegrams have been sent to Baltimore protesting the removal of the terminal, Freeland said.

Although orders were issued Thursday calling for closing down of operations in the yards here Sunday a later bulletin stated that work in Keyser would continue through today.

Immediately upon his arrival tomorrow VanHorn will enter into conference with Freeland and a committee of citizens. Although results of the discussion are unpredictable, those interested in railroad affairs here saw some significance in the fact that the general manager of the line is coming in person.

Union Lenten Services will continue Wednesday evening with meeting of Episcopal, Lutheran and Methodist congregations in the Methodist church, at 7:45, the Rev. David C. Trimble, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal church will speak on "I Am the Way." The Lenten mid-week services are centered around the theme, "The Great Affirmations of Jesus," and meet in the various churches. There will also be union Holy Week services.

Besides the regular services in the Lutheran church, Dr. A. B. Leamer, pastor, is conducting a series of Sunday night services in his church, arranged with the purpose of making his congregation meditative and prayerful.

The Rev. Trimble has arranged sermons upon "Life's Opposites" each Sunday morning in Lent. Every Friday morning at 7:30 there will be a service of Holy Communion lasting one-half hour. Every Friday evening there will be a service of Evening Prayer with address, at 7:30. This is being followed by a Bible class. The subject is "The Gospel of St. Mark."

The Methodist and Lutheran churches will have a combined three-hour service on Good Friday, while three-hour services will also be held by the Episcopal church and the Catholic church.

$265,000 Loss from Fire in W. Va.

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP)—Fire losses of about $265,000 were reported today from four Southern West Virginia communities along with the death of a six-year-old girl whose clothing ignited from an open grate.

All fires occurred yesterday.

At Slagle, Logan county, the tipple and theater of the Logan County Coal Corporation burned with a loss President H. E. Jones fixed at $200,000. About 500 men will be idle for four months until a new tipple can be installed at the mines, Jones said.

The store, office and warehouse of the Star Coal and Coke Corporation at Red Star, Fayette county, also was destroyed. Jones, who also heads the Star company, estimated the damage at $50,000.

Flames destroyed the three-story frame Longdale Masonic lodge at Winona, Fayette county. The building also housed a theater and bank Cashier J. R. Hisey said damage would amount to about $10,000.

Majorie Helen Jarvis, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walters Jarvis of Oka, Roane county, died in a Spencer hospital. She was burned when her clothing ignited from an open grate.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Gray Springton burned at Spencer. Mrs. Springton said the loss would be between $4,000 and $5,000.

Mrs. Amanda Otto Succumbs after A Long Illness

Death Occurs at Her Home Near Springs in Garrett County

Grantsville, Feb. 19 — Mrs. Amanda Otto, 68, wife of D. D. Otto, died about 11 o'clock last night at her home near Springs. She had been in ill health for ten years, having suffered several strokes, and had been confined to her bed since last May.

Mrs. Otto was a woman of exceptional character. Her first interest was her family and home and next her church. She had been a faithful and devout member of the Springs Mennonite church for forty-seven years.

Mrs. Otto lived in this section practically all of her life. She was born near Meyersdale, April 9, 1872, a daughter of Jonas and Barbara Maust, natives of that community. She married D. D. Otto forty-seven years ago.

Surviving are her husband, one daughter and three sons. They are, Miss Cora Otto, at home, The Rev. Roy Otto, pastor of the Springs Mennonite church, Walter Otto and Floyd Otto, all of the Springs community. The following brothers and sisters also survive: Jonas Maust, Milford, Ind., Joseph Maust, Pidgeon, Mich., Louis and Joel Maust, near Meyersdale, Simon Maust, Springs, Mrs. Henry Yoder and Mrs. Annie Yoder, Wellman, Iowa, Mrs. Jacob Gnagey (Barbara), Wauseon, Ohio, and Mary Maust, Meyersdale, a twin sister.

Messrs. Edwin Kolb, E. D. Davis, S. W. Bender, J. H. Bender, J. J. Otto, and N. S. Maust will serve as pallbearers.

Joseph Bowman Dies

Joseph Bowman, 84, died about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home at Accident. He was born in this section and for a number of years lived on a farm near the Bear Creek Fish Hatchery. He was engaged in farming all his life. Some fifty years ago he married Annie Bach, who survives him. He also leaves one son, by a previous marriage, who resides on the Pacific Coast.

Seek Canning Factory

For some time there has been a growing desire on the part of the farmers in this section to have a medium of some sort for marketing their vegetables. A canning factory seemed the most logical, as produce grown from the fertile soil of this large farming community is of an exceptionally good quality. Cooperating with the farmers the business people from Grantsville, Springs, Salisbury and Meyersdale will meet with their rural neighbors Tuesday evening to discuss the feasibility of the plan and, if deemed advisable, get the movement started. The meeting is to be held at the Springs school building at 7:30 o'clock. Speakers familiar with this industry will be present.

Brief Mention

Tioga Tribe No. 126 Plans Celebration on Friday Evening

Midland, Feb. 19—Tioga Tribe No. 126, Improved Order of Red Men will celebrate the forty-first anniversary of their organization Friday night. The function will be attended by members and their guests and also by the local Boy Scout troop which is sponsored by the Red Men order.

The national order of Red Men had its inception ten years before the drafting of the Declaration of Independence under the name of Sonus of Liberty. In 1813 they were re-organized under the name Society of Red Men and then again in 1854, in Baltimore, the present organization was founded under the present name Improved Order of Red Men.

Tioga Tribe, now composed of nearly a hundred members, was started in Loar's Hall, the present site of Ort's Baker: The charter shows that the original membership consisted of William Wellings, John W. Seaman, John D. Loar, W. H. Wellings, Robert R. Loar, John Yates, William B. Yates, Robert Mason, Conrad Kamnauf, Richard Williams, William Robertson, Charles Humberson, David W. Morgan, John Wilson, Isaac Morgan, James Schumbert, William Davis, Archibold G. Davis, John Kammauf, John Campbell and Robert Hill. There is not a charter member left in the present Midland lodge.

A distinction for the local order is in having one of its members, Thomas H. Taylor, as the Great Sachem of the state of Maryland. This office is the highest in the Red Men order in the state and is only the second time in 104 years that an Allegany county man has been so honored, John J. Stump, Westernport, a member of Black Hawk Tribe, was Great Sachem in 1916.

The committee in charge of the affair has made arrangements so that the birthday of Washington and the anniversary of the organization may be celebrated simultaneously. The feature of the evening will be ice cream with tiny red hatchets in it symbolic of both the Red Men and the life of George Washington.

Bar Gates Installed

After several weeks of construction by the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad the bar gate equipment at Railroad and Union streets has been put into operation and motorists have ample warning of approaching railway traffic. On both sides of Union street approximately a hundred yards from the crossing, signs have been erected warning of the crossing. When the controls are tripped by an approaching train at night eighteen red lights start to flash and the bars are lowered. In the day time bells ring before the bars start to lower. Because of the poor visibility of the tracks due to the location of the Firemen's Hall the crossing guard is of great benefit.

Miners Refuse To Enter Mine

Welch, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP) — A group of miners variously estimated to number between 80 and 120 did not work today at the Crozier Coal and Coke Company's plant because of a dispute over who should hand out their new electric lamps.

Jess Aquino, United Mine Worker representative, said company officials told 120 workers to go home after the men refused to pick up the work lamps at a "self-service" place. The men contended the company should distribute them through an official. An operators' spokesman said eighty men were affected.

Keyser Citizens Protest Removal Of R.R. Terminal

C. W. VanHorn, General Manager, of B&O Will Be in Keyser Today

Keyser, W. Va., Feb. 19 — Mayor John C. Freeland this morning received a telegram from C. W. VanHorn, Baltimore, general manager of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company, announcing that the railroad official would arrive here tomorrow to confere with city officers in connection with the closing of the line's terminal here. Numerous letters and telegrams have been sent to Baltimore protesting the removal of the terminal, Freeland said.

Although orders were issued Thursday calling for closing down of operations in the yards here Sunday a later bulletin stated that work in Keyser would continue through today.

Immediately upon his arrival tomorrow VanHorn will enter into conference with Freeland and a committee of citizens. Although results of the discussion are unpredictable, those interested in railroad affairs here saw some significance in the fact that the general manager of the line is coming in person.

Betsy Roosevelt Also Files Suit

Wife of President's Son Charges Cruelty and Desertion

Los Angeles, Feb. 19 (AP)—Mrs. Betsy Cushing Roosevelt filed a cross complaint today to the divorce suit of James Roosevelt, son of the president.

She asked a divorce on the grounds of cruelty and desertion.

The action, filed through Attorney Neil S. McCarthy, asked court approval of a property settlement which she said had been agreed upon and which provides a payment of certain sums for the support of herself and their two children, Sara Delano Roosevelt, 7, and Kate Roosevelt, 4.

Roosevelt, eldest son of the president, sued for divorce here Thursday, charging desertion. Both petitions said the plaintiffs were married in Brookline, Mass., June 4, 1930, and separated Nov. 1, 1938.

Details of the property settlement were not disclosed, but the petition said the written agreement would be submitted for the court's approval at the time of the trial.

The question of custody of the two children was unmentioned in either complaint.

Cabinet Officers To Appear before Labor Board Probers

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP) — The House Committee investigating the National Labor Relations Board tonight issued subpoenas for three cabinet officers "or their representatives" to appear tomorrow for testimony in connection with charges by the committee's counsel that NLRB had attempted to "blackjack" employers.

In making the "blackjacking" charge, the committee counsel had reference to evidence that the NLRB had sought to have government contracts withheld from companies accused of violating the Wagner act.

The cabinet officers on whom the committee said the subpoenas were served were Secretary of Interior Ickes, Secretary of the Navy Edison and Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Subpoenas also were issued and served on H. E. Collins of the treasury procurement division, the government's big purchasing agent, and George R. Cooksey of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The subpoenas required that they bring with them all correspondence or other documents which might relate to alleged "overtures" made to them by the labor board to withhold contracts, loans or other government business on account of any litigation pending before the board.

President of Paraguay Makes Self Dictator

Asuncion, Paraguay, Feb. 19 (AP)—President Gen. Jose Felix Estigarribia made himself virtual dictator of Paraguay Sunday with a formal decree that he was assuming "all political powers" for such time as deemed necessary to secure order, peace and prosperity for the nation.

He told the country in a broadcast prior to issuance of the decree that he was acting with the full approval and cooperation of the army and navy in order to save the republic "from anarchy."

Members of both chambers of the Paraguayan Parliament already had resigned and the president today also approved a new cabinet replacing the ministry which resigned Friday.

Gen. Estigarribia, 51-year-old hero of the Chaco war against Bolivia, later ar exile from his country, and then Paraguay's minister to Washington, was inaugurated president last Aug. 15 for a four-year term.

Brush Burning Law Effective March Twentieth

Necessary To Obtain Permits in West Virginia after That Date

Parsons, W. Va., Feb. 19 — A notice that the brush burning law would be efective March 20 was issued today by local forestry officials. The officials stated that farmers who have cleared land or rubbish to dispose of by burning can do so at any time without a permit up until March 20. After that date the law requiring permits is again effective until May 20.

Ranger R. L. Rowland, of the Parsons forest office, urges burning before the opening of the spring season in the Monongahela National forest, when fires spread rapidly and unexpectedly. Ranger Rowland also stated:

"Even if the burning is done now, a lot of precaution is necessary. This is especially true if our present snow should leave suddenly and expose leaves to wind and sun. Burn on a calm day and have enough help handy with water and tools in case the fire spreads. Do not leave your fire unattended nor until the fire is entirely out."

When permits are required, they can be secured at the rangers office here or from local game protectors.

Season To Close

Coach Myrl Kepner announces that Parsons high school will finish up their basketball season this week. Moorefield wil lplay here Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. 20 Frenchmen Die On Western Front

Germans Attack for Third Successive Day

Paris, Feb. 19 (AP)—German forces raiding repeatedly on the western front attacked French lines for the third successive day today.

Tonight's high command communique stated that a German detachment was repulsed with some losses after an assault west of the Saar river. Previous raids had been reported beaten off Saturday and Sunday in the Moselle Valley.

Whether the local attacks were intended as a preparation for a larger offensive or were designed simply to cause wear and tear on the French front was not known.

Heavy cannonading rumbled along the extreme northern part of the western front as French batteries pounded the German town of Peri near the Luxembourg frontier, and military dispatches said the courthouse there, used to quarter Nazi troops, had been reduced to rubble.

The bombardment was described as retaliation for persistent German shelling of the French town of Apach, almost directly opposite Perl.

Earlier in the day a French patrol fell into a German ambush east of the Neid river. About twenty men were killed and eight others were wounded. It was the heaviest loss in a single engagement the French have suffered on the western front since October.

The French continued, however, to cling to strategic outposts at the northern end of the front, which they have held since their mid-October withdrawal from German territory.

A series of German attempts to pinch off these outposts has been the principal activity of the past week.

Mrs. Lelaney Held For Grand Jury

Proctor, W. Va., Feb. 19, (AP)—A three-year-old boy looked on uncomprehendingly today while the state formally asked that his mother, Mrs. Violet Delaney, 16, be held for grand jury action on a charge of slaying his father.

Mrs. Long, erstwhile "child bride," declined to testify when arraigned before Magistrate John Richardson and waived hearing.

She was ordered held on a murder charge for the shotgun death of Okey Long, 27.

Tomorrow her counsel, Sam McEldowney, is scheduled to petition Circuit Judge James Shipman at Moundsville for admittance to bail.

The boy and Mrs. Long's parents accompanied the dark-haired defendant from the New Martinsville jail to the magistrate's court. Mrs. Long wept intermittently during the trip.

Sheriff Frank Berger has said the young mother related she did not know the gun was loaded when she pointed it at Long last Thursday and pulled the trigger.

Prosecutor E. W. Coffield said her case would be presented to the grand jury convening May 6.

1500 Persons Are Stricken with Flu

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP)—The State Health Department, noting reports that 1,500 persons were stricken with influenza during the week ended February 17, advised all persons today to seek immediate treatment for colds and symptoms of 'flu.

In Fayette county alone there were 584 cases, with 19 persons reported ill from pneumonia.

At the same time, the department said whooping cough patients had doubled in number during the past week, with forty cases reported. Fayette county had thirty-three persons afflicted.

Improper care of colds and the changing weather were blamed largely by the department for the increase in influenza.

In Marion county, 223 persons were ill of the 'flu; 225 in Summers, 140 in Doddridge, 121 in Monroe, 98 in Monongalia and ninety-three in Lewis.

Betsy Roosevelt Also Files Suit

Wife of President's Son Charges Cruelty and Desertion

Los Angeles, Feb. 19 (AP)—Mrs. Betsy Cushing Roosevelt filed a cross complaint today to the divorce suit of James Roosevelt, son of the president.

She asked a divorce on the grounds of cruelty and desertion.

The action, filed through Attorney Neil S. McCarthy, asked court approval of a property settlement which she said had been agreed upon and which provides a payment of certain sums for the support of herself and their two children, Sara Delano Roosevelt, 7, and Kate Roosevelt, 4.

Roosevelt, eldest son of the president, sued for divorce here Thursday, charging desertion. Both petitions said the plaintiffs were married in Brookline, Mass., June 4, 1930, and separated Nov. 1, 1938.

Details of the property settlement were not disclosed, but the petition said the written agreement would be submitted for the court's approval at the time of the trial.

The question of custody of the two children was unmentioned in either complaint.

Cabinet Officers To Appear before Labor Board Probers

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP) — The House Committee investigating the National Labor Relations Board tonight issued subpoenas for three cabinet officers "or their representatives" to appear tomorrow for testimony in connection with charges by the committee's counsel that NLRB had attempted to "blackjack" employers.

In making the "blackjacking" charge, the committee counsel had reference to evidence that the NLRB had sought to have government contracts withheld from companies accused of violating the Wagner act.

The cabinet officers on whom the committee said the subpoenas were served were Secretary of Interior Ickes, Secretary of the Navy Edison and Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Subpoenas also were issued and served on H. E. Collins of the treasury procurement division, the government's big purchasing agent, and George R. Cooksey of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The subpoenas required that they bring with them all correspondence or other documents which might relate to alleged "overtures" made to them by the labor board to withhold contracts, loans or other government business on account of any litigation pending before the board.

President of Paraguay Makes Self Dictator

Asuncion, Paraguay, Feb. 19 (AP)—President Gen. Jose Felix Estigarribia made himself virtual dictator of Paraguay Sunday with a formal decree that he was assuming "all political powers" for such time as deemed necessary to secure order, peace and prosperity for the nation.

He told the country in a broadcast prior to issuance of the decree that he was acting with the full approval and cooperation of the army and navy in order to save the republic "from anarchy."

Members of both chambers of the Paraguayan Parliament already had resigned and the president today also approved a new cabinet replacing the ministry which resigned Friday.

Gen. Estigarribia, 51-year-old hero of the Chaco war against Bolivia, later an exile from his country, and then Paraguay's minister to Washington, was inaugurated president last Aug. 15 for a four-year term.

Brush Burning Law Effective March Twentieth

Necessary To Obtain Permits in West Virginia after That Date

Parsons, W. Va., Feb. 19 — A notice that the brush burning law would be efective March 20 was issued today by local forestry officials. The officials stated that farmers who have cleared land or rubbish to dispose of by burning can do so at any time without a permit up until March 20. After that date the law requiring permits is again effective until May 20.

Ranger R. L. Rowland, of the Parsons forest office, urges burning before the opening of the spring season in the Monongahela National forest, when fires spread rapidly and unexpectedly. Ranger Rowland also stated:

"Even if the burning is done now, a lot of precaution is necessary. This is especially true if our present snow should leave suddenly and expose leaves to wind and sun. Burn on a calm day and have enough help handy with water and tools in case the fire spreads. Do not leave your fire unattended nor until the fire is entirely out."

When permits are required, they can be secured at the rangers office here or from local game protectors.

Season To Close

Coach Myrl Kepner announces that Parsons high school will finish up their basketball season this week. Moorefield wil iplay here Wednesday night at 8 o'clock. Circleville will play tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 and Petersburg will play here Friday night. The season will be brought to a close Saturday night when Parsons goes to Keyser. Franklin plays at Thomas on Thursday night and Harpers Ferry plays at Davis on Saurday night.

Brief Items

Blackwater Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution met in Davis on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. L. H. Mott. The program was in charge of Miss Alice Parsons, of this city.

The Parent-Teachers Association will give a program in the graded school auditorium Thursday night.

Rains today throughout the county melted much of the snow but no immediate flood danger is feared although the rivers are several feet above normal. Snow fell here Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Robinson were recent visitors in Clarksburg with friends.

20 Frenchmen Die On Western Front

Germans Attack for Third Successive Day

Paris, Feb. 19 (AP)—German forces raiding repeatedly on the western front attacked French lines for the third successive day today.

Tonight's high command communique stated that a German detachment was repulsed with some losses after an assault west of the Saar river. Previous raids had been reported beaten off Saturday and Sunday in the Moselle Valley.

Whether the local attacks were intended as a preparation for a larger offensive or were designed simply to cause wear and tear on the French front was not known.

Heavy cannonading rumbled along the extreme northern part of the western front as French batteries pounded the German town of Perl near the Luxembourg frontier, and military dispatches said the courthouse there, used to quarter Nazi troops, had been reduced to rubble.

The bombardment was described as retaliation for persistent German shelling of the French town of Apach, almost directly opposite Perl.

Earlier in the day a French patrol fell into a German ambush east of the Neid river. About twenty men were killed and eight others were wounded. It was the heaviest loss in a single engagement the French have suffered on the western front since October.

The French continued, however, to cling to strategic outposts at the northern end of the front, which they have held since their mid-October withdrawal from German territory.

A series of German attempts to pinch off these outposts has been the principal activity of the past week.

A Slimming Jacket Ensemble

Marian Martin
PATTERN 9323

What's the most useful "go between" style of any wardrobe? A jacket ensemble, of course! Marian Martin's Pattern 9323 is the perfect filler-in for that gap between "coatless" days. The soft dress is smart on its own, with its front panelled, flared skirt. Make the sleeves short or have them three-quarter length with gathered softness. See the lovely line of the V-neck as it curves down into the front buttoning! The well-shaped yokes hold fullness below for ease at the bustline. Use a tie or buckle belt, and, for an extra touch, consider running lace edging around the neck and down the front.

Pattern 9323 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36, ensemble, requires 5⅝ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Our new Marian Martin pattern book brings the world of fashion right into your home! Without stirring from your arm-chair, you can plan your whole Spring wardrobe—on inexpensive, easy-to-sew terms. There's evening drama, followed by a complete trousseau for the Spring bride. Gay school and play modes for tots, teens and twenties — plus slim-line matron frocks, home chic, vivacious cottons, prints and travel wear. Order a copy now! Book fifteen cents. Pattern fifteen cents. Book and pattern together, twenty-five cents.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

In compliance with the provisions of the Charter of the City of Cumberland and Ordinance No. 1705, passed in pursuance thereof, I hereby give notice that the Commissioners appointed to ascertain the damages and assess benefits, incident to the closing of a certain un-named alley running from Federal Street to King Street (Parelleling Lexington Avenue) in Walsh's Addition to Cumberland, Maryland, and abutting on the easterly line of Lots Nos. 414 to Lots 422 inclusive (which lots front on Lexington Avenue) and the westerly line of Lots No. 446 and 454 in said addition, and also the closing of that part of a certain un-named alley intersecting the alley hereinbefore referred to and abutting on the northerly line of Lots Nos. 445 and 446 (which lots front on Federal Street) and the Southerly line of Lots Nos. 453 and 454 in said addition (which lots front on King Street), have filed the following report with the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, upon the 29th day of January, 1940, and any person feeling aggrived thereby may file an appeal to the Circuit Court of Allegany County, within thirty days after the filing of said report:

As per your request we have today inspected the property in rear of Lots No. 414 to No. 422 inclusive Lexington Avenue as shown on Plat as also Lots 453 and 454 King Street and Lots 445 and 446 also shown on same Plat, all of the lots facing on Lexington Avenue. Including Lots Nos. 453 and 454 facing on King Street as also Lots 443 to 446 inclusive facing on Federal Street are owned by D. T. Tharp. Lots No. 451 and 452 facing on King Street are owned by Mrs. Nellie Nixon and we have interviewed both of these parties and find that neither of them object to the closing of Alley in rear of these lots.

We therefore assess no damage, and find no benefits.

Respectfully Submitted,
C. GLENN WATSON,
A. G. McELFISH,
JOHN G. WIEBEL.
S. E. GRIMINGER, City Clerk.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

In compliance with the provisions of the Charter of the City of Cumberland and Ordinance No. 1705, passed in pursuance thereof, I hereby give notice that the Commissioners appointed to ascertain the damages and assess benefits, incident to the closing of a certain un-named alley running from Federal Street to King Street (Parelleling Lexington Avenue) in Walsh's Addition to Cumberland, Maryland, and abutting on the easterly line of Lots Nos. 414 to Lots 422 inclusive (which lots front on Lexington Avenue) and the westerly line of Lots No. 446 and 454 in said addition, and also the closing of that part of a certain un-named alley intersecting the alley hereinbefore referred to and abutting on the northerly line of Lots Nos. 445 and 446 (which lots front on Federal Street) and the Southerly line of Lots Nos. 453 and 454 in said addition (which lots front on King Street), have filed the following report with the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, upon the 29th day of January, 1940, and any person feeling aggrieved thereby may file an appeal to the Circuit Court of Allegany County, within thirty days after the filing of said report:

As per your request we have today inspected the property in rear of Lots No. 414 to No. 422 inclusive Lexington Avenue as shown on Plat as also Lots 453 and 454 King Street and Lots 445 and 446 also shown on same Plat, all of the lots facing on Lexington Avenue, including Lots Nos. 453 and 454 facing on King Street as also Lots 443 to 446 inclusive facing on Federal Street are owned by D. T. Tharp. Lots No. 451 and 452 facing on King Street are owned by Mrs. Nellie Nixon and we have interviewed both of these parties and find that neither of them object to the closing of Alley in rear of these lots.

We therefore assess no damage, and find no benefits.

Respectfully Submitted,
C. GLENN WATSON,
A. G. McELFISH,
JOHN G. WIEBEL.

Harry Radcliffe Kills Himself with Revolver

Coroner Says Death Of Sheriff's Brother Was Accidental

A bullet through the mouth from his .38 caliber revolver yesterday caused the death of Harry R. Radcliffe, brother of Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe.

Radcliffe, 42, a former constable and a special deputy sheriff under his brother, was found yesterday at 4:20 p. m. in the basement of his home at LaVale.

A verdict of accidental death was given by Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy medical examiner.

Talked With Wife

He encountered his wife in the basement and they conversed briefly while he played with the dog. Mrs. Radcliffe went upstairs a few seconds later.

According to Dr. Corson, she had been upstairs about a minute when she heard a gunshot in the basement.

She found her husband slumped over a concrete block at the foot of the cellar stairs. The revolver, which he always carried in his pocket, lay at his feet.

Radcliffe still had on his overcoat. His hat was on the floor.

County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle was called. He said the victim had apparently been sitting on the concrete block when the gun went off.

Dr. Corson said the bullet went through the mouth and skull of the victim.

Officers admitted they could only speculate as to what actually happened in the basement, since there were no witnesses.

No Note Left

Dr. Corson said he called the death accidental because Radcliffe left no suicide note, because he had seemed in good spirits and had been playing with the dog, and because he had spoken casually with his wife only a moment before his death.

On finding the body, Mrs. Radcliffe ran to the home of her parents-in-law nearby and telephoned the sheriff's office.

Sheriff Radcliffe was out of the city, but Deputy Edward P. Kaylor answered the phone and dispatched Deputy John Patton and Constable James L. Jones to the home without being able to learn from the grief-stricken wife what the trouble was.

She merely said hysterically, "Send someone out here quick."

The deputies notified the county investigator and the medical examiner when they arrived at the LaVale home and found Radcliffe dead.

Sheriff in Clarksburg

Sheriff Radcliffe was in Clarksburg, W. Va., yesterday with State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris to investigate a fraud case. Mr. Harris returned to Cumberland by train early in the evening, but the sheriff was to have remained overnight to clear up some details today.

Notified of the tragedy by telephone, he took the next train and arrived here shortly after midnight.

Mr. Radcliffe had resigned as constable several months ago, but continued to serve as a special deputy sheriff. He had recently substituted for Deputy Sheriff Henry W. McKee, ill in the hospital for several weeks.

Member of Elks Lodge

He had worked as a salesman in recent years and was formerly associated with his uncle, Lucian Long, in a Ridgeley grocery store.

Mr. Radcliffe was a member of the Elks and the Masons. He attended Centre Street Methodist church.

Surviving, besides his wife, the former Miss Pearl L. Hinebaugh, and Sheriff Radcliffe, are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Radcliffe, of LaVale; two other brothers, Robert Lee and Jonathan Radcliffe, of LaVale; and three sisters, Mrs. Ruth Long, of LaVale, Mrs. Charles Eckhart, of Eckhart, and Mrs. Gilbert Walters, of Fairmont, W. Va.

Supreme Chaplain To Visit K. of C.

Impetus will be given the selective membership campaign of Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus, when the Rev. Leo M. Finn, of Bridgeport, Conn., supreme chaplain of the order, visits the local council Sunday. It is expected that Father Finn will be accompanied by John A. Flanigan, of Baltimore, state deputy of Maryland.

Plans for a reception for the supreme chaplain and entertainment for the members during his stay here will be arranged as soon as the definite time of his arrival is known to the campaign committee of the council.

Dr. G. Frank Malin, president, will announce committee appointments at the meeting, scheduled for 8 p. m. at Mateer's Tavern, 249 North Centre street.

All sportsmen are invited to attend.

Burglar Gets Arsenal From Wilson Hardware

Police were uneasy yesterday following a week-end burglarly that netted the burglar a small arsenal of several automatic pistols, ammunition and a box of blackjacks.

Employes of the Wilson hardware store, 30 North Mechanic street, discovered that the store had been robbed yesterday morning.

County Voters Once Vetoed Public Schools

But That Was Many Years Ago, Says Gunter in Talk

Allegany county's school system of today is a far cry from the days of 1839, when citizens voted down a proposal that the county support public schools, members of the Exchange club heard last night.

The speaker was William A. Gunter, president of the county board of education who traced the development of public schools here in an address at the club's weekly dinner-meeting at Central Y. M. C. A.

Legislation was passed in 1839 to establish county school systems, Mr. Gunter explained, and Allegany county was one of six counties to turn the proposal down. Only school in the county was the Allegany County Academy, a private institution founded in 1798.

Chief objection was apparently the cost, the speaker said.

Consolidation Rapid

Proponents of public education finally triumphed several years later, however, Mr. Gunter went on, and the county today has a school system of which it can be proud.

More than 16,000 students are enrolled, school property is valued at about $3,000,000, and the annual operating budget is approximately $900,000, he told the club.

The school official noted the trend toward consolidation of schools, pointing out that there are now only fifty-one schools in the county, compared to over 100 schools fifteen or twenty years ago.

Advantages of consolidation included he said, decreased costs, provision of better facilities and better education generally.

Large Schools Cheapest

He pointed out that the per-pupil cost of large schools is much lower than that of smaller schools.

Mr. Gunter traced, too, the long struggle to take the county school board out of politics.

Originally, the board was elected by the people, he said, and schools affairs were deep in politics.

The appointive power was lodged successively in the Orphans court, the board of county commissioners, Circuit court and finally in the governor, where it remains today, he went on.

490 Teachers in County

The governor, elected for only a four-year term, makes school board appointments for six-year terms, and it is now impossible to make a "political football" out of the board, Mr. Gunter stated.

Other statistics quoted showed that of the $900,000 annual operating budget, the state pays one-third, the county, two-thirds; forty cents of every tax dollar goes for public education; and a staff of 490 teachers is employed in the county.

Mr. Gunter noted the other activities of the school system, including health promotion and sponsorship of Americanization classes for would-be citizens, as well as a broad adult education program in night classes.

Power Service to Farms Up 120 P. C.

Washington, Feb. 19. (AP)—Power service to Maryland farms increased 120 per cent between 1935 and June 30, 1939, the Rural Electrification Administration reported today.

"While this was substantially above the national average of 22.1 per cent, nevertheless two-thirds of Maryland's farm families were still without the benefits of high-line service," the report indicated.

Prior to 1935, the REA said, only 6,791 of Maryland's 44,501 farms had been connected with central power lines. The number had increased last June to approximately 15,000, or 33.4 per cent of all farms in the state.

The REA report declared its program had "been at least in part responsible for a marked increase in rural line construction by private utility companies."

Dies at 92, Worked Only 2 Years of Life

Cincinnati, Feb. 19. (AP)—Edwin Forest Wilder, who said he worked only two of his 92 years "and lost money at it," died today.

Interviewed two years ago, Wilder described himself as a "man of leisure doing just what I wanted to do and answerable to no one."

He increased an inherited fortune through speculation and "playing the horses," he said. A graduate of Cincinnati law school at the same time the late President and Chief Justice William Howard Taft was enrolled there, Wilder "never took a case."

Another letter! The lady writes:

"You seem to be a generous sort of fellow, to answer folks' querries.

"Would you please tell us about this new court official we are hearing so much about lately?

"He is called the 'court examiner.' Who is he, and what are his duties, for it is just lately that he has appeared on the scene.

"Heretofore, one had a lawyer when he was in trouble. You told him your story, from him it was heard by the judge. Now evidently you hire a lawyer, tell him your troubles, then tell them over again to this new party the court examiner. Which one tells the judge, the examiner or the lawyer?

"I am just plain curious. When a new officer bobs up frequently in the news, a person would like to know about him.

"And should you want to enter suit against some one, do you pay the lawyer and the examiner, too?

"Yours for a lot of success with your interesting column."

This lady has been reading divorce stories. The testimony is usually taken before the "court examiner." The judge, then considers this written testimony and makes his decision. Of course, either party to a divorce suit has a right to demand a hearing in open court, but this is usually avoided.

Court examiners are nothing new. It may be true, however, that reporters have not always brought out in their stories just who heard the testimony and asked the questions. Court examiners in all recent cases have been either Attorney Urner G. Carl or Attorney Estel C. Kelley.

So, my dear lady, you still pay your lawyer, the same as ever. And whoever pays the court costs pays the examiners fees, too.

Pythians Induct Class of 21

Anniversary Celebration Continues Tonight

The page rank class inducted by Cumberland Lodge No. 60 was named in honor of Grand Prelate Odith M. Brotemarkle, of Cumberland. State Senatr Robert B. Kimble "dedicated" the class to Mr. Brotemarkle, who responded with a short talk of appreciation.

Other speakers included Grand Chancellor Julius E. Schindler, of Cumberland; Grand Keeper of Records and Seal, A. Elwood Martak, of Baltimore; Past Supreme Representative Nelson W. Russler, of Cumberland; and Daniel F. Summey, of Charlotte, N. C., past imperial prince of the D.O.K.K.

Approximately 150 were present at the ceremony at Odd Fellows hall on South Mechanic street, including several from nearby Maryland and West Virginia points.

Tonight at 6:30 o'clock at Central YMCA, the lodge will sponsor an anniversary banquet at which 300 Pythians are expected to be present.

Mayor Continues Fight To Get City Men on Dam

WPA Problem Will Develop Here Otherwise, He Says

Mayor Harry Irvine's plan for taking care of WPA in Cumberland was outlined to council members yesterday as the mayor undertook to clarify his position in regard to the WPA situation.

"I am not inherently or stubbornly opposed to WPA," the mayor continued, "but merely to the way it has been applied locally in some instances."

The mayor's plan is based on his demand that Cumberland men be given jobs on the gigantic WPA project at the Savage river dam.

"Only Fair and Just"

"Only last Friday, Owen E. Hitchins, who is on the Upper Potomac River Commission, announced that some 1,500 men would soon be put to work on the dam," the mayor said.

"Now it is only fair and just that Cumberland workers be given some recognition on that project," the mayor continued.

Mayor Irvine pointed out that his administration planned to keep 380 men busy on WPA projects in the city. Today, the city is actually employing 484 workers on light projects, the mayor declared.

Send Single Men To Dam

"We will be able to take care of the quota we originally planned to take care of," the mayor said, "but if we continue to employ so many, they will start running out of work and this will result in all of them being placed in a tough position."

"Now, I have learned that transportation to and from the dam can be secured for fifty cents a day. Single men and men with small families could afford this charge.

"What I want to see done is simply this. Keep the married men with families employed on Cumberland projects. Obtain jobs for single workmen and married men with small families on the Savage river dam.

No Promise of Day Jobs Yet

"What I don't want to see done is to have every man, regardless of his need, dumped onto the Johnson Heights street jobs and have them finished up so quickly."

The mayor said that street improvement jobs would keep approximately 380 workers employed the better part of a year.

"And of course it's our hope that WPA will not be necessary for more than a year or two years at the outside," the mayor added. "If we have to keep on with it after that, I'm afraid the country will go busted."

Asked if he had been given assurance that Cumberland men would be put to work on the dam project, the mayor said "No, I haven't. But it's only fair and just that we be given some of those jobs. We have a right to expect some consideration on that project."

Negro Youth Leader To Aid Campaign For Community Center

Elder H. Russell, state director of Negro activities of the National Youth Administration, will address a meeting sponsored by the Frederick Street school and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Thursday at 8:00 p. m. in the school auditorium.

Mr. Russell will discuss the many advantages to be gained by having a community center for the colored youth of this city, and will also outline educational and employment possibilities under the NYA. The association is sponsoring a drive for funds with which to build the community center. Contributions are being received through the office of the Cumberland Guide, 124 Union street.

Other features of the program include a motion picture to be presented by Earl Bracey, principal of the Frederick Street school, and selections by the N.A.A.C.P. quartet.

Mayor Proclaims Americanism Week

Cumberland will observe Americanism Week starting Feb. 24 as the result of a proclamation issued yesterday by Mayor Harry Irvine on the suggestion of Cumberland Elks Lodge No. 63.

Auto Owner Uses Strong Arm Method On Alleged Thief Who Escaped Cop

Trouble started for 24-year-old Ralph Wratchford, of Valley road, when he first spotted a somewhat worn-looking 1930 automobile parked on North Centre street.

The young man proceeded to climb into the car when the owner suddenly appeared on the scene.

Escapes From Policeman

The owner proved to be none other than Officer R. V. "Sparky" Chisholm, who bellowed lustily at the man in his car.

Taking one look at the tremendous size of the officer bearing down on him, Wratchford bounded out of the car and sped away.

A few minutes later, the same young man climbed into another car parked on Columbia avenue.

And once again he was discovered, but this time he didn't give the indignant owner the slip.

Held for Police

The owner, Elmer Albright, 427 Columbia avenue, bore down on the young man and nabbed him by the coat tails.

Mr. Albright, then proceeded to affix a vigorous strangle hold around Wratchford's throttle. A member of the family called police while Mr. Albright increased or decreased the pressure as necessary.

A few minutes later Officer Powers hove into sight in the station wagon and found a very limp 24-year-old youth wrapped in the bear-like hug of Mr. Albright.

Still limp, Wratchford was carted to headquarters and booked on a charge of unauthorized use of an automobile. He soon recovered.

Sex Education Classes Urged for Churches

Classes in sex education under church auspices to supplement "indirect" sex education in the schools were suggested yesterday morning by Principal Victor D. Heisey of Fort Hill high school.

Mr. Heisey made the recommendation in a talk on youth problems at the monthly meeting of the Cumberland Ministerial Association at Central YMCA.

The classes should be part of a well-rounded program for youth in the churches, the principal told the ministers, who listened attentively to his discussion and fired questions at him in an open forum afterwards.

"Trashy" Magazines Hit

Discussing factors tending to break down the ideals which the home, church, and school seek to inculcate in youth, Mr. Heisey hit especially at "trashy magazines."

He quoted at length from an article in the February issue of The Readers Digest, in which Courtney Riley Cooper discussed the menace of lurid magazine stories on crime and sex.

More than 8,000,000 persons—most of them under 21—read some 150 nationally—circulated magazines in the "trash" classification, Mr. Heisey stated.

The article from which he quoted told of what many communities have done in the way of "cleaning up" their newsstands and purging them of objectionable periodicals.

Mr. Heisey quoted statistics showing that while crime generally has shown a decline in recent years, sex crimes, especially rape, have greatly increase. This increase he blamed in large measure on lurid accounts of sex crimes in newspapers and sex stories in magazines and moving pictures.

Recreation Undirected

Other problems include "undirected activities" of youth, he went on, listing so-called recreation provided by poolrooms, restaurants, roadhouses, and cabins.

The answer to this, the school of official told the ministers, is the opening of church buildings for youth activities. He urged encouragement of Boy and Girl Scout troops, 4-H clubs and other organizations under church auspices and provisions of reading rooms and the like.

The sex education classes would fit into this week-day program of the church, he said, explaining that the public schools teach the subject only "indirectly" through science classes, including biology, physical education, and homemaking.

The large attendance—best in many months—was indicative of the interest of the ministers in the youth program.

New Members Present

Two new members and three visitors were among the score of ministers present at the meeting. New members are the Rev. J. H. Lilley, pastor of the Church of Christ, and the Rev. J. H. Parker, of the Church of the Nazarene.

Visitors were the Rev. John L. Stewart, of the North Cumberland Assembly of God; the Rev. H. C. Jacobs, of the South Cumberland Assembly of God; and the Rev. Clewell E. Miller, of Bethel Evangelical church.

President B. L. Phillipson appointed a committee of three to work with a committee of the South Cumberland Ministerial Association in formulating plans for the annual Easter sunrise service.

The joint committee will meet at 1 p. m. Friday at Central YMCA.

Easter Service Committee

Members named by President Phillipson are the Rev. Edwin W. Saylor, of First Baptist church; the Rev. J. H. Lilley, of the Church of Christ; and the Rev. Dr. Vernon N. Ridgely, of Centre Street Methodist church.

The South Cumberland members are the Rev. Edgar S. Price, of Second Baptist church; the Rev. J. H. Parker, of the Church of the Nazarene; and the Rev. S. R. Neel, of Trinity Methodist church.

Named to a committee to arrange for Holy Week services were the Rev. William A. Eisenberger, of First Presbyterian church; the Rev. A. H. Robinson, of Central Methodist church; and the Rev. Edgar S. Price, of Second Baptist church.

Deaths

Mrs. L. W. Beall

Mrs. Anne E. Beall, wife of Lessington W. Beall, 725 Maryland avenue, died last night at Allegany hospital, where she had been a patient since Saturday. She was 65.

Perry T. Tipton

Funeral services for Perry Theodore Tipton, of Locust Grove, who died at the age of 35 Sunday at Memorial hospital, will be conducted tomorrow at the home of his brother, George Tipton, in Locust Grove by the Rev. George E. Baughman. Burial will be in the Old Coney cemetery near Lonaconing.

Surviving, besides his brother, are two sisters, Mrs. Myrtle Thrasher, of Locust Grove, and Mrs. Alice Smith, of Altoona, Pa.

Filander A. Simpson

Funeral services were held Sunday at Belington, W. Va., for Filander A. Simpson, 84-year-old retired farmer and justice-of-the-peace, who died at the home of his son, Gilbert Simpson, near Belington.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Stella Curtis, of Cumberland.

Espy A. Hanks

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon near Friedens, W. Va., for Espy A. Hanks, who died last week at the home of his brother, J. W. Hanks. He was 62.

Mr. Hanks was a son of the late Capt. T. F. Catherine Akers Hanks, formerly of Cumberland.

Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Sadie Puhl and Mrs. Goldie Gordon, of Cumberland.

Mayor Advises Police To Use Their Heads

Thoughtless tagging of parked cars was scored yesterday by Mayor Harry Irvine who stated testily that "police should use their heads" in such matters.

The comment was the result of a complaint by Guy J. Frantz, of the Frantz Oldsmobile Company.

Burke Burglary Suspect Held for Grand Jury

Raymond Pfeil, 21, charged with perpetrating a $1000 burglary at the Washington street home of Edmund S. Burke, yesterday waived a preliminary hearing in Trial Magistrate's Court was returned to the county jail in default of $2,500 bond.

Pfeil, formerly of Verona, Pa., will be held for action of the April grand jury.

Railroad's Fate Argued in Court

Historic Old Line Still Limps Along

Frederick, Md., Feb. 19 (AP)—The historic old Emmitsburg railroad, which has seen good times and bad—especially the latter—in the years since the Civil war, found a new champion today.

Although the wheezy engine and dilapidated cars haven't squeeked over the seven and one-half miles of the line's total trackage since last July when the company placed a motor truck into operation, the Safe Deposit and Trust Company of Baltimore filed a petition in Circuit court today denying that it would be for the best interests of creditors to order the line into receivership.

Receivership Sought

James M. Alvey, of Emmitsburg, recently instituted receivership proceedings against the company, which operates between Emmitsburg and Emmitsburg Junction, where the line connects with the Western Maryland railroad.

Alvey, who claimed the railroad was insolvent, said it owed him $4,390, and alleged there were certain labor claims unpaid.

Representatives of the trust company declared it owned 578 of the 1,000 shares of stock and a $15,000 mortgage from the railroad company to the Sisters of Charity of St. Joseph's college, on which there was a balance due of $14,456, plus interest.

This, the bank contended, comprises a first lien on the property, with possible exception of the franchise.

Line Needed Years Ago

When the Western Maryland railroad was constructed shortly after the Civil war, its route from Baltimore to Williamsport missed Emmitsburg by seven miles. The Sisters of Charity of St. Joseph's decided to do something about the situation.

Donating a right-of-way across college property and contributing more than half of the necessary capital to build a connecting line, the Sisters initiated organization of the Emmitsburg railroad in 1868. Thus the Sisters became majority bondholders.

But the "Short Line" never was a paying proposition, and in 1897 it was sold in receivership to a syndicate and the company was reorganized.

Autos Ruined Business

Years later came the passenger automobile and the trucks and by 1935 so few passengers traveled the Emmitsburg line, which also carried students and others to Mt. St. Mary's college as well as to St. Joseph's, that permission was obtained from the state Public Service Commission to limit service to freight transport only.

But old No. 8, the company's last engine, hasn't even turned a wheel since the motor truck took over last July.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. George Stuby, of Hyndman, Pa., announce the birth of a daughter yesterday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Shrout, 213 Water street, announce the birth of a daughter yesterday morning at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Nestor, 15 Lyons street, Ridgley, announce the birth of a son yesterday morning at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hedrick, RFD 2, announce the birth of a daughter yesterday morning at Memorial hospital.

Filling Station Operator Enters Race for Mayor

Thomas S. Post, Former Socialist, Now 'Progressive'

Thomas S. Post, well-known South Cumberland service station operator and sportsman, yesterday announced his candidacy for mayor and took out petition papers at the clerk's office in City Hall.

"You may call me a progressive," Mr. Post told a News reporter last night at his service station at 201 West Second street. "Yes, I registered as a Socialist a number of years ago. In those days we were striving to obtain the reforms which President Rooseveit has put into effect during his present administration."

Post stated he had veered away from the Socialist party in recent years, declared he is now an "independent, politically speaking.

Post, who is 57 and has a wife and three children, is well known by hunting and fishing enthusiasts in both the city and county. He owns the Post Service Station on West Second street and another on Virginia avenue.

A former vice-president of the Retail Galosine Dealers' Association, Post said "Some of my more influential business friends have been urging me to announce my candidacy for some time."

Former B&O Engineer

Asked if the operators and employes of some fifty service stations in Cumberland intended to dispense "Post for Mayor" propaganda along with their gasoline and oil, the surprise candidate laughed and declared, "Well, I heartily hope so."

"I've never run for office before, but I think I have a lot of friends, and I hope they will vote for me," Mr. Post said.

Mr. Post was born in Pennsylvania and was an engineer for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for nineteen years.

Lives on Louisiana Avenue

"I came to live in Cumberland in 1914," he said. "We live at 512 Louisiana avenue. When I first came to Cumberland I was an engineer for the B&O. I gave up this work in 1924 and have been in the service station business ever since."

The candidate, a hearty fellow with a good-natured laugh, declared he had no mud to sling and had simply made up his mind to run for mayor.

"Of course, I'll present a platform in due time," he concluded.

Primary Appears Likely

Today, only one more candidate for either the City Council or Mayor is needed to insure a primary in March. There are now eight council candidates and two candidates for mayor.

All council candidates had filed today with the exception of Joseph Fradiska. Mayor Harry Irvine was expected to file some time today, City Clerk S. E. Griminger said yesterday.

Candidates have through Friday to file for either the office of mayor or city councilman.

Celanese Employe Fatally Stricken

Stanley Rose, 24, Suffers Heart Attack

Stanley Rose, 24-year-old Celanese worker, dide yesterday of a heart attack shortly after he had been taken in an ambulance from his home at 87 Henderson boulevard to Allegany hospital.

Mr. Rose had been employed in the bobbin stores department at the Celanese for seven years. He had been absent from work for about a month because of illness, but had planned to go back tomorrow.

He was a native of Cumberland, and had attended the Pennsylvania Avenue high school.

Surviving are his father, James Rose, of Cumberland; a sister, Mrs. Alice Clark, of Baltimore; two half-brothers, Henry Rose, with whom he lived, and Lester Bolinger also of Cumberland, and a half-sister, Mrs. Ethel Hudson, of Cumberland.

6 West Va. Counties Swept by Snowstorm

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP)—A "blinding" snowstorm struck six counties in the state's northern panhandle Sunday, piling snow within a few hours time to a depth of four inches.

The road commission said plows were out in the district and that while efforts to keep all highways open probably would succeed, the counties were in for a "bad night."

Sleet and light snow likewise were reported in the Parkersburg area, and in Nicholas, Fayette, Raleigh, Mercer and Greenbrier counties.

One city, Huntington, listed eight persons injured, two critically, in weekend traffic accidents occurring in rainy, misty weather.

Rains turned to sleet overnight in the northern sector, the commission said, and the sleet gave way to the snowstorm, covering Ohio, Marshall, Brooke, Wetzel, Hancock, Wetzel and Tyler counties.

The snow was heaviest in Hancock.

Harry Radcliffe Kills Himself with Revolver

Coroner Says Death Of Sheriff's Brother Was Accidental

A bullet through the mouth from his .38 caliber revolver yesterday caused the death of Harry R. Radcliffe, brother of Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe.

Radcliffe, 42, a former constable and a special deputy sheriff under his brother, was found yesterday at 4:20 p. m. in the basement of his home at LaVale.

A verdict of accidental death was given by Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy medical examiner.

Talked With Wife

He encountered his wife in the basement and they conversed briefly while he played with the dog. Mrs. Radcliffe went upstairs a few seconds later.

According to Dr. Corson, she had been upstairs about a minute when she heard a gunshot in the basement.

She found her husband slumped over a concrete block at the foot of the cellar stairs. The revolver, which he always carried in his pocket, lay at his feet.

Radcliffe still had on his overcoat. His hat was on the floor.

County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle was called. He said the victim had apparently been sitting on the concrete block when the gun went off.

Dr. Corson said the bullet went through the mouth and skull of the victim.

Officers admitted they could only speculate as to what actually happened in the basement, since there were no witnesses.

Dr. Corson said he called the death accidental because Radcliffe left no suicide note, because he had seemed in good spirits and had been playing with the dog, and because he had spoken casually with his wife only a moment before his death.

On finding the body, Mrs. Radcliffe ran to the home of her parents-in-law nearby and telephoned the sheriff's office.

Sheriff Radcliffe was out of the city, but Deputy Edward P. Kaylor answered the phone and dispatched Deputy John Patton and Constable James L. Jones to the home without being able to learn from the grief-stricken wife what the trouble was.

She merely said hysterically, "Send someone out here quick."

The deputies notified the county investigator and the medical examiner when they arrived at the LaVale home and found Radcliffe dead.

Sheriff in Clarksburg

Sheriff Radcliffe was in Clarksburg, W. Va., yesterday with State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris to investigate a fraud case. Mr. Harris returned to Cumberland by train early in the evening, but the sheriff was to have remained overnight to clear up some details today.

Notified of the tragedy by telephone, he took the next train and arrived here shortly after midnight.

Mr. Radcliffe had resigned as constable several months ago, but continued to serve as a special deputy sheriff. He had recently substituted for Deputy Sheriff Henry W. McKee, ill in the hospital for several weeks.

Member of Elks Lodge

He had worked as a salesman in recent years and was formerly associated with his uncle, Lucian Long, in a Ridgeley grocery store.

Mr. Radcliffe was a member of the Elks and the Masons. He attended Centre Street Methodist church.

Surviving, besides his wife, the former Miss Pearl L. Hinebaugh, and Sheriff Radcliffe, are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Radcliffe, of LaVale; two other brothers, Robert Lee and Jonathan Radcliffe, of LaVale; and three sisters, Mrs. Ruth Long, of LaVale, Mrs. Charles Eckhart, of Eckhart, and Mrs. Gilbert Walters, of Fairmont, W. Va.

Supreme Chaplain To Visit K. of C.

Impetus will be given the selective membership campaign of Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus, when the Rev. Leo M. Finn, of Bridgeport, Conn., supreme chaplain of the order, visits the local council Sunday. It is expected that Father Finn will be accompanied by John A. Flanigan, of Baltimore, state deputy of Maryland.

Plans for a reception for the supreme chaplain and entertainment for the members during his stay here will be arranged as soon as the definite time of his arrival is known to the campaign committee of the council.

Sportsmen To Hear Kelley and Minke

Talks by District Deputy Game Warden Joseph A. Minke and J. Wesley Kelley, executive secretary of the Western Maryland Ooutdoor Life Federation, will feature the monthly meeting tonight of the Cumberland unit af the Square Circle Sportsmen's Association, Secretary Percy E. Sowers announced.

Dr. G. Frank Malin, president, will announce committee appointments at the meeting, scheduled for 8 p. m. at Mateer's Tavern, 249 North Centre street.

All sportsmen are invited to attend.

Burglar Gets Arsenal From Wilson Hardware

Police were uneasy yesterday following a week-end burglarly that netted the burglar a small arsenal of several automatic pistols, ammunition and a box of blackjacks.

Employes of the Wilson hardware store, 30 North Mechanic street, discovered that the store had been robbed yesterday morning.

County Voters Once Vetoed Public Schools

But That Was Many Years Ago, Says Gunter in Talk

Allegany county's school system of today is a far cry from the days of 1839, when citizens voted down a proposal that the county support public schools, members of the Exchange club heard last night.

The speaker was William A. Gunter, president of the county board of education who traced the development of public schools here in an address at the club's weekly dinner-meeting at Central Y. M. C. A.

Legislation was passed in 1839 to establish county school systems, Mr. Gunter explained, and Allegany county was one of six counties to turn the proposal down. Only school in the county was the Allegany County Academy, a private institution founded in 1798.

Chief objection was apparently the cost, the speaker said.

Consolidation Rapid

Proponents of public education finally triumphed several years later, however, Mr. Gunter went on, and the county today has a school system of which it can be proud.

More than 16,000 students are enrolled, school property is valued at about $3,000,000, and the annual operating budget is approximately $900,000, he told the club.

The school official noted the trend toward consolidation of schools, pointing out that there are now only fifty-one schools in the county, compared to over 100 schools fifteen or twenty years ago.

Advantages of consolidation included he said, decreased costs, provision of better facilities and better education generally.

Large Schools Cheapest

He pointed out that the per-pupil cost of large schools is much lower than that of smaller schools.

Mr. Gunter traced, too, the long struggle to take the county school board out of politics.

Originally, the board was elected by the people, he said, and schools affairs were deep in politics.

The appointive power was lodged successively in the Orphans court, the board of county commissioners, Circuit court and finally in the governor, where it remains today, he went on.

490 Teachers in County

The governor, elected for only a four-year term, makes school board appointments for six-year terms, and it is now impossible to make a "political football" out of the board, Mr. Gunter stated.

Other statistics quoted showed that of the $900,000 annual operating budget, the state pays one-third, the county, two-thirds; forty cents of every tax dollar goes for public education; and a staff of 490 teachers is employed in the county.

Mr. Gunter noted the other activities of the school system, including health promotion and sponsorship of Americanization classes for would-be citizens, as well as a broad adult education program in night classes.

Power Service to Farms Up 120 P. C.

Washington, Feb. 19. (AP)—Power service to Maryland farms increased 120 per cent between 1935 and June 30, 1939, the Rural Electrification Administration reported today.

"While this was substantially above the national average of 22.1 per cent, nevertheless two-thirds of Maryland's farm families were still without the benefits of high-line service," the report indicated.

Prior to 1935, the REA said, only 6,791 of Maryland's 44,501 farms had been connected with central power lines. The number had increased last June to approximately 15,000, or 33.4 per cent of all farms in the state.

The REA report declared its program had "been at least in part responsible for a marked increase in rural line construction by private utility companies."

Dies at 92, Worked Only 2 Years of Life

Cincinnati, Feb. 19. (AP)—Edwin Forest Wilder, who said he worked only two of his 92 years "and lost money at it," died today.

Interviewed two years ago, Wilder described himself as a "man of leisure doing just what I wanted to do and answerable to no one."

He increased an inherited fortune through speculation and "playing the horses," he said. A graduate of Cincinnati law school at the same time the late President and Chief Justice William Howard Taft was enrolled there, Wilder "never took a case."

Another letter! The lady writes:

"You seem to be a generous sort of fellow, to answer folks' querries.

"Would you please tell us about this new court official we are hearing so much about lately?

"He is called the 'court examiner.' Who is he, and what are his duties, for it is just lately that he has appeared on the scene.

"Heretofore, one had a lawyer when he was in trouble. You told him your story, from him it was heard by the judge. Now evidently you hire a lawyer, tell him your troubles, then tell them over again to this new party the court examiner. Which one tells the judge, the examiner or the lawyer?

"I am just plain curious. When a new officer bobs up frequently in the news, a person would like to know about him.

"And should you want to enter suit against some one, do you pay the lawyer and the examiner, too?

"Yours for a lot of success with your interesting column."

This lady has been reading divorce stories. The testimony is usually taken before the "court examiner." The judge, then considers this written testimony and makes his decision. Of course, either party to a divorce suit has a right to demand a hearing in open court, but this is usually avoided.

Court examiners are nothing new. It may be true, however, that reporters have not always brought out in their stories just who heard the testimony and asked the questions. Court examiners in all recent cases have been either Attorney Urner G. Carl or Attorney Estel C. Kelley.

So, my dear lady, you still pay your lawyer, the same as ever. And whoever pays the court costs pays the examiners fees, too.

Pythians Induct Class of 21

Anniversary Celebration Continues Tonight

Initiation of a class of twenty-one candidates marked the opening last night of the celebration by Cumberland Knights of Pythias of the seventy-sixth anniversary of the founding of their order.

The page rank class inducted by Cumberland Lodge No. 60 was named in honor of Grand Prelate Odith M. Brotemarkle, of Cumberland. State Senatr Robert B. Kimble "dedicated" the class to Mr. Brotemarkle, who responded with a short talk of appreciation.

Other speakers included Grand Chancellor Julius E. Schindler, of Cumberland; Grand Keeper of Records and Seal, A. Elwood Martak, of Baltimore; Past Supreme Representative Nelson W. Russler, of Cumberland; and Daniel F. Summey, of Charlotte, N. C., past imperial prince of the D.O.K.K.

Approximately 150 were present at the ceremony at Odd Fellows hall on South Mechanic street, including several from nearby Maryland and West Virginia points.

The candidates inducted were Henry Thomas Wilson Jack A. Dentinger, Rodney P. Hambleton, Paul Teter, Gerald A. Twigg, William M. Hartung, Clarence R. Simons, James F. McIntosh, Dr. W. E. Capaldi, Lynn Walker, Roy E. Davy, Verlin F. Burke, O. Edward Chenowith, William J. Bender, James R. Smith, Leo V. Cheney, Glore F. Martin, James W. Drenning, William E. Knippenberg, Elmer R. Winter and Harry F. Rizer.

Tonight at 6:30 o'clock at Central YMCA, the lodge will sponsor an anniversary banquet at which 300 Pythians are expected to be present.

Mayor Continues Fight To Get City Men on Dam

WPA Problem Will Develop Here Otherwise, He Says

Mayor Harry Irvine's plan for taking care of WPA in Cumberland was outlined to council members yesterday as the mayor undertook to clarify his position in regard to the WPA situation.

"I am not inherently or stubbornly opposed to WPA," the mayor continued, "but merely to the way it has been applied locally in some instances."

The mayor's plan is based on his demand that Cumberland men be given jobs on the gigantic WPA project at the Savage river dam.

"Only Fair and Just"

"Only last Friday, Owen E. Hitchins, who is on the Upper Potomac River Commission, announced that some 1,500 men would soon be put to work on the dam," the mayor said.

"Now it is only fair and just that Cumberland workers be given some recognition on that project," the mayor continued.

Mayor Irvine pointed out that his administration planned to keep 380 men busy on WPA projects in the city. Today, the city is actually employing 484 workers on light projects, the mayor declared.

Send Single Men To Dam

"We will be able to take care of the quota we originally planned to take care of," the mayor said, "but if we continue to employ so many, they will start running out of work and this will result in all of them being placed in a tough position."

"Now, I have learned that transportation to and from the dam can be secured for fifty cents a day. Single men and men with small families could afford this charge.

"What I want to see done is simply this. Keep the married men with families employed on Cumberland projects. Obtain jobs for single workmen and married men with small families on the Savage river dam.

No Promise of Day Jobs Yet

"What I don't want to see done is to have every man, regardless of his need, dumped onto the Johnson Heights street jobs and have them finished up so quickly."

The mayor said that street improvement jobs would keep approximately 380 workers employed the better part of a year.

"And of course it's our hope that WPA will not be necessary for more than a year or two years at the outside," the mayor added. "If we have to keep on with it after that, I'm afraid the country will go busted."

Asked if he had been given assurance that Cumberland men would be put to work on the dam project, the mayor said "No, I haven't. But it's only fair and just that we be given some of those jobs. We have a right to expect some consideration on that project."

Negro Youth Leader To Aid Campaign For Community Center

Elder H. Russell, state director of Negro activities of the National Youth Administration, will address a meeting sponsored by the Frederick Street school and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Thursday at 8:00 p. m. in the school auditorium.

Mr. Russell will discuss the many advantages to be gained by having a community center for the colored youth of this city, and will also outline educational and employment possibilities under the NYA. The association is sponsoring a drive for funds with which to build the community center. Contributions are being received through the office of the Cumberland Guide, 124 Union street.

Other features of the program include a motion picture to be presented by Earl Bracey, principal of the Frederick Street school, and selections by the N.A.A.C.P. quartet.

Mayor Proclaims Americanism Week

Cumberland will observe Americanism Week starting Feb. 24 as the result of a proclamation issued yesterday by Mayor Harry Irvine on the suggestion of Cumberland Elks Lodge No. 63.

Auto Owner Uses Strong Arm Method On Alleged Thief Who Escaped Cop

The strangle hold which a Columbia avenue citizen applied to an unsuccessful automobile "borrower" last night won loud applause from at least one Cumberland policeman.

Trouble started for 24-year-old Ralph Wratchford, of Valley road, when he first spotted a somewhat worn-looking 1930 automobile parked on North Centre street.

The young man proceeded to climb into the car when the owner suddenly appeared on the scene.

Escapes From Policeman

The owner proved to be none other than Officer R. V. "Sparky" Chisholm, who bellowed lustily at the man in his car.

Taking one look at the tremendous size of the officer bearing down on him, Wratchford bounded out of the car and sped away.

A few minutes later, the same young man climbed into another car parked on Columbia avenue.

And once again he was discovered, but this time he didn't give the indignant owner the slip.

Held for Police

The owner, Elmer Albright, 427 Columbia avenue, bore down on the young man and nabbed him by the coat tails.

Mr. Albright, then proceeded to affix a vigorous strangle hold around Wratchford's throttle. A member of the family called police while Mr. Albright increased or decreased the pressure as necessary.

A few minutes later Officer Powers hove into sight in the station wagon and found a very limp 24-year-old youth wrapped in the bear-like hug of Mr. Albright.

Still limp, Wratchford was carted to headquarters and booked on a charge of unauthorized use of an automobile. He soon recovered.

Sex Education Classes Urged for Churches

Classes in sex education under church auspices to supplement "indirect" sex education in the schools were suggested yesterday morning by Principal Victor D. Heisey of Fort Hill high school.

Mr. Heisey made the recommendation in a talk on youth problems at the monthly meeting of the Cumberland Ministerial Association at Central YMCA.

The classes should be part of a well-rounded program for youth in the churches, the principal told the ministers, who listened attentively to his discussion and fired questions at him in an open forum afterwards.

"Trashy" Magazines Hit

Discussing factors tending to break down the ideals which the home, church, and school seek to inculcate in youth, Mr. Heisey hit especially at "trashy magazines."

He quoted at length from an article in the February issue of The Readers Digest, in which Courtney Riley Cooper discussed the menace of lurid magazine stories on crime and sex.

More than 8,000,000 persons—most of them under 21—read some 150 nationally—circulated magazines in the "trash" classification, Mr. Heisey stated.

The article from which he quoted told of what many communities have done in the way of "cleaning up" their newsstands and purging them of objectionable periodicals.

Mr. Heisey quoted statistics showing that while crime generally has shown a decline in recent years, sex crimes, especially rape, have greatly increase. This increase he blamed in large measure on lurid accounts of sex crimes in newspapers and sex stories in magazines and moving pictures.

Recreation Undirected

Other problems include "undirected activities" of youth, he went on, listing so-called recreation provided by poolrooms, restaurants, roadhouses, and cabins.

The answer to this, the school of official told the ministers, is the opening of church buildings for youth activities. He urged encouragement of Boy and Girl Scout troops, 4-H clubs and other organizations under church auspices and provisions of reading rooms and the like.

The sex education classes would fit into this week-day program of the church, he said, explaining that the public schools teach the subject only "indirectly" through science classes, including biology, physical education, and homemaking.

The large attendance—best in many months—was indicative of the interest of the ministers in the youth program.

New Members Present

Two new members and three visitors were among the score of ministers present at the meeting. New members are the Rev. J. H. Lilley, pastor of the Church of Christ, and the Rev. J. H. Parker, of the Church of the Nazarene.

Visitors were the Rev. John L. Stewart, of the North Cumberland Assembly of God; the Rev. H. C. Jacobs, of the South Cumberland Assembly of God; and the Rev. Clewell E. Miller, of Bethel Evangelical church.

President B. L. Phillipson appointed a committee of three to work with a committee of the South Cumberland Ministerial Association in formulating plans for the annual Easter sunrise service.

The joint committee will meet at 1 p. m. Friday at Central YMCA.

Easter Service Committee

Members named by President Phillipson are the Rev. Edwin W. Saylor, of First Baptist church; the Rev. J. H. Lilley, of the Church of Christ; and the Rev. Dr. Vernon N. Ridgely, of Centre Street Methodist church.

The South Cumberland members are the Rev. Edgar S. Price, of Second Baptist church; the Rev. J. H. Parker, of the Church of the Nazarene; and the Rev. S. R. Neel, of Trinity Methodist church.

Named to a committee to arrange for Holy Week services were the Rev. William A. Eisenberger, of First Presbyterian church; the Rev. A. H. Robinson, of Central Methodist church; and the Rev. Edgar S. Price, of Second Baptist church.

Deaths

Mrs. L. W. Beall

Mrs. Anne E. Beall, wife of Lessington W. Beall, 725 Maryland avenue, died last night at Allegany hospital, where she had been a patient since Saturday. She was 65.

Perry T. Tipton

Funeral services for Perry Theodore Tipton, of Locust Grove, who died at the age of 35 Sunday at Memorial hospital, will be conducted tomorrow at the home of his brother, George Tipton, in Locust Grove by the Rev. George E. Baughman. Burial will be in the Old Coney cemetery near Lonaconing.

Surviving, besides his brother, are two sisters, Mrs. Myrtle Thrasher, of Locust Grove, and Mrs. Alice Smith, of Altoona, Pa.

Filander A. Simpson

Funeral services were held Sunday at Belington, W. Va., for Filander A. Simpson, 84-year-old retired farmer and justice-of-the-peace, who died at the home of his son, Gilbert Simpson, near Belington.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Stella Curtis, of Cumberland.

Espy A. Hanks

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon near Friedens, W. Va., for Espy A. Hanks, who died last week at the home of his brother, J. W. Hanks. He was 62.

Mr. Hanks was a son of the late Capt. T. F. Catherine Akers Hanks, formerly of Cumberland.

Survivors include two sisters, Mrs. Sadie Puhl and Mrs. Goldie Gordon, of Cumberland.

Mayor Advises Police To Use Their Heads

Thoughtless tagging of parked cars was scored yesterday by Mayor Harry Irvine who stated testily that "police should use their heads" in such matters.

The comment was the result of a complaint by Guy J. Frantz, of the Frantz Oldsmobile Company.

Burke Burglary Suspect Held for Grand Jury

Raymond Pfeil, 21, charged with perpetrating a $1000 burglary at the Washington street home of Edmund S. Burke, yesterday waived a preliminary hearing in Trial Magistrate's Court was returned to the county jail in default of $2,500 bond.

Pfeil, formerly of Verona, Pa., will be held for action of the April grand jury.

Railroad's Fate Argued in Court

Historic Old Line Still Limps Along

Frederick, Md., Feb. 19 (AP)—The historic old Emmitsburg railroad, which has seen good times and bad—especially the latter—in the years since the Civil war, found a new champion today.

Although the wheezy engine and dilapidated cars haven't squeeked over the seven and one-half miles of the line's total trackage since last July when the company placed a motor truck into operation, the Safe Deposit and Trust Company of Baltimore filed a petition in Circuit court today denying that it would be for the best interests of creditors to order the line into receivership.

Receivership Sought

James M. Alvey, of Emmitsburg, recently instituted receivership proceedings against the company, which operates between Emmitsburg and Emmitsburg Junction, where the line connects with the Western Maryland railroad.

Alvey, who claimed the railroad was insolvent, said it owed him $4,390, and alleged there were certain labor claims unpaid.

Representatives of the trust company declared it owned 578 of the 1,000 shares of stock and a $15,000 mortgage from the railroad company to the Sisters of Charity of St. Joseph's college, on which there was a balance due of $14,456, plus interest.

This, the bank contended, comprises a first lien on the property, with possible exception of the franchise.

Line Needed Years Ago

When the Western Maryland railroad was constructed shortly after the Civil war, its route from Baltimore to Williamsport missed Emmitsburg by seven miles. The Sisters of Charity of St. Joseph's decided to do something about the situation.

Donating a right-of-way across college property and contributing more than half of the necessary capital to build a connecting line, the Sisters initiated organization of the Emmitsburg railroad in 1868. Thus the Sisters became majority bondholders.

But the "Short Line" never was a paying proposition, and in 1897 it was sold in receivership to a syndicate and the company was reorganized.

Autos Ruined Business

Years later came the passenger automobile and the trucks and by 1935 so few passengers traveled the Emmitsburg line, which also carried students and others to Mt. St. Mary's college as well as to St. Joseph's, that permission was obtained from the state Public Service Commission to limit service to freight transport only.

But old No. 8, the company's last engine, hasn't even turned a wheel since the motor truck took over last July.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. George Stuby, of Hyndman, Pa., announce the birth of a daughter yesterday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. Shrout, 213 Water street, announce the birth of a daughter yesterday morning at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Nestor, 15 Lyons street, Ridgley, announce the birth of a son yesterday morning at Allegany hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Hedrick, RFD 2, announce the birth of a daughter yesterday morning at Memorial hospital.

Filling Station Operator Enters Race for Mayor

Thomas S. Post, Former Socialist, Now 'Progressive'

Thomas S. Post, well-known South Cumberland service station operator and sportsman, yesterday announced his candidacy for mayor and took out petition papers at the clerk's office in City Hall.

"You may call me a progressive," Mr. Post told a News reporter last night at his service station at 201 West Second street. "Yes, I registered as a Socialist a number of years ago. In those days we were striving to obtain the reforms which President Roosevelt has put into effect during his present administration."

Post stated he had veered away from the Socialist party in recent years, declared he is now an "independent, politically speaking.

Post, who is 57 and has a wife and three children, is well known by hunting and fishing enthusiasts in both the city and county. He owns the Post Service Station on West Second street and another on Virginia avenue.

A former vice-president of the Retail Galosine Dealers' Association, Post said "Some of my more influential business friends have been urging me to announce my candidacy for some time."

Former B&O Engineer

Asked if the operators and employes of some fifty service stations in Cumberland intended to dispense "Post for Mayor" propaganda along with their gasoline and oil, the surprise candidate laughed and declared, "Well, I heartily hope so."

"I've never run for office before, but I think I have a lot of friends, and I hope they will vote for me," Mr. Post said.

Mr. Post was born in Pennsylvania and was an engineer for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for nineteen years.

Lives on Louisiana Avenue

"I came to live in Cumberland in 1914," he said. "We live at 512 Louisiana avenue. When I first came to Cumberland I was an engineer for the B&O. I gave up this work in 1924 and have been in the service station business ever since."

The candidate, a hearty fellow with a good-natured laugh, declared he had no mud to sling and had simply made up his mind to run for mayor.

"Of course, I'll present a platform in due time," he concluded.

Primary Appears Likely

Today, only one more candidate for either the City Council or Mayor is needed to insure a primary in March. There are now eight council candidates and two candidates for mayor.

All council candidates had filed today with the exception of Joseph Fradiska. Mayor Harry Irvine was expected to file some time today, City Clerk S. E. Griminger said yesterday.

Candidates have through Friday to file for either the office of mayor or city councilman.

Celanese Employe Fatally Stricken

Stanley Rose, 24, Suffers Heart Attack

Stanley Rose, 24-year-old Celanese worker, dide yesterday of a heart attack shortly after he had been taken in an ambulance from his home at 87 Henderson boulevard to Allegany hospital.

Mr. Rose had been employed in the bobbin stores department at the Celanese for seven years. He had been absent from work for about a month because of illness, but had planned to go back tomorrow.

He was a native of Cumberland, and had attended the Pennsylvania Avenue high school.

Surviving are his father, James Rose, of Cumberland; a sister, Mrs. Alice Clark, of Baltimore; two half-brothers, Henry Rose, with whom he lived, and Lester Bolinger also of Cumberland, and a half-sister, Mrs. Ethel Hudson, of Cumberland.

6 West Va. Counties Swept by Snowstorm

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 19 (AP)—A "blinding" snowstorm struck six counties in the state's northern panhandle Sunday, piling snow within a few hours time to a depth of four inches.

The road commission said plows were out in the district and that while efforts to keep all highways open probably would succeed, the counties were in for a "bad night."

Sleet and light snow likewise were reported in the Parkersburg area, and in Nicholas, Fayette, Raleigh, Mercer and Greenbrier counties.

One city, Huntington, listed eight persons injured, two critically, in weekend traffic accidents occurring in rainy, misty weather.

Rains turned to sleet overnight in the northern sector, the commission said, and the sleet gave way to the snowstorm, covering Ohio, Marshall, Brooke, Wetzel, Hancock, Wetzel and Tyler counties.

The snow was heaviest in Hancock.
